AVIATORS TELL OF GREAT RACE

Paulhan Writes That Maze of London Troubled Him in Start for Manchester.

IN GRAVE PERIL AT NIGHT

Fuel Failed Near Lichfield and He Barely Escaped Dangerous Wires in Alighting.

RISKS BRAVED BY WHITE

Long Hours of Speeding in Darkness with Only Lights to Guide Him in His Chase.

By LOUIS PAULHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Written for The London Daily Mail.

LONDON, April 28.—London is a difficult place to fly out of. It is so huge, so confusing. I know the way from Hendon to Manchester, but I do not know the way from Hendon to St. Paul's, nor could one learn it without practice—there are so many districts all alike, and such a bewildering number of railway lines running in every conceivable direction.

Without my map I could never have found my way out, but I had well impressed myself with all the signs of the particular railway track I wanted, and I was soon flying directly to the north.

I had to fight the wind all the way from London. Not a moment's rest came to me in my battle against the gusts.

Glance at my altitude chart and you will see that I made rises and dips of as much as 320 feet, always with the object of flying in the steadiest level of air I could find.

After the start I was going north for a long time before I sighted the special train which was accompanying me, but there was no mistaking it when it caught me up, with three loud toots of the whistle and a big white signal cloth flowing from the window of the rear coach.

It looked like a handkerchief from such a height, but it told me all. I could see that things were going well. The wind whistled and so did I.

Sang in His Aeroplane.

I shouted and I sang. I do not think my voice is particularly fascinating, but nobody seems to mind that in the upper air.

A pelting rainstorm lashed me for twenty minutes while I was in the neighborhood of Rugby. Fortunately I am not unused to flying in the rain, and, therefore, although it was uncomfortable, it had no effect upon my flight. I kept on flying at a steady pace, although my altitude varied remarkably.

I flew until it was quite dark. All I could make out beneath me was the smoke of the train once in a while and the occasional flicker of lights from a village.

I came down rapidly from 300 meters to 100, so that I could be more certain of my direction. Then came the most exciting moment of my flight. Darkness had fallen, and before me I saw the lights of Lichfield. I decided to alight in some convenient meadow before reaching the town, and to do this I sank down to 150 feet. I was immediately above what looked like a large factory with a chimney. I am now told it was a brewery. And so, to alight safely in a field with no damage done, I made a fishhook turn, and my machine was now pointing toward London.

Suddenly my motor stopped. Every drop of petrol had been exhausted, and the machine swooped downward almost like a stone dropping.

What should I do? Beneath me was the brewery and certain smash; behind me was a narrow field, which was almost like a spider's web with its mesh of telegraph wires.

I had an imperceptible fraction of a second in which to make up my mind, and I decided to risk the telegraph wires. As I sank I made a sharp twist right back on the line of my course, and was lucky enough to lift myself over the wires.

Praise for English.

So far, then, so good. I was stiff with cold and was very glad of a drink of whisky from the flask of a gentleman who had dashed up with a motor-car and of the friendly attentions of a number of persons who brought warmth back to my limbs by rubbing them. You are sportsmen, you English. I was racing an Englishman, and most naturally you wanted him to win; yet you treated me throughout with the most generous assistance.

I went to bed at 1 o'clock, deciding to start again as soon as it was light, or even a little earlier. I slept like a top for five hours, and then woke fresh as a lark and delighted to find that some of the strain of fatigue had left my limbs. My hands, arms, legs, and feet had become supple enough for me to work the machine again with confidence, though I must admit that I felt as if I had been working very hard.

It was still dark when I reached the narrow meadow beside the Trent Valley station in which my machine was lying. My mechanics had worked well during the night. The machine was

RECORDS OF LINERS "FAKED."

Officer in Atlantic Service Also Tells Dangers from Long Vigils.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 28.—Charges that bad steamship management overtaxes the strength of commanders of great liners at critical times and thereby endangers the lives of thousands of passengers are published in the May number of the Atlantic Monthly, issued to-day. "The Man on the Bridge" is the leading article. The author is vouched for by the magazine as an officer on a transatlantic liner. At one point he says:

"I have been left in charge of a liner carrying a crew of 500, 2,200 steerage passengers, 300 second class, and about 300 first, in all about 3,300 souls. These, in addition to the valuable ship and freight, have been under my charge at a time when I have been from thirty to forty hours on my feet and without sleep or rest. The safety of all depended upon my vigilance at a time when soul, mind, and body have long been worn out. To keep awake at such times is torture; one must walk, walk, walk, and get through somehow; and all this in waters crowded with shipping and where vessels are subjected to the whims of the tides. At no other time in their lives perhaps are passengers in such jeopardy."

In another place he refers to these dangers thus:

"Some years ago elaborate plans were drawn up for the safety of liners when clear of the land. I refer to the tracks agreed upon by the leading steamship companies. These tracks, no doubt, are a good thing and do minimize the risks of an ocean passage, but the gravest and most unwarrantable risks are taken in the very worst places in the world—the English channels—and under the worst possible conditions."

He asserts palinly that some of the record runs across the Atlantic are "faked." "From Sandy Hook Light to what is called 'The Corner,'" he says, "is 1,225 miles on the southern track on a straight course. Now, suppose that for the sake of making a record passage a navigator chooses to leave the straight line at about 800 miles from New York and to strike up north on a great circle track of his own different from the one he is supposed to follow, he may save about 100 miles. Should he make a long cut and go only about 500 miles, instead of the official 1,225 miles, on his straight line course from New York before striking north, his distance by the time he reaches Fastnet would be much less than the official distance.

"This reduced distance saves time, but the time on passage is divided into the official or greater distance to arrive at the average speed. Thus the time on passage will be correct but the average speed based on the calculation that the whole official distance was traveled will be 'faked.'

"It is possible when vessels are on the southern track to make a big cut because the angle in the rhumb or straight line course is so acute. For the sake of a smart passage it is best to keep as far north as possible. The further north one keeps the less the distance in traveling between two points lying east and west.

"Knowing what goes on behind the scenes, I have no hesitation in declaring that Mauretania's latest record, 26.08 knots, was 'faked.' I do not believe for a moment, nor do the officers aboard her, that she made that average covering the official distance."

BOY CURED OF LOCKJAW.

Lad Exhibited at Physicians' Meeting as Evidence—First in the Bronx.

What is said to be the first cure of a violent case of lockjaw on record in the Bronx was exhibited at a meeting of the Bronx Medical Association at the Bronson Club, 348 East 146th Street, last night, in the person of 15-year-old Albert Giela of 718 East 230th Street. Dr. William Walker of the Fordham Hospital, who had charge of the case, described the treatment; the boy was visible proof of its efficacy.

The boy was struck on the nose with a stick by his brother on Dec. 10. The bruise healed and left no mark, but sixteen days later symptoms of tetanus appeared and he complained of pains in the back.

A physician treated him for grip, but his state grew rapidly worse, and on Dec. 26 he was taken to the Fordham Hospital. His neck was stiffening and he was unable to turn his head. A day or two later it became rigid, and his jaws locked. To give food to him it was necessary to pry his mouth open.

As the disease progressed he grew rigid as a board. His arms, legs, neck, and abdomen stiffened until at last the body arched so it rested on the heels and back of the head. In this position he was seized with violent convulsions.

Except for brief periods after morphine had been administered to ease his agony, the boy was conscious throughout. Dr. Walker removed him to a quiet room and kept him in absolute darkness. Three times chloroform was administered and six injections of antitoxin were given. During all this time the boy could take only liquid foods.

After five weeks of this treatment the symptoms of tetanus abated and on the sixth he was pronounced cured. He is now a pupil at Public School 37, at 146th Street and Willis Avenue. Most of the 100 physicians at the meeting of the Bronx Medical Association last night, after hearing a paper which Dr. Walker read about the cure, went up to the boy, pinched his cheeks, opened his jaws, and gave other evidence of their medical interest.

HEARS SON IS KIDNAPPED.

Saloon Keeper Gets Word Missing Boy Is Held for a Ransom.

Twice yesterday Albert Gulden, a saloonkeeper of 377 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, received intimations that his 12-year-old son Arthur, who has been missing from home ever since Monday night, had been kidnapped.

Early yesterday morning came a letter reading:

> Dear Friend: Take it from me that your son has been kidnapped.
>
> UNKNOWN FRIEND.

Gulden took the letter to the Bronx Detective Bureau, but could furnish no further clue as to his son's whereabouts.

Last night the telephone bell rang at the Gulden home and Mrs. Gulden answered it. A man's voice, with a marked foreign accent, asked whether she had not lost her son.

"Yes, yes," cried Mrs. Gulden quickly. "Tell me where he is."

"I will see that you get him back to-morrow morning," replied the voice, "provided that you place an envelope containing $200 in bills under a stone at the 149th Street entrance to St. Mary's Park at 8 o'clock to-night."

Then the man hung up the receiver and Mrs. Gulden fainted.

When her husband, attracted by the sound of her fall, came up and revived her and learned what had happened he at once notified the Bronx Detective Bureau. Detective McAndrews and three others repaired to the designated entrance to St. Mary's Park, found the stone, put a decoy envelope beneath it, and waited nearby in concealment. But no one came to pick up the envelope, and at 9 o'clock the detectives went away.

MANIAC IN A CLUB HOLDS POSSE AT BAY

Rutherford Youth, After Attacking a Girl, Barricades Himself and Shoots Policeman.

AT LAST ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Sheriff and Scores of Armed Men Fought Off for Five Hours by His Rifle and Revolver.

Barricading himself in a two-story clubhouse on the bank of the Hackensack River near the little town of Carlstadt, N. J., Clarence Wood, a young cripple and member of a well-known family of Rutherford, held a Sheriff's posse at bay for five hours yesterday, while bullets riddled the frame building. Then, after dangerously wounding a Chief of Police, he turned his revolver on himself and sent a bullet into his brain just as a hundred or more armed men, having mustered courage enough to charge the building, were about to break down the doors.

Before the fighting began young Wood had attacked Miss Anna Kipp, a popular member of the Rutherford social set, whom he had lured to the boathouse early in the morning under the pretense that she was to be one of a party of half a dozen mutual friends who were to go on a launch party down the Hackensack. After attacking her with a bludgeon and trying to strangle her, Wood's nerve seemed to fail, for the girl escaped his grasp and staggered several hundred yards along the river bank to a hotel, where she gave the alarm.

It was to avenge the attack on the girl and capture Wood dead or alive that the Sheriff's posse was formed. Wood is supposed to have become suddenly demented after his brutal attack on Miss Kipp, for during the hours in which he held the crowd of armed men at bay, firing now and then to let them know that he was still prepared for the attack, the young man practically wrecked the interior of the clubhouse, smashed the bottom of several canoes with a hatchet, nearly demolished the club piano, slashed most of the pictures with a knife, and wrecked most of the club furniture.

Apparently a Maniac.

Another evidence that the man was apparently insane lay in the fact that after his attack on Miss Anna Kipp he raced upstairs to the second floor of the club and began to play the piano in a manner which jarred even the ears of the rivermen at work near by. That was before the alarm had been given by Miss Kipp, and before the shooting had begun.

During those five hours in which Wood held the crowd at bay he fired at least fifty shots from a repeating rifle of heavy calibre and from an automatic revolver. It was with the revolver that he killed himself, for all the cartridges for the rifle had been exhausted and there remained only one more revolver cartridge when the door was finally broken down and the Sheriff's posse and other armed men got inside, only to find that Wood was dead.

The Chief of Police shot down by Wood was Charles Smith of Carlstadt. One of the bullets from Wood's repeating rifle, a heavy 38.50 steel-capped bullet, struck the policeman in the arm close to the shoulder while he was advancing to arrest the young man. Smith is now in the Passaic Hospital, where it was said late last night that his arm would probably have to be amputated.

Wood, who was 21 years old, was a son of Mrs. James L. Cottell. His stepfather is a broker, with offices in Manhattan. Young Wood for several years was employed as a clerk by the Guaranty Trust Company of this city, but was allowed a ten-day sick leave about a week ago. He and his two brothers were well known in the younger social set of Rutherford, which is but a few miles from Carlstadt.

Clarence Wood was born with a hip malady which made him limp slightly. But in spite of his slight infirmity the young man was a fine bowler and oarsman, and spent much of his leisure time at the Rutherford Boat Club house.

A Trap for the Girl.

Miss Kipp lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Kipp, about half a mile from the home of young Wood. Early Wednesday evening she was called on the telephone by Wood.

"We are getting up a little launch party for to-morrow and I want you to go along," said Wood. Miss Kipp asked her mother if she could go and Mrs. Kipp reluctantly gave her consent. Wood told the girl he would meet her early in the morning and accompany her to the Rutherford Boat Club, whence the start was to be made.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning Wood called at the Kipp home and they started for the river, riding as far as the Paterson Plank Road Bridge on a trolley car. As they neared the boathouse Miss Kipp remarked that they must be too early, as none of the others had appeared.

"Well, we will get the boat ready so we can start as soon as they show up," said Wood. "Come on inside and help me get the cushions and things."

Miss Wood demurred at entering the boathouse. It was the first time she had ever been out alone with Wood. But as he insisted the girl followed him in after he had unlocked the door with his pass key.

According to the story told afterward by Miss Kipp, she followed Wood to the front of the clubhouse, nearest the river, and he, after opening his locker, got out some launch cushions and placed them in her hands. Miss Kipp says she turned to start for the float, where the motor boat owned by one of Wood's friends was moored, when she was suddenly struck from behind with a club.

"I turned to grapple with him, when he struck me on the head again," said Miss Kipp long after the attack and after the family physician had put seventeen stitches in the wounds on her head. "As I turned my feet got twisted and I fell. In an instant he grabbed me by the throat and tried to choke me, but I managed to stagger to my feet and fight him off."

Miss Kipp, who is muscular for a girl of 19 years, says that in the excitement she did not notice what weapon Wood had used to strike her with. She says she managed to keep his hands from her throat and that after struggling a moment wrenched herself loose and ran from the boathouse. Blood nearly blinded her.

Made Her Escape.

From the boathouse to the roadway at the bridge there runs a narrow plank walk, but Miss Kipp missed this and plunged through the marsh to the road. She made no outcry. She says that fear and pain seemed to paralyze her tongue. Half way to the road she paused and, wiping the blood from her eyes, looked back to see if she was followed. But Wood had made no effort to pursue her.

There is a small country hotel, kept by Albert Deschler, just where the plank footwalk meets the roadway. Deschler was standing in front of the hotel as Miss Kipp staggered into the roadway. He caught her and assisted her to the hotel of Henry M. Heflich, where there is a telephone. Mrs. Heflich met the wounded girl at the door.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN ALLDS'S DISTRICT

But Normal Plurality of 7,000 Is Cut to 2,082 in Special Election.

DEMOCRATS ARE PLEASED

Say Result Shows That People Are Dissatisfied with Machine Rule and High Cost of Living.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWICH, N. Y., April 28.—Ralph W. Thomas, Professor of Oratory at Colgate University, was elected Senator from the Thirty-seventh District to succeed Jotham P. Allds by 2,082 plurality at the special election to-day. Edward L. Nash, the Democratic candidate, carried Chenango, his home county, by 448. Norwich, Nash's home town, went for him by 655 plurality. Oxford, where Judge Arnold made a severe attack on ex-Senator Allds and Stephen Ryan, the Democratic State Committeeman, went Democratic by 30.

Thomas carried Otsego County by 1,170. He carried the City of Oneonta by 165, which was a surprise even to his most sanguine friends. In Madison County Thomas had a majority of 1,360.

In spite of the fact that Thomas had declared for the Hughes policies and had the support of the Hughes men in the district, his plurality of 2,082 shows a marked falling off from the plurality of 3,939, by which Allds was elected in 1908. The pluralities for Assemblymen in the three counties totaled 4,475 that year and 5,733 the year before.

The election to-day was remarkably clean. No disorders and no improper use of money were reported. Democratic State Committeemen Ryan says the Democrats had absolutely no money for use in the campaign. The Republicans expended their small fund in circularizing the voters of their party.

Interest in the election was not marked in the rural districts, the farmers preferring to stay at home and give attention to agriculture. The vote was light, a little more than 50 per cent. being recorded.

Prof. Thomas, the successful candidate, said this evening:

"One cause of my victory was the resentment felt by the voters at the attacks made upon me by New York newspapers. There was no issue in the campaign that they could raise, there was nothing in my record or life heretofore that they could attack, and they resorted to a campaign of calumny, slander, and villification, and my friends all over this district were indignant and voted accordingly."

Edward L. Nash, the defeated candidate, said to-night:

"I am gratified with the result of the election, although I confidently expected to win. I am at the service of the party any time it may call upon me. With a longer campaign I am sure I could make a better showing."

The result of the election in Chenango County insures the Democratic nomination for Assemblyman in this county next Fall for Mr. Nash, if he will accept it.

William H. Sullivan, Nash's campaign manager, said to-night that the election showed remarkable Democratic gains.

"While the vote was light," he said, "it was largely the Republican voters who stayed at home. The remarkable strength shown by Mr. Nash must have clearly convinced the people of this district that there is discontent and dissatisfaction with existing Republican rule. The high cost of living and the faithlessness shown by Republican officials have demonstrated that the Republican organization, as now constituted, is unworthy of confidence.

"I hope Mr. Thomas will make a good Senator, but I fear that unless he takes a lesson from his greatly reduced majority the work of the old Republican organization will continue. It certainly is not very complimentary to receive so small a majority in a district where the normal majority is nearly 7,000. It looks like a Democratic victory, and while we were not able to elect our candidate against such overwhelming odds it is substantially a repetition of what occurred in the Thirty-seventh Congress District.

"Mr. Thomas and his Republican creators canvassed the district carefully, held political meetings in many of the towns, and made the strongest fight they possibly could, while Mr. Nash, the Democratic nominee, did not leave his store, but attended strictly to his business from the time of his nomination until the votes were counted.

"I believe we would have won had we made a canvass of Otsego and Madison Counties as Prof. Thomas did."

Stephen Ryan, Democratic State Committeeman, said:

"The result of the election in Chenango County confirms the prediction I made soon after Gov. Hughes called a special election. At that time I said I believed Chenango County was not Republican if money was not used in the election. In this election the Democrats did not use one cent of money, and I am convinced that very little money was used by the Republicans. Nash carried the county by 600.

"In Otsego County the newspapers, with the exception of one small weekly, are absolutely under the control of the Republican Party.

"The campaign was short and the real issue was not presented to the voter. However, it is gratifying to know that in a district which is normally 7,000 Republican Prof. Thomas, backed by the power of the strongest organization in the county, has carried the district by only 1,500."

James P. Hill, Republican County Chairman, said:

"Senator-elect Thomas carried Chenango County outside of the Village of Norwich, which village is the home of Mr. Nash, the Democratic candidate. The vote in Norwich in favor of Mr. Nash had no political significance, being a tribute which the people of that village paid to a neighbor."

REPORT TO GAYNOR ACCUSES GRESSER

Charges Him with Levying on Queens Employes for His Campaign.

$50 CHECK IN QUESTION, TOO

Building Superintendent Berger Resigns His Place—More Evidence for the Mayor.

Commissioner of Accounts Raymond B. Fosdick sent to Mayor Gaynor yesterday the first of a series of preliminary reports on conditions in Queens County. The report concerns itself with two accusations against Borough President Lawrence Gresser, reproducing testimony as to soliciting campaign contributions from city employes in violation of Section 395 of the City Charter, and as to diverting from the public funds a chek for $50 paid in for sewer inspection that was never actually performed.

Mr. Gresser was a witness in his own behalf before Commissioner Fosdick late yesterday afternoon. He denied under oath having ever solicited campaign funds as charged, or having received the $50 check from Joseph Nelson, until recently chief clerk in the Department of Sewers.

"A warrant for President Gresser's arrest to test this evidence has not yet been asked for," said Commissioner Fosdick last night, "although it may seem from my preliminary report that cause for an action lies in it against him. To-day I shall submit another report which will contain either cumulative or corroborative evidence. At present the case stands as a matter in which President Gresser's word is matched against that of a number of the department employes who have served under him. To-day's evidence ought to throw much more light on the situation."

To-day should be the most interesting for the perturbed borough. To start the day the Borough President is expected to throw overboard one more of his immediate official family. Carl Berger, Superintendent of the Building Bureau, resigned last night, and it was said the announcement of his resignation would be made in Borough Hall this morning, together with an announcement of its acceptance by President Gresser.

Berger is the man against whom charges were filed with Gov. Hughes that in collusion with his brother, Louis Berger, he owned and operated a "plans and specification trust," to which builders either had to pay tribute or be harassed in building operations by inspectors sent out for that purpose from Borough Hall.

A Promise Not Kept.

After his record in connection with the compulsory sale to builders of the Tilly Vent, through a company in which his brother was one of the largest stockholders, had been published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, a week ago, Mr. Gresser promised that he would hold an immediate investigation. The investigation had not been held up to last night, although there were informal meetings between the accused official and the Borough President, and the decision to hand in a resignation and to accept it was mutually made.

Besides the formal announcement in regard to the resignation of Supt. Berger, another matter which will keep Queens citizens on edge to-day is the final report of the Grand Jury. The report is freighted with serious consequences for District Attorney De Witt, as it has been repeatedly charged that it was a "loaded" Grand Jury, with a majority of its members working "within the graft ring," and chosen to serve only because they could be depended upon to make no stir beneath the surface of Queens affairs.

Urgent telegrams were sent on Wednesday to Gov. Hughes by Dr. William F. Mathews and others of the Citizens' Committee that went to Albany several weeks ago, asking him to have a representative present when the Grand Jury reports to Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court this morning. The reason for the request was stated in the telegram as being a desire to have the Governor inform himself on the character of the Grand Jury's investigations as judged by the results accomplished.

In Queens it is generally believed that on the nature of to-day's Grand Jury report hinges the matter of having Queens affairs taken in hand by a representative of the Governor, working through a special Grand Jury in connection with Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick.

One indictment is expected, based on the evidence given by William F. Rozelle in connection with the cashing of a pay check due him on a forged indorsement. Several others also, it is expected, will be handed up.

The report that President Gresser had been sent for by Commissioner Fosdick spread through Queens County last night and electrified every village in which it was heard. The story had it that Mr. Gresser was not subpoenaed but was asked by telephone to come over to Manhattan.

The Fosdick Report.

The report concerning his case, which was filed with Mayor Gaynor, was as follows:

"Hon. William J. Gaynor, Mayor.

"Sir: While our investigation of the accounts and methods of the office of the President of the Borough of Queens is by no means completed, a situation of so serious a nature has arisen that it is deemed advisable to call it immediately to your attention.

"Section 395 of the charter provides that whenever a sewer is constructed by private property owners a permit must first be obtained from the Bureau of Sewers, after plans and specifications of the proposed sewer and a copy of the contract have been filed, showing conformity to the general plan for the construction of public sewers in the city.

"The same section makes provision that a satisfactory guarantee shall be made to the Borough President for the payment of the necessary expense incurred in the supervision of the construction of the sewer. In accordance with this provision it is customary for the applicant for the permit to deposit a check with the Sewer Bureau for an amount which it is estimated will pay the salaries of such inspectors as may be necessary to protect the interests of the city during the time of construction.

"In some cases the inspectors, after appointment by the Borough President, are paid directly by the contractor, but in most instances they receive their remuneration through the Bureau of Sewers. The average rate of pay for the inspector is $4 a day. The position is not covered by civil service regulations.

An Uninspected Sewer.

"On Oct. 19, 1909, Frank J. Carberry, a plumber living at 139 Webster Avenue, Glendale, Borough of Queens, applied to the Bureau of Sewers for a permit to BRITISH BUDGET IS PASSED.

Lords Agree to It Without a Division—Lansdowne Denounces Government.

LONDON, April 28.—In a quiet session lasting two and a half hours this evening, the House of Lords passed without a division the final stages of the Finance bill, which now awaits only the royal assent.

There were few Peeresses in the gallery, and there was but a small attendance of Peers.

Lord Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition, denounced the Government's capitulation to the Irish members as an act worthy of Morocco or Somaliland.

NICARAGUAN BATTLE NEAR.

Expectation That Bluefields and Rama Will Be Attacked Simultaneously.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, April 28.—It is expected that a decisive engagement between the Government forces, estimated at 1,800 men, and the combined armies of the rebels, 2,500 strong, will take place before Bluefields within the next eight days.

The insurgents declare that the provisional capital is impregnable and appear anxious to fight. The coming battle will probably put an end to the war.

It is expected that Bluefields and Rama will be attacked simultaneously by the Government troops, which are approaching.

The revolutionary forces are made up of 1,000 men under Gen. Mena at Rama, 1,000 under Gens. Chamorra, Zeledon, and Massiz at Bluefields, and 500 reserves at the capital under Gen. Estrada.

Gen. Lara commands 1,200 of the Government forces and 600 men are led by Gen. Chavarria.

Gen. Estrada practically guarantees the safety of American interests.

POSTAL RAISES WAGES.

Its Operators to Get from 5 to 25 Per Cent. More from June 1.

The Postal Telegraph Cable Company announced last night that on June 1 it will make substantial increases in the wages of its telegraph operators in all important offices of its system. These offices are to be classified according to their comparative importance.

The increases will be selective, and will run from 5—and in some cases as high as 25—per cent.

Careful inquiry is to be made as to the merits of each individual operator, his years of service, experience, and special fitness.

Efficient and deserving operators are to receive pay commensurate with the value of the work they are able to perform, while less experienced and new operators will be offered greater opportunity to demonstrate their fitness for more pay or promotion.

"It is the company's intention, by continued fair dealing with employes, to retain and attract to its service the most skillful and reliable operators," said Vice President and General Manager Edward J. Nally in commenting on the announcement.

SEEKS SMUGGLERS, FINDS WIFE

Treasury Agent, Abroad on a Secret Mission, Meets Bride in Paris.

A chance meeting in Paris three months ago led to the marriage of C. C. Wall, Special Treasury Agent, who returned yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic. Four months ago Mr. Wall went abroad. On his return yesterday he surprised his friends by introducing them to his bride of ten days, an American woman, who is completing a two years' journey around the world.

Mr. Wall went to the other side to investigate conditions in Continental cities bearing upon smuggling here. Three months ago he met Gertrude Dana of Pasadena, Cal., who was homeward bound.

It was not their first meeting, Mr. Wall admitted. He met her some years ago in this city. Their acquaintance was a casual one. In Paris, where visiting Americans meet at some time or other, Mr. Wall one day met Miss Dana. They met frequently in the French capital, and some weeks later when Miss Dana started for Edinburgh she had promised to be Mrs. Wall.

At the completion of his business Mr. Wall started for Scotland, and there they were married. After the ceremony they returned to Southampton, where they took the Adriatic.

Mrs. Wall is well known socially both in California and New York. She is a great-great-granddaughter of Lord Howe. Her girlhood was spent in California. She visited New York for a time and then started on her world trip.

DENIES MALICE TOWARD HYDE.

Hoped Investigation Would Clear Him, Paxton Testifies in Trial.

KANSAS CITY, April 28.—It was with the hope that Dr. B. C. Hyde would be purged of all suspicion that John G. Paxton, as the personal representative of Mrs. Logan O. Swope, began the investigation of the Swope tragedies, Paxton testified to-day in the trial of Dr. Hyde for the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope.

Almost the entire afternoon session of the court was devoted by the attorneys to showing whether Mr. Paxton harbored any malice against Dr. Hyde when he began his investigation. Mr. Paxton disclaimed that he did.

Hugo Brecklein, the druggist, was recalled to the stand to-day. Prosecutor Conkling asked him to put some wet cyanide on his hands. This, it was explained, was for the purpose of extending the evidence of Miss Lou E. Van Nuys, a nurse, who testified yesterday that she smelled cyanide on the hands of Thomas H. Swope, Jr., on Dec. 18, after he had handled some capsules dropped by Dr. Hyde.

Miss Van Nuys was summoned and she smelled the poison on Mr. Brecklein's hands. She said it was the same odor that emanated from the hands of Mr. Swope.

Thomas H. Swope, Jr., the next witness, said:

"On Dec. 18, while walking down Pleasant Street, in Independence, I saw Dr. Hyde approaching. A block from me he crossed the street. Just after he stepped off the sidewalk he dropped something and stepped on it. A second time he repeated the action.

"When he passed on I went to the point where the articles had been dropped and found a broken capsule in the snow. I put it in my pocket. Going home, I showed the capsule to Miss Van Nuys and my mother. I noticed a peculiar smell about my hands. It was liked burned almonds. Miss Van Nuys smelled them when I called her attention to it.

"Three or four weeks later I recalled that I had smelled the odor before—it was that of cyanide of potassium."

Mr. Swope, who worked in a mine in Tonopah, Nev., in 1907, and lost his right arm there, testified that he used cyanide in testing gold and was familiar with its odor.

Accompanied by Mr. Paxton, Mr. Swope said, he returned to the place where the capsules were dropped and there found fragments from three capsules. The fragments were scraped up and placed in an envelope. Mr. Paxton took the capsules to Chicago, and scientists reported that there was cyanide in them.

Mr. Paxton, in his testimony, corroborated these statements.

GAYNOR CALLS HEARST FORGER

UPROAR AT A. P. DINNER

PLAIN SPEECH INVITED

And the Mayor Responded in Unsparing Terms—He Commends Honest Newspaper Effort.

To the surprise of many of the 700 persons at the annual dinner of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, Mayor Gaynor, the guest of honor and first speaker, denounced W. R. Hearst as guilty in his principal newspaper here of "two State Prison felonies, namely forgery and falsification of a public document."

The Mayor supported the charge by exhibiting the illustration printed recently in The American of the $48,000 draft paid to Daniel F. Cohalan, legal adviser of Charles F. Murphy, as a counsel fee in franchise tax cases, with the date left blank; and a photograph of the document bearing the date Dec. 31, 1909, showing that the draft was authorized and issued under the McClellan administration.

"The headlines and accompanying article assert," said the Mayor, slowly and impressively, "that I fixed the award or amount and paid it, and this draft on the Treasury is printed to prove it."

Waving the fac simile of the draft as published in The American above the table so that all near by could see it, he then declared that he had been assured that the dates had been purposely cut out of the plates, and pointed out in the original draft that it bore the date more distinctly than any other feature.

Disorder After the Speech.

The Mayor had prefaced his speech with the statement that he had been told to speak "plainly and freely" on the subject allotted to him, "The Press in Its Relation to Public Officials." "That is what you want," he added. He went on to say that he felt for that reason that he was justified in taking up this matter, and that his doing so would "promote a proper understanding and do good." Nevertheless, although the speech was heard without demonstration to the end, at the close pandemonium broke loose.

Some of the diners cheered the Mayor, some others evidently resented his making the charge at such a time, and the rest were busy discussing Mr. Gaynor's strong words with their neighbors. In the midst of the uproar, while the toastmaster, N. C. Wright, editor of the Toledo Blade, rapped for order, the stalwart figure of Thomas T. Williams, publisher of The Evening Journal, the Hearst evening newspaper, and a member of the Publishers' Association, rose, and making his way toward the speaker's chair clamored to be heard. Many recognized him and at once surmised that he intended to reply to the Mayor, but in what manner they did not know. There were cries of "No! No!"

Toastmaster Wright looked to the far end of the room as if to avoid recognizing Mr. Williams, whose voice was quickly drowned in calls of "Sit down!" "Put him out!"

But Mr. Williams would not sit down, nor would he be silent, but kept demanding, as a member of the publishers' body, to be heard. A group of diners sang out at the top of their voices:

"Three cheers for our honored Mayor!"

They were given with the greatest enthusiasm by apparently every one in the room, Mr. Williams, who stood with arms folded, excepted.

"You hear that?" said Mr. Wright to Williams. "You had better sit down."

"I will not sit down," said Mr. Williams, "until I can say twenty words."

Shouted to Put Williams Out.

"Put him out," the cries arose again, more insistent than ever.

"You can put me out," shouted Mr. Williams to the guests, "but you'll be a fine lot of brave fellows."

Then, turning to Mayor Gaynor, who had sat through the disturbance almost motionless and wholly unperturbed, with a faint smile on his lips, Mr. Williams shook his forefinger across the table, saying loudly:

"Are you afraid to hear two words from me? You are a brave man, aren't you?"

The Mayor took no notice of him whatever. Meantime several hotel attendants ran for the house detective, bringing him in. When Williams saw this man he shouted to Toastmaster Wright:

"Did you give the order to put me out?" Then, wheeling on the detective, he said, "Keep your hands off me."

A hurried consultation was held by Mr. Wright and others, including Herman Ridder, who sat next to Mayor Gaynor, and to whom the Mayor was seen to make some remark not heard by the rest. Mr. Williams by that time had mounted the table at which the official stenographers sat, and various persons tried first to quiet both him and the hissing audience, while they learned the nature of what he wanted to say.

Mr. Williams, speaking to one of these, said he was Mr. Hearst's friend, and that as Mr. Hearst was not present, he wanted to tell the editors and publishers that Mr. Hearst would reply at the proper time and in the proper manner. In a moment in which there was comparative quiet, a proposal that he should be allowed to do this was submitted to the audience, but it was loudly negatived. Mr. Williams almost immediately left the room, saying to the reporters as he passed them that Mayor Gaynor could not be attacked, as he was a guest of a body of which he, Mr. Williams, was a member.

It was announced early this morning at the office of The New York American that no statement in connection with Mayor Gaynor's remarks concerning Mr. Hearst would be given out at this time.

The Mayor's Speech.

This was Mayor Gaynor's speech:

and told me to speak plainly and freely; that that is what you want; that your object in associating together is to improve the press.

"Those having power should exercise it justly, kindly, and moderately. That makes their acts all the more effective. I measure my words in saying your power for good is immense. Your power for evil is not as great as some may think. That is especially so when any of you deliberately try to do evil by falsehood or mere unnecessary scandal. But I shall not stray into the general subject, but keep to the text which you have given me. The public official who tries his best to do right, and who knows how to do right—for both of these essential things do not always exist in the same public official—cannot be hurt by you. Some may abuse him, even lie and forge about him, but they are powerless, absolutely powerless, to hurt him. You can neither make nor unmake an honest and competent official.

"The press, as a whole, is just to public officials. I cantestify to that, for I have been in public life many years, and at 18 was myself a newspaper man. When the election is over, its wholesome wish is to see that the one who is elteced gives good government and to help him to do so. In that just frame of mind you often forbear much. This is true of all honest and unselfish publishers and editors. But if a publisher or editor be himself a perennial office seeker, as sometimes happens, he may desire to assassinate every one whom he thinks is in his way, and then, alas! what a disgrace he brings upon journalism!

"It is painful to mention such exceptions, because they are rare, and to speak of their acts, but we should not shrink from doing it in a kindly spirit and for the sake of good. You expect me to be plain and not abate a jot or tittle. A newspaper proprietor or editor who is simply bent on cutting throats is an awful spectacle—the most awful in the world. In no nook or corner of his head or heart is there the slightest sense of truth or justice. We may pity him, but cannot, in the interests of public morality and decency, remain silent about him.

Charges Hearst with Forgery.

"Let me illustrate by mentioning one thing out of many. As late as the 15th of this month W. R. Hearst printed in his principal newspaper here the fac simile of a draft on the treasury of this city for $48,000, with headlines and an article attributing such draft and the expenditure to the present Mayor of this city. The headlines and article assert that I fixed the award and amount and paid it, and the draft of the treasury is printed to prove it. But when you look at the draft as given in the article—but how few people scrutinized it that closely—you perceive that the date of it is left blank. I have brought it here as printed in this newspaper to show it to you, and here it is.

"When you look at the original draft, which I have also brought here for you to see, you see the date of it at the top in large letters and figures is 'Dec. 31, 1909,' which is before the present City Government came in. When you examine the said original further, you see that it also bears plainly the date when the audited voucher, which established the claim as a legal liability of the city, was recorded in the Controller's office, namely 'Dec. 29, 1909.' This date is also omitted in the newspaper copy, as you perceive.

"In plain words, two State prison felonies, namely forgery and falsification of a public document, were committed in the eagerness of this publisher and editor to wrong the Mayor of the City of New York. In a day or two afterward, when he had heard rumors that members of the Grand Jury were taking notice of the matter, he published as an excuse that the dates were so faint in the original draft that the photograph did not reproduce them. Now, just look at this original draft again. The date at the top, as you see, is in larger and more pronounced letters and figures than any other part of the draft. I had the draft photographed as a test that the dates would take like all the rest, and here is the photograph. You see that shows the dates as plainly, to say the least, as any other part of the draft.

Voucher Dates Cut Out, He Says.

"But if it were true that Mr. Hearst's photographic apparatus would not produce the dates, why should he print the draft without the dates? I ask any honest man here. Why did he not put them in in some way? The truth is, I am assured, that the dates were actually cut out of the plate with a routing machine. An inspection of the draft as falsely printed, also shows that to be the case, as you see in respect of the date of Dec. 29.

"Now, I do not call your attention to this low crime because it annoyed or embittered me in any way. A public official has to be patient, and I hope I am patient. The newspapers of this man had done as bad or worse to me and others, but it was borne in silence, except that I spoke on the criminal aspect of such things before the bench and bar at the dinner they gave me in December last, because I thought it due that some one should do so for the sake of society and of the decent and honest newspapers in this city.

"I need not say to you that the indebtedness for which this draft was drawn was incurred during several years before the present members of the City Government were elected, and that it was audited and made a fixed and legal obligation of the city before we took office, instead of any of us 'fixing the award,' as this article says.

"Probably I never would have seen the publication of this draft had not an official brought it to me last Friday and pointed out the crime to me, and said I ought to take some notice of the materr. I mention the matter to you because right here is where it should be mentioned. And let me add that it concerns you, the publishers and editors of the decent newspapers, far more than it concerns me. If you can stand such things in your great profession, the rest of us can stand it, or will try to stand it, until the hour arrives when we shall make up our minds to utterly destroy it, and take effective measures to that end. It is high time that these forgers and libelers were in State prison, and the time is not far distant when some of them will be there.

"And just think of a man who is capable of doing things like this being possessed of the notion that he is fit to hold any office from Mayor to President of the United States. Morally speaking, his mind must be a howling wilderness. Never will the voters anywhere put such a man in office. Now, I feel that I am entirely right in mentioning this matter to you, and that it will promote a proper understanding and do good. We have stood it here in New York City for a long time, and the respectable editors and publishers of this city want of all things to get rid of it, and I know it. They know that the perpetuity of our institutions depends more on a free and honest press than on all else combined.

Criticism of the News Colnmns.

"The relation of public officials and the press should be one of good-will on both sides. Public officials can attest that the press of the country is in the hands of gentlemen of education and discretion of the highest order.

"I feel averse to entering upon any suggestion or advice. I might say, nevertheless, that some of us think that journalism has gone much astray in recent years in some fundamental respects. Instead of confining themselves to mere statement of fact, those who write the news color the narrative with their conclusions and expressions of opinion. Would it not be better that all expressions of opinion and conclusions should be left to the editorial columns? I feel certain that a return to a lean statement of the facts in the news columns, without adjectives or statements of conclusions, would be gratifying to all intelligent readers.

"Of some looseness and exaggeration which has grown up in recent years, following a pernicious example, no one needs to speak, for unless all signs fail it has reached its limit. The day now seems to be right ahead and in sight when the well-written and truthful, but nevertheless animated and sprightly, newspaper will be the one in demand. Might I mention also that sometimes newspapers whose news columns give a correct narrative of a matter next day have an editorial on the subject, but based on the false headlines or narratives of some other newspapers instead of on their own truthful account, which is pretyt hard on their own people. But, on the whole, the editorial work of the newspapers here in New York City and throughout the country is very able and dioscriminating.

"I am sure we all welcome Mr. Stone of the Associated Press back from Asia, reminding us in wise words that they have there a civilization more than a thousand years older than our own, and that if we want peace with them the time has arrived when we must stop taunting them as uncivilized. I was glad to read his message on the Eastern situation. We have already stopped doing that in the case of Japan, but only after she had recourse to cannon as large and gunpowder as strong as our own. Let us not wait for that in the case of China, but be just to her as a matter of Christian principle and good will."

The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, who followed Mayor Gaynor, made no direct reference to the Mayor's attack on Mr. Hearst, but spoke in so happy and humorous a vein that he soon had the audience in good temper again. There was a hearty laugh when he said:

"They say that the wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the wicked run a little faster when Mayor Gaynor is after them."

Dr. Hillis spoke on Mark Twain and the influence of the newspaper writer upon literature, saying that Mark Twain was a newspaper man, and every newspaper man could claim the kinship of brother to him.

Before introducing President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton Toastmaster Wright said for the life of him he could not tell whether the next Democratic candidate for the Presidency would come from New York or from New Jersey.

Speaking on "The Power of the Editorial" President Wilson said in part:

President Wilson's Speech.

"We have witnessed in our day an extraordinary multiplication of journals of all sorts and an extraordinary increase in the amount of printed matter of every kind. Printing has become so cheap that it has become almost a commonplace medium of speech. There was a time when anything we saw in print seemed very serious and deliberate. It had an extraordinary adventitious dignity, and we attached to it a corresponding weight and significance. Journals were comparatively few in number. The utterances of their editors and contributors attracted a great deal of attention, and there was much more time than there is now to give them a deliberate and serious reading. But in our own time there has been an unmistakable falling off in the influence of printed opinion. The power of the editorial is certainly not what it once was.

"The telegraph and the telephone, moreover, have drawn the world together into something like a single community. It is just as easy and natural to read the news of yesterday from Rome as the news of yesterday from the neighboring town. And with the news comes the comment, comment from every quarter, not only from our neighbors but from editors and correspondents all over the world. And so what we read begins to have for us only the significance of what we hear. Printed opinions are coming to take their rank with casual spoken opinions, and editorial comment has very little more weight than conversational comment.

"A very interesting thing has happened, therefore, involving an entirely new assessment of what we read. We are beginning to judge what we read as we judge what we hear, by the character of the person who utters it. It is becoming a matter of common knowledge who own certain journals, for example, and that the opinions of those journals are the opinions of the owners, that they may not be at all the individual opinions of the editor who penned them. In other instances the whole country knows the character and antecedents of the chief editorial editor of a particular paper. If his character is high, his opinions carry great weight. If it is not, they are merely among the negligible comments of the day.

"The same thing is going on, therefore, in respect of our attitude toward what we read that is going on upon so wide a scale and at so tremendous a pace with regard to our attitude toward public affairs. We are engaged in nothing less than a grand reassessment of character and motive. The close contacts of the world are bringing men's individualities clearly into view. The court of public opinion has direct sight of the men whom it is assessing, to whom it is according its praise or its blame, its faith or its condemnation. Back of everything lies a man and a motive, and it is to that our judgment is penetrating. It goes very far beneath the surface."

George Ade, hailed as one of the eight living American humorists, spoke last. Smiles broadened as his tall figure rose higher and higher behind the guest table. He spoke on "Helping the Editor," paying his respects meantime to The Associated Press, which, he said, was "respected but never featured."

"I respect the 'A. P.' because it has nothing to do with the Sunday supplement. The 'A. P.' never sent in a heavy editorial at 10 P. M. and marked it 'must.' It never ordered pictures to go with the stuff and it never came around the next day to inquire why he had not been played up. The 'A. P.' bears the same relations to the modern American newspaper that the solid business man does to the American family. It stands in the background, provides the wherewithal, keeps out of the spotlight, takes all of the blame, and gets mighty little glory. Respected but not featured on the front page. When there is a grand jubilee, father and the 'A. P.' are behind the potted palms with the orchestra checking up the expenses.

"I am glad to be here for several reasons. Now that you may have forgotten what you paid for it, I am willing to meet the gentlemen who bought my merchandise. I sold you an assortment of capital letters and a job lot of Chicago vernacular, and you thought you were getting a new brand of humor. Very often I would weaken when it came time to sign the vouchers. Then I would read some of the other syndicate stuff and take courage.

"Every man who has not tried it thinks that he can edit a newspaper, write a comic opera, and manage a hotel. I still believe that I know a lot about the hotel business.

"If you hear a man raving about the golden age of American journalism when each editor exercised an individual influence and led the way through the darkness with a flaming torch above his head, let it go at that. Don't take the trouble to examine the files of that wonderful period, or you may be discouraged over your present efforts. I plead for a return of those heroic days, when every editorial was a trumpet blast and every paragraph was a firecracker. We used to go to press at 2 o'clock, and by 4 o'clock the whole population would be on the streets waiting for the sounds of assault and battery. The old-time editor, the one we all read about, who stamped his individuality on every issue of his paper and didn't bother about the press work—do you remember what he called a man if he didn't care much for him? He didn't call him a mollycoddle, or an insurgent, or a malefactor, or an undesirable. He said that the man was a poltroon, a hell-hound, a pusillanimous liar, an unmitigated horsethief, a jackal, a marplot, a caitiff, a reptile, a viper, a cur, and a whelp. Here are a lot of valuable and expressive words that are gradually being eliminated from our vocabulary, because the editors of today, steeped in commercialism, have abandoned the methods of Wilbur F. Storey and accepted the leadership of Edward W. Bok.

"I read not long ago that down in Brown County, Indiana, the front room of the county poor house, a large, cheerful apartment with southern exposure and plants in the windows, is occupied by a man who for many years conducted a newspaper that pleased everybody. On the other hand, it's hard to be successful without disappointing some of your best friends. So if you can't please all your critics, do the next best thing, and please your subscribers."

Cheers for Roosevelt's Message.

Toastmaster Wright, in his introductory speech on receiving the gavel from Mr. Ridder, said that whatever a toastmaster might talk on he must not talk on indefinitely. Then he turned to President Noyes of the Associated Press, asking him if he did not have a message he would like to read.

Mr. Noyes responded with this message from Col. Roosevelt:

> I send you my hearty regards. It is unnecessary to say anything about the enormous power of the press, the wise air whereof is not only an essential for the Nation, but an essential to the perpetuity of the press itself. With best wishes to bility of using that power aright, I am, yours sincerely,
>
> THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Cheers came from every table as Col. Roosevelt's message was read, and as they subsided a male quartet sang this burlesque on "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?"

Has anybody here seen Teddy?
T-E-double-D-Y.
Has anybody here seen Teddy?
Have you seen him smile?
Sure, his hair is red, his taste is true,
He's a news man through and through—
Has anybody here seen Teddy,
Teddy of the matchless style?

Much applause greeted ex-President Roosevelt's words, and three cheers were given for him.

Among those at the guest table were Charles H. Hyde, William Hester, Robert Adamson, Cyrus Curtis, Robert C. Morris, S. Edward Young, Woodrow Wilson, Victor Lawson, Newell Dwight Hillis, Frank B. Noyes, N. C. Wright, (toastmaster,) Herman Ridder, William J. Gaynor, Melville E. Stone, George Ade, M. H. De Young, Joseph W. Bailey, W. R. Nelson, Charles W. Knapp, A. T. Bletchen, and H. W. Scott.

MESSAGES FROM NOTABLES.

Kings, Presidents, and Ministers Cable Greetings to Editors Here.

An interesting feature of The Associated Press dinner last night was the receipt of some twenty-five or thirty cablegrams of congratulation from all parts of the world. These messages were sent by monarchs, Presidents of Republics, Prime Ministers, and prominent statesmen, and expressed the senders' appreciation of the American press. The messages were cabled to New York and copied in the dining room from a telegraph wire looped up with the main submarine cables reaching the city. They were read as fast as received by the toastmaster, and then displayed to the assembled guests on cardboard sheets fifteen feet wide and four feet deep, hung on one side of the hall. Some of the messages were:

HISTORY OF THE CHARGE.

Check Which Hearst Published Was Issued Under McClellan.

The charge against the present administration by The American, which provoked Mayor Gaynor's attack upon its editor at the Associated Press dinner last night, was published on the morning of April 15. The paper then asserted that "one of the first acts of the new administration was to sanction the payment of $48,000 as counsel fee to Daniel F. Cohalan, Charles F. Murphy's legal adviser and grand sachem of Tammany Hall." With the charges were published what purported to be fac similes of the check and the receipt for it, with the dates blank. This money, it was alleged, had been paid as a fee for Mr. Cohalan's work as Special Deputy Attorney General in charge of franchise tax cases.

Mr. Cohalan was appointed to this office in February, 1907, by Attorney General Jackson, who was elected on the Hearst ticket. The check was actually cashed by him after the new administration had come in, and it came out immediately that the warrant for the money had been issued and approved by the McClellan administration just before its term of office expired. The payment of the money after that was merely the carrying out of routine procedure without Mayor Gaynor, Controller Prendergast, or City Chamberlain Hyde knowing anything about it.

Mr. Cohalan's first bill was for $53,000 as compensation for the services of himself and three assistants for two years. Controller Metz reduced it to $48,000, and on Dec 13 Assistant Corporation Counsel Sterling approved it. The voucher for that amount was made on Dec. 28, and the warrant on the City Chamberlain's office was drawn and signed by Assistant Deputy Controller Smith and one of the bond and warrant clerks in Mayor McClellan's office on Dec. 31.

The matter then went over till after the change of administration, and the warrant went to Deputy Chamberlain Walsh. On Jan. 4 he paid the money out in the ordinary course of business without City Chamberlain Hyde ever even seeing the papers.

The fact that payment was authorized by the last administration and that the subsequent steps were merely office routine was shown by the fact that the date on the warrant was Dec. 31. But the alleged fac similes of the warrant published by The American did not bear the date. This fact aroused marked criticism, and a few days later The American published as the explanation of this omission the alleged fact that the photographic apparatus used had failed to reproduce the date.

Comstock Raids Postcard Peddlers.

Anthony Comstock went on a hunt last night for peddlers of obscene postal cards and pictures. At Fifteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, Comstock says he bought from Simon Calev of 30 St. Mark's Place a few pictures. Then Calev was arrested. On the way to the station, at Seventeenth Street and Sixth Avenue, Comstock bought several postcards, he says, and then caused the arrest of Peter Sirvopoulous of 420 East Seventeenth Street.

Steel Foundries Pays a Dividend.

The American Steel Foundries Company declared an initial dividend yesterday on the $17,184,000 capital stock of the reorganized corporation. It was at the rate of 5 per cent. It is said 4 per cent. was favored by some of the Directors and 6 per cent. by others, the rate declared being in the nature of a compromise.

BLAMES ALDRICH IN PAPER TROUBLES

Senator Disregarded Newspapers to Aid the Trust, Norris Tells Publishers.

AMERICAN MILLS MENACED

International Paper Co. Is Responsible for Complication with Quebec, He Declares at Publishers' Convention.

Practically the entire morning was given yesterday by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, now in convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, to receiving and discussing the annual report of John Norris, Chairman of the Association's Committee on Paper.

The subject of white paper was generally regarded by the publishers as one of the most important to be considered at this meeting. The attendance of members was large, and Mr. Norris's statement of the conditions in the white paper market and of the efforts of his committee to lessen existing evils received close attention.

His report was not regarded, however, as altogether encouraging, for it declared that prices for certain classes of news print paper had greatly advanced in the last few weeks, and that very unsettled labor conditions existed in some of the paper manufactories.

Mr. Norris said in part:

> A strike in the mills of the International Paper Company has disturbed market conditions, and reduced output. Prices of news print paper for transient needs have advanced approximately $9 a ton within the last five weeks. Publishers are bearing the burden of this industrial warfare. The paper mills that are not affected by the strike have prevented a shortage in stock by utilizing their previously unused capacity. They have taken up all the slack there was in the trade. New production to the extent of 320 tons a day is coming upon the market. The very considerable advance in price has also diverted some paper machines from other kinds of paper to news print paper. Some Canadian mills are paying the regular tariff of $3.75 per ton, and the countervailing duty of 35 cents per ton, and the retaliatory duty of $2 per ton additional, a total of $6.10 per ton in tariff dues for admission to the American market, in order that they might profit by this dispute of the International Paper Company with its employes. There is a report of an importation of news print paper by publishers from Germany to relieve this market. Paper is also coming from Norway.

Both Senator Aldrich and the International Paper Company come in for censure by Mr. Norris in his discussion of the tariff and Canada. Mr. Aldrich is accused of disregarding the interests of the newspapers and their many employes to obey suggestions from the paper manufacturers, while the latter are charged with the responsibility for a condition which menaces American print paper mills. In this connection, Mr. Norris said:

> In addition to the strike disturbance the International Paper Company is responsible for an ugly complication with the Province of Quebec, which menaces American print paper mills. One-half of the news print paper produced in the United States is made from Canadian pulp wood. Twenty-three important print paper mills depend upon the Province of Quebec for their supply. The timber rights of more than 12,000 square miles of Crown lands in that province are owned by American paper mills. The International Paper Company has tied up a large sum, possibly $7,000,000, in Canadian woodlands, which investment was predicated upon a pledge made by Quebec's former Premier in September, 1900, that the province would not increase its stumpage dues for a period of ten years. That time limit expires Sept. 1, 1910.
> The International Paper Company, with full knowledge of that time limit, has built wood preparing plants in Canada. It has dammed and improved Canadian rivers to increase its timber output. It has expended vast sums in timber tracts, while adding only two machines to its paper making equipment in the United States in a period of twelve years. The money that should have gone into the utilization of 194,000 undeveloped horse power on American water courses has been laid out by it in a speculation in Canadian timber areas. It has not limited itself to its needs. It has acquired rights to woodlands that cannot be utilized by it within fifty years. It acquired three times the timber area that would be necessary for a perpetual supply of its present needs. Ordinarily such a concern should be disposed to conserve its own interests and those of its customers by promoting reciprocal trade relations with Canada. It took the opposite course and precipitated an international snarl.

Mr. Norris was able to hold out little hope of an extrication from the present situation by the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada, saying:

> President Taft and the Canadian authorities have arranged to confer soon upon the adjustment of trade relations between the two countries, and it is barely possible that some sort of a reciprocity arrangement may be made in the Summer for ratification by Congress next Winter. Meanwhile, vast interests are held in suspense. The cost of paper to publishers, involving an outlay of approximately $50,000,000 per annum, is left to the uncertain decision of special interests in Congress. The American Newspaper Publishers' Association should urge prompt action in removing this menace. A delay until next Winter will bring millions of loss to newspapers. The matter should be settled now.

Mr. Norris presented these recommendations to the publishers, which, with his entire report, were unanimously adopted:

> To urge the adoption of the Mann bill, (H. R. 12,314,) "to encourage and promote commerce between the United States and the Dominion of Canada."
>
> To ask the President to give print paper consumers access to the paper mill reports of daily production, daily shipment, and stock on hand, in order that an open market may be promoted.
> The Paper Committee recommends the adoption of the form of uniform contract submitted by it. It suggests that members insist upon a weight basis of 30 pounds for 500 sheets measuring 24 by 36 inches; that the yardage be indicated on each roll that standard colors be adopted when approved by the Board of Directors, and that standards, when approved by the Board of Directors, be established for effective and economical wrapping of paper rolls.

One of the most pleasing features of the convention so far was the appearance before the publishers in the afternoon of the union leaders of the printers, stereotypers, and mailers employed by the newspapers of the country. Presidents James M. Lynch of the International Typographical Union, J. J. Freel of the International Stereotypers Union, and Charles Smith of the International Mailers' Union spoke of the cordial relations existing between their organizations and the publishers, and expressed the hope and confidence that they would continue.

The convention will close to-day with two sessions.

SAVE CONVICT FROM MOB.

Rioters Sought to Lynch Negro Sentenced for Brutal Crime.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., April 28.—Under a heavy military guard Harvey Harris, a negro, who was to-day convicted of assault upon a white woman of this county and sentenced to die on the gallows May 20, was transferred to Macon by special train this afternoon. This action was taken after a riotous day.

A determined body of 2,000 men and boys had one rather serious encounter with the Thomasville troops this morning. Following this clash the Governor ordered the companies at Albany and Valdosta to proceed here on special trains. With the arrival of these companies the mob spirit gradually died down.

BALLINGER ON STAND TO-DAY.

Secretary to Testify in Regard to Pinchot-Glavis Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior, will go upon the witness stand to-morrow morning before the Special Senate and House Committee which is investigating his department, to tell his side of the conservation controversy, and answer the charges, accusations, and insinuations which have been made against him by L. R. Glavis, Gifford Pinchot, and the others who have testified in the case.

For the first time since the hearings have been in progress during the past three months, Mr. Ballinger was a spectator in the committee room this afternoon. He came in unannounced about an hour before the adjournment and quietly took a seat beside Mr. Vertress, his counsel in chief, and listened attentively to the cross-examination of George Otis Smith, Director of the Geological Survey. Mr. Ballinger had intended going upon the stand this afternoon. The adjournment hour had been passed, however, when the cross-examination of Mr. Smith was concluded.

The chief feature of to-day's proceedings was the action of the committee in refusing to grant the request of Attorney Brandeis representing L. R. Glavis that Attorney General Wickersham be called upon to transmit to the committee all papers and letters bearing upon the report which he prepared summarizing the Glavis charges and defending Secretary Ballinger. Mr. Brandeis has heretofore charged that the report which bears date of Sept. 11, 1909, was not, as a matter of fact, written until more than two months after that time, but that it was antedated in order to present the appearance of having been before the President on Sept. 13, when he wrote his letter exonerating Mr. Ballinger.

The vote by which the committee denied the request for the documents is really the first that has been taken which would tend to indicate the probable line-up on the entire question before it. Seven Republicans—Senators Nelson, Flint, Sutherland, and Root, and Representatives McCall, Olmsted, and Denby—voted to deny Mr. Brandeis's request, and four Democrats—Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives Graham and James and one Republican, Representative Madison of Kansas, voted for it. Mr. Madison is the insurgent who was placed upon the committee when the insurgents first overturned Speaker Cannon and denied him the right to name the House members of the investigating committee.

As a great deal depends upon the Wickersham issue, the action of the committee and the partisan line-up is regarded as especially significant.

MORSE DEFENDS HIS COURSE.

Loans by Bank, He Says in Answer to Suit, Were Valid.

Charles W. Morse, who is serving a term of fifteen years in the Federal prison at Atlanta, put in an answer yesterday through his attorneys to the suit started by John W. McKinnon, agent for the stockholders of the defunct National Bank of North America, against its officers and Directors to hold them responsible for losses during Morse's management.

In spite of the fact that Morse was convicted on account of many of the transactions of which Mr. McKinnon complains, he asserts in his answer that his loans were made in good faith and that Receiver Hanna of the bank ratified the transactions by selling the collateral.

Morse denies that either as a Director or officer of the bank he was concerned in or knew of the purchase by the bank of 4,000 shares of the American Ice Securities Company, with any of the bank's funds. He says a loan of $236,500 was made on May 1, 1906, by the bank on a note of Leslie E. Whiting, secured by 4,000 shares of Ice stock. On Oct. 1, 1906, he says, a loan of $100,000 was made by Whiting on 2,000 shares of the same stock.

In approving these loans Morse asserts judgment. He believed them to be wise and advantageous transactions to be made by the bank in the regular course of its business.

Morse makes a similar explanation of other loans which the Government proved in Morse's trials amounted to purchases of securities which the bank had no legal right to purchase.

Morse also says that Receiver Hanna did not repudiate this application of the funds, as was his duty if the facts set forth in the complaint were true. On the contrary, Morse states that Hanna sold the stock in question, and the proceeds were held as assets of the bank. He adds that the complainant ought not now in equity to demand from the defendant any money on account of the transaction set forth by Agent McKinnon.

charged with petrol and she was all ready for the start.

My new tank will hold sixteen gallons, but I carry no more than I need, from consideration of weight. On the first day I had fourteen gallons aboard, on the second only twelve, for that was more than sufficient to carry me to Didsbury, allowing a generous margin for emergencies.

Once more, as I made ready for the start, I was struck by the generous attitude of the people. It was a tricky start, for the field was short and narrow and there was a nasty hedge to surmount at the end. A collision with the hedge would have been disastrous. Happily, favored with the headwind I was then facing, though it was a following wind for my flight, I rose above the hedge without difficulty, turned, and headed straight for Manchester.

Here was the end of my concern about the issue of the race. Barring accidents, I was bound now to reach Manchester in safety and in good time, and there was no reason to anticipate accident, for I had surmounted the worst of the difficulties—that of a rise from a narrow field only 120 yards long above dim lanterns which were my only indications as to the whereabouts of the hedge.

As soon as I got up I made a circle, followed the railway, and then set off for Crewe, fighting all the way against gusts of wind. So certain did I feel of the road that I did not trouble to take my map on the second stage of the journey. This was a mistake, for after leaving Crewe I thought the first station marked my landing place, but I could discover none of the marks I expected to find there, and I had to circle back toward London before I picked up the whitewashed marks on sleepers which directed me onward.

I made yet another mistake in my route, and had to curve in yet another circle backward, but at last I saw the new station at Burnage, which was my objective, and I saw the white marks in the field where I was to land.

I landed, and I knew I had won. All the way from London it had been a fight between me and a puzzling wind, and I had beaten the wind.

STORY OF NIGHT FLIGHT.

Grahame White's Own Description of His Perilous Adventure.

By GRAHAME WHITE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Written for The London Daily Mail.

LONDON, April 28.—After my journey from London to Roade, where I alighted last night, I had some rest, but was up at 2:30 A. M. At 2:54, when I rose into the air it was completely dark. People were groping their way about the field with lanterns.

As I stood by the side of my aeroplane there was utter blackness facing me, faintly relieved in the distance by two or three twinkling lights, which I knew to be those of Roade station.

I felt—well, I scarcely know how I felt. I did not know whether I should lose myself flying through the night.

My start was a confused jumble of scattering lights, which swept away swiftly below me. I could not judge my run along the ground, but I rose as speedily as possible. Directly I was in the air the lights of the railway station showed clearly below me, and I headed toward them. I could see absolutely nothing of the ground below me; it was all a black smudge.

I went right over the railway station lights and then, fortunately only for a second or so, my engine missed fire and I began to sink toward the inky darkness below me. I could have picked no landing, and it would have been a swift, steep glide to I know not what. And then, to my joy, my engine picked up again and I rose once more.

Great difficulty presented itself in knowing in the darkness whether I was ascending or not. I had done no night flying before, you see, but I soon became accustomed to watching closely the movements of my elevating plane, which was silhouetted before me against the sky.

I steered on for a spell with nothing at all to guide me. After leaving the lights of Roade behind, the gleam from an occasional signal box far below helped me, however, and so I picked my way through the night to Blisworth.

Here I felt surer of my ground and bore away to the left for Weedon. Faint lights shone here and there. Ssome, no doubt, were cottage windows and others, I think, were the headlights of motor-cars. I passed over Weedon, my eyes becoming more accustomed to the darkness.

On I flew. The weirdness of the sensation can scarcely be described. I was alone in the darkness, with the roar of my engine in my ears. As I glanced back small bright flashes of light, the discharge of the exhaust gases from the motor, flashed out in the night.

Then I lost my way, with no railway lights to guide me, for a spell. I steered off to the right. I wheeled and turned, wondering what I should do, but then a light to my left caught my eye, and I worked my way back to the railway line again.

At a little inn by the roadside near the village of Crick my friend Frederick Colman had promised to draw up his motor car, shining its headlights upon the wall to act as a guide for me. I was keenly on the lookout for this unmistakable light sign, and, sure enough, I saw it quite distinctly below me soon after I left Welton station behind.

I deviated a little from my course and headed for this patch of light. I saw the motor car moving as I approached, with its headlights throwing a great path of light down the roadway. It set off at a breakneck pace, its driver evidently meaning to guide me on my way.

Leaving the railway line on my left, I followed the light of the motor car, and for a mile or so I hovered almost directly above it, allowing it to act as my pilot. But while I was doing so I chanced to glance over to the left again. Coming down the railway line I espied a goods train. It was making for Rugby.

This, I thought, will be a splendid guide, and so I swung away from the lights of the motor car and flew off till I was over the train. I saw the lights of Rugby, flew over the town, and forged ahead.

Daylight began to come now, and from here on to the point of my descent in a field near Polesworth my struggle was not with the darkness, but with the wind. It was the fierce gusts which eventually brought me down.

TO RECEIVE PRIZE TO-DAY.

Paulhan Will Get the $50,000 and White a Special Cup.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 28.—A check for £10,000 ($50,000) will be presented on behalf of The Daily Mail to Louis Paulhan at a luncheon at the Savoy Hotel to-morrow, while a special cup, valued at a hundred guineas ($525) will be given to Grahame White as a tribute to his splendid effort.

M. Paulhan returned to London to-night by train and received an ovation at the station.

Without in any way disparaging M. Paulhan's achievement, the claim is made for Mr. White that his flight in the dark from Roade was the most striking performance in the contest.

LOSER ACCLAIMS VICTOR.

White Calls for Cheers for Paulhan and Wires Congratulations.

MANCHESTER, April 28.—Louis Paulhan, who early this morning won the $50,000 prize offered by The Daily Mail for the first journey by aeroplane from London to Manchester, received an ovation on his arrival and unstinted praise is given to him for his remarkable feat.

At the same time his less experienced but no less plucky antagonist is being showered with congratulations over his splendid attempt, and because he has shown himself a good loser.

Paulhan was benumbed with the cold and thoroughly exhausted when he reached Manchester. A great crowd awaited him and gave him a sportsmanlike welcome. Manchester first saw the French aviator a few minutes after 5 o'clock coming steadily as a steamer on a smooth sea and heading directly for the field which he had chosen as a landing place. Flying at a height of 400 feet, Paulhan came over a clump of trees, and then, bringing his biplane around with a beautiful curve, landed exactly in the centre of the field. He seemed dazed and benumbed and swayed as he walked down the field. All he could say was: "I am very cold, but very happy." From his friends and the crowd the aviator had a warm reception, but he was too tired to reply to the ovation. Presently he went to a hotel and retired.

An official reception was given to Paulhan by the Lord Mayor of Manchester this afternoon prior to his departure for London. He told the Lord Mayor that he would have been very happy if White had arrived at the same time he did.

Paulhan did the last 24 miles in exactly 24 minutes, outdistancing the special train bearing his wife, Henry Farman, and other friends, which had accompanied him.

When, at Polesworth, Grahame White was told of the Frenchman's success he mounted the seat of an automobile and cried:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the £10,000 prize has been won by Louis Paulhan, the finest aviator that the world has ever seen. Compared with him I am only a novice. Three cheers for Paulhan!"

The crowd gathered about the generous Englishman gave the cheers heartily, following them with a round of cheers for White. He said:

"There is no longer an opportunity for me to win the prize, but I mean to get to Manchester, and by aeroplane."

White was one of the first to telegraph congratulations to his rival. His message read: "I take the earliest opportunity of offering you my heartiest congratulations on your splendid performance. The better man has won."

White resumed his aerial journey toward this city at 5:02 o'clock to-night, ascending at Polesworth, where he alighted this morning. He passed Tamworth, a little over 100 miles from London, at 5:15 o'clock, but he descended at Hademore Crossing and decided to abandon the flight. His aeroplane is being sent back to London.

A movement is on foot to erect a memorial on the field where Paulhan finished in commemoration of the Frenchman's superb flight.

LONDON, April 28.—M. Paulhan arrived at Euston Station at 8:20 this evening. He was met by a great crowd, which cheered him heartily.

The French aviator said he would devote the $50,000 prize which he had won to furthering the science of aviation.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC NEXT?

Wilbur Wright Sees No Reason Why It Should Not Be Done.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 28.—Wilbur Wright, commenting on the remarkable performance of Louis Paulhan in England, declared to-day that no reason now existed why a trans-oceanic aeroplane flight should not be successful.

"I believe," he said, "that an aeroplane with sufficient gasolene capacity to attempt a transatlantic flight can easily be built." He would not go further into details.

Mr. Wright expressed his pleasure at the showing made by Paulhan, saying that, aside from Curtiss, Paulhan is probably the most skillful aviator in the world, and really more daring than his American rival. The tests now being made, Mr. Wright thinks, should prove of considerable value in giving a line on the handling of heavier-than-air machines on a long flight.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 28.—"It was a fine flight," was Orville Wright's comment on Louis Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester. "Without question," he added, "Paulhan is a good operator."

Mr. Wright made a number of flights to-day at the training camp near Montgomery, remaining in the air about ten minutes on each flight. His maximum altitude was about 600 feet.

W. R. Brookins of Dayton, Ohio, one of the five student aviators, is now able to operate the aeroplane, although he has been accompanied at all times by Mr. Wright.

WHEN Sir Walter Raleigh "tooke a pipe of tobacco a little before he went to the scaffolde" he paid a high tribute to tobacco "VINTAGE." He made his last requisition on the tobacco yield of a certain season, which he guarded most jealously.

As with vintage wine, quality of fertilization, climatic conditions of the season, fermentation and curing are the factors in producing Tobacco aristocracy. The yield of certain seasons from the wonderfully fertile slopes of Macedonia in Turkey is the "VINTAGE" that gives to LA MARQUISE CIGARETTES among smokers the patent of nobility.

WHISTLED IN BREATHING.

X-Ray Showed the Tin Toy He Had Swallowed—Surgeons Extract It.

A round tin whistle about an inch in diameter, with which ten-year-old Sampson Sheffer, son of Joseph Sheffer, a merchant of Baldwin, L. I., had been playing on Wednesday afternoon, slipped from between his lips and lodged in his windpipe. The boy ran frightened to his father and tried to tell him what had happened. But he could not talk. Instead, each gasp of breath produced a muffled, hissing whistle.

The whistling continued for more than an hour, when at last the boy managed to make his plight known to a near-by doctor, who had been called, and who advised that the boy be taken to New York, where the X-ray could be used. He was taken in an automobile across the Williamsburg Bridge to the Har Moriah Hospital, at Second Street and Avenue A.

There, still gasping forth a whistling sound with his breath, he was put on the operating table, the X-ray applied, and the whistle found at the bottom of the windpipe. After probing for almost an hour through an incision in the windpipe, the whistle was finally reached by means of forceps and extracted by Drs. Moskowitz and Jablens, assisted by the house staff. Last night the boy had recovered sufficiently to romp about in the hospital halls.

$600,000 WILL CONTEST.

Mrs. Henriques Seeks to Overthrow Sister's Bequest to Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 28.—Mrs. Leila Olive Henriques of New York will contest the will of her sister, Mrs. Mary Mason, who left $600,000 for a hospital in Great Barrington. To-day Carey & Jones of Old South Building, Boston, filed an appearance for her in the Probate Court.

The case will be heard at a sitting of the Berkshire Probate Court in Great Barrington May 4. Mrs. Henriques under the will of her sister received a house in New York City.

COURT IS MYSTIFIED BY DELICATESSEN

Justice Whitney Admits Its Status Is a Hard Problem to Wrestle With.

MAY BE AN ALIEN STILL

He Suspects That This Foreigner Has Never Been Naturalized in This Country.

What is a delicatessen store? This is the riddle which Supreme Court Justice Whitney admits in a decision proved a puzzling problem to him. Is an American delicatessen store different from a foreign one? And can the words "delicatessen store" have different meanings in different parts of this city?

Is a delicatessen store a restaurant when it is on the lower east side? Or can a delicatessen store infringe on a restaurant? And when, if ever, does a restaurant infringe on the business of a delicatessen store? Justice Whitney consulted his trusty dictionary and got no help, he says in his decision.

There are even doubts, he says, that the words "delicatessen store" have ever become naturalized in this country, so that they have what the law recognizes as a customary meaning. He confesses that he was much in the dark how to decide the case of Delicatessen Store, plaintiff, against Restaurant, defendant, which came before him, because he could find no satisfactory definition of what a delicatessen store is.

Delicatessen stores, it seems, are like Cleopatra in "their infinite variety," and this variety extends not only to their products and objects of sale but to their character. An upper west side delicatessen store with lobster and chicken salad in its refrigerator might not recognize a cousin in a lower east side delicatessen store with little side tables, covered with linoleum, for patrons to sit at and eat their sausages and schweitzer cheese sandwiches. And yet Restaurant, defendant in the suit of Delicatessen Store, plaintiff, alleges that the aforesaid side tables make delicatessen stores into restaurants, the little brothers of the restaurants of the rich along the Great White Way.

In his decision Justice Whitney is inclined to this latter opinion. He holds that "the sale of a few delicatessen will not make a restaurant into delicatessen store." Therefore he refuses to grant an injunction to Marie Weiss, who runs a delicatessen store at Grand and Wooster Streets.

When she rented her store from Rachel and Morris Herman, she told the court, it was on a covenant that the store next door, also controlled by them, should not be used as a grocery or delicatessen store. Now, she says, the adjoining store is occupied by Jacques Bernstann, who is violating the covenant. She says Bernstann came to her store a few days before he opened his restaurant and made a close inspection of her stock, which he duplicated in his restaurant. He installed furniture and fixtures like hers and swung a sign "Imported Delicatessen" in his window.

The Big New Novel

By HOLMAN DAY
Author of "King Spruce"

AT last comes a political novel that tells an exciting story. The spirit of youth—in love and in affairs—is bound up in the life struggle of the "easy" boss—the kind who casually looks on at a "perfectly managed" election. This big novel is remarkable also for its humor. Not in years has there been a character to equal Thelismer Thornton in pointed, quaint, incisive sayings. He is a Maine type pictured full-length in this novel, and his philosophy will be quoted from Bangor to San Francisco. "There are some things in politics that have to be done as gentle and careful as picking a rose petal off a school ma'am's shoulder."

TAGGART DEFEATED; KERN FOR SENATOR

Democrats Adopt Gov. Marshall's Plan and Endorse Former Vice Presidential Candidate.

STATE TICKET IS NAMED

Taggart with a Broad Smile Tells Indiana Convention His Machine Is Sent to the Scrap Heap.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 28.—In the words of Thomas Taggart, ex-Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, uttered with a broad smile on the floor of the State Democratic Convention here to-day, "The Taggart machine has been sent to the scrap heap." After a stormy session, the convention not only adopted Gov. Marshall's plan of selecting the party's candidate for the seat in the United States Senate now held by Senator Albert J. Beveridge, and to be filled by the next Legislature, but nominated for the place John W. Kern, who was the Democratic candidate for Vice President in 1908 and before that had twice run strongly for the Governorship.

The opposition to the plan of indorsing a candidate for the Senate, led by Taggart, who was himself in the field for the nomination, and was assisted by Senator B. F. Shively, made a game fight, which left the event in doubt up to this morning. The Taggart men, in fact, entered the convention confident of victory. The indorsement plan nevertheless was carried over the State primary plan by a vote of 888½ to 858½, and the earlier ballots for the nomination showed plainly that Taggart had no chance there. On the first Kern had 303 votes, Taggart 228, and the third serious aspirant, Gov. Marshall's ally, John E. Lamb of Terre Haute, Vice Chairman of the National Committee, 226. The rest of the 1,747 votes were scattered among some nine others. On the second ballot Kent got 647 votes.

Mr. Taggart Withdraws.

It was when the third ballot was reached that Mr. Taggart declared his machine was on the scrap heap, and delivered the 183 votes of the Marion County (Indianapolis) delegation to Kern, though Kern had declared in the course of the second ballot that his name had been presented without warrant, and "he was in no sense a candidate."

The voting proceeded, Lamb also withdrawing, and Kern gaining more and more, until the fourth ballot, when all the other eleven candidates having withdrawn, he was nominated unanimously.

As soon as the convention was called to order the Chairman announced that the pending question was whether or not the convention should nominate a candidate for the Senate, and that forty-five minutes would be given to each side for a discussion of the question.

Senator Shively protested that the convention had not been called to nominate a Senator, and could not authoritatively do so. John E. Lamb arose to reply. Immediately the convention was in a tumult, and Lamb waited several minutes before he began to speak. When he declared "I am eternally opposed to Taggartism" a riot seemed imminent. The 183 delegates from Indianapolis and Marion County, among whom sat Thomas Taggart, arose in their places with hoots and hisses. The political delegates from Terre Haute and Vigo Counties—Lamb's home—retorted with cheers. The other delegations took sides and crowded from their seats into the aisles.

"This is a battle for the rights of the people," said Lamb, "and if that is usurpation I am a usurper. This convention must nominate a candidate for the Senate; if not myself, some better man."

Vote Amid Wild Confusion.

The speaker was continually interrupted by yells from the opposition, and few of his words could be heard. When he concluded his speech the question was put to a vote.

During the vote the delegation from Marion County cast 180 votes against and 3 votes for the indorsement plan. There was a dispute and the negative voters rose to be counted. An enthusiastic supporter of Lamb pressed his way through the crowd to shake hands with the Indianapolis "insurgents," but was met with a blow in the face before he reached them. A general fight between the two delegations impended, but the police forced their way between them and order was restored.

John W. Kern to-night was undecided as to the form his acceptance of the convention's indorsement of him as the Democratic candidate for the Senate should take, because he said it was an innovation in Indiana politics.

"I am greatly gratified over the manner in which the nomination came to me," said Mr. Kern, "unsought and unanimous as it was. It places me under new obligations to my party, which always has been kind to me and to the service of which I shall always be devoted. After I have considered the matter I shall make some formal acceptance."

The Senatorial issue quite overshadowed the adoption of a platform and the naming of a State ticket. The platform, however, was adopted, and was in part as follows:

Platform Denounces Tariff.

We denounce the Payne-Aldrich tariff act as a masterpiece of injustice, involving remorseless exactions from the many to enrich the few, through the trust and monopolies which it fosters. Tariff taxation, like other taxation, should be for public purposes only, and not for private profit; and should be so levied as not to discriminate against any section, class, industry, or occupation, and limited to the actual necessities of the Government economically administered.

We condemn the cowardice of the Republican Party in Indiana in failing to meet the issues in a fair and many way; that in its endeavor to gain Democratic votes, it has on the tariff question one proposition in the State platform and different and opposing propositions in Congressional platforms; that by indorsement it commends President Taft, who approved the Payne-Aldich tariff law, and in the same resolutions commends Senator Beveridge, who voted against the same measure, for his course in opposing such tariff law.

President Taft has indorsed Cannon and Aldrich. We submit to the people whether relief may be expected from a party standing for Taft, Cannon, Aldrich, and Beveridge all at the same time.

The platform goes on to declare for the immediate enactment of a pension law by Congress providing for a pension of not less than $1 a day for all Union veterans of the civil war; favors the income tax amendment to the National Constitution; opposes all subsidies by the Government, especially the present Ship Subsidy bill; condemns the indiscriminate use by courts of injunctions without notice to defendants; condemns the extravagant National administration of the Republican Party in National affairs; favors conservation of natural resources and demands the withdrawal from entry of our timber, coal, and iron lands and water-power sites. Finally it favors an amendment to the Constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

A full State ticket, except Governor and Lieutenant Governor, was nominated without much excitement. It was as follows:

Secretary of State—LOUIS C. ELLINGHAM of Decatur.

Auditor—WILLIAM H. O'BRIEN of Lawrenceburg.

Treasurer—WILLIAM H. VOLLMER of Vincennes.

Attorney General—THOMAS M. HONAN, Speaker of the Indiana House.

Clerk of Supreme Court—J. FRED FRANCE, Huntington.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—ROBERT J. ALEY, Bloomington.

State Geologist—EDWARD BARRETT, Plainfield.

Statistician—THOMAS BROLLEY, North Vernon.

Judge of Supreme Court, Second District—DOUGLASS MORRIS, Rushville.

Judge of Supreme Court, Third District—CHARLES E. COX, Indianapolis.

Appellate Judges for Northern District—JOSEPH I. BACH, Hammond; H. B. LAIRY, Logansport, and ANDREW ADAMS, Columbia City.

BIG GUNS IMPERIL LINERS.

Battleship Practice Interrupted by Venturesome Skippers.

The battleship Connecticut, flagship of the Atlantic fleet, arrived at the Navy Yard yesterday from the Virginia Capes, where, on Wednesday night, was concluded what is believed to have been the most successful target practice in the history of the navy. The Connecticut is the first of four battleships coming here. The Rhode Island probably will get in to-day, the Nebraska to-morrow, and the Michigan early next week.

The target practice was not only one of the best in point of averages, but it was also one of the most thrilling the fleet has ever had. Despite the fact that Admiral Schroeder had warned merchant vessels to steer clear of the target zone, many skippers disregarded those instructions with the result that the practice had to be stopped several times to allow some venturesome ship to get out of danger.

Two liners, an officer of the Connecticut said yesterday, had steamed into the danger zone, and had they not been promptly sighted and the firing stopped, they probably would have been hit. The ships were the Morgan liner El Siglo and the Italian liner Nord America.

A whole division of battleships was firing the big guns when El Siglo poked her nose into the forbidden waters, the targets being several miles away. El Siglo got within six miles of the fleet, but the 12-inch guns are just as effective at that distance as at one mile. It took the Siglo half an hour to reach safer waters.

The Siglo was hardly forgotten when the Nord America put a temporary end to practice by steaming within range of the big guns. Another half hour was lost while the Italian scampered out of danger.

As for the results of the practice the official averages will not be available for several weeks. It is known, however, that the fleet has a new target champion in the new battleship Idaho, commanded by Capt. Herbert Dunn. The New Hampshire, which was first last year, is now second, and the Virginia, the flagship of the Fourth Division, is third. The Wisconsin, which has been ordered in reserve, to make room for one of the new dreadnoughts, made the next best record, while the Nebraska, the only Pacific built ship in the fleet, is fifth.

Rutherford Boat Club house," said Miss Kipp, and suggested that some one call her brother, Walter Kipp, a lawyer of Rutherford, over the telephone. This was done at once, and while Mr. Kipp was hastening to Carlstadt in his automobile Mrs. Heflich and her husband bathed the head of the wounded girl and bandaged it as best they could.

A few minutes before Walter Kipp and the automobile arrived Deschler telephoned for the police. Chief of Police McClellan of East Rutherford and Chief Smith of Carlstadt arrived just as Mr. Kipp started for home with his sister in the machine. The two policemen were told what had happened by the Heflichs, but before starting for the boathouse they called up Stanley Kipp, father of the injured girl, who was at the Bergen County Bank, of which he is cashier. They told him what had happened and wanted to know if they had authority to arrest Wood.

"Hang the authority," exclaimed Mr. Kipp over the wire. "You go ahead and arrest the man and I will take the responsibility."

So the two policemen started for the clubhouse. They had no idea that Wood had barricaded the doors and was prepared to fight. But Wood had made careful preparations to repel any attack which might be made. In each of the window curtains of the boathouse he had cut a longitudinal slit with his jacknife. He had also procured his rifle and revolver which he always kept in his locker in the boathouse.

Walking side by side the two policemen had just reached the plank walk in front of the boathouse of the Star Rowing Club when from an upper window of the Rutherford Club came a puff of smoke and a steel-capped bullet plowed through Smith's left arm a few inches below the shoulder.

With a cry of pain Smith dropped to the ground. McClellan bent low and ran for the shelter of the Star Clubhouse thinking that his fellow-policeman had been killed. In the roadway in front of the Heflich Hotel stood a group of several dozen men and women watching. At the first shot they scattered.

But before they turned to run for shelter they saw McClellan apparently fall. When they looked again he was nowhere to be seen. Smith was lying where he fell, apparently paralyzed by the shock of the bullet. In the crowd on the roadway which had witnessed the shooting of Smith was John H. Ootwater, who owns the property on which the little row of boathouses along that part of the Hackensack bank are located.

With Henry Heflich and John Webber, a waterman, he started for the wounded policeman. Just then Wood appeared at an upper window and yelled:

"Come on! You can get the wounded man, but don't come near this boathouse or I'll shoot you down."

The three men advanced to where Smith lay groaning, and assisted him to the Heflich Hotel, whence he was later sent to the Passaic Hospital. It was not until half an hour after the rescue of Smith that the crowd knew McClellan was safe. They learned this when Albert Feist, a member of the Star Boat Club, wading along the river edge, reached the roadway and told the crowd there that McClellan had take refuge in the Star Boat Club.

There he remained until the afternoon. Now and then he took a pot shot at the windows of the Rutherford Clubhouse. As soon as Smith had been carried away some one telephoned to Hackensack for Sheriff Brewster and informed him that a madman was barricaded in a boathouse, shooting at every one who came near.

Brewster summoned all his deputies, swore in a dozen extra men, and all headed for Carlstadt in automobiles. Before the Sheriff and his men got there Wood had fired several dozen shots. Whenever he saw any one heading toward the boathouse he fired. Sometimes it was with the rifle, sometimes with the automatic revolver. But none of these bullets took effect. One passed through the Heflich Hotel, narrowly missing Mrs. Heflich. Others buried themselves in near-by boathouses, behind which armed men were hiding.

When Sheriff Brewster, Deputy Sheriff Blauvelt, and the others arrived, all armed with rifles, which had been hastily obtained from the Hackensack Armory, they began firing at the windows of the clubhouse. After each volley they would wait a few minutes to see whether Wood was returning the fire.

All the windows on the upper floor of the boat club were raised about three inches from the bottom, and it was through these apertures that Wood fired. It was not long after Sheriff Brewster's arrival that the crowd in the neighborhood of the boat house swelled to several hundred men. They came from Rutherford, East Rutherford, and all the near-by towns and villages, and most of them had rifles, shotguns, or revolvers.

The firing of the volleys continued at intervals from 10:30 o'clock until nearly 3.30 in the afternoon. About 3 o'clock the Sheriff ordered several of his men to take boats and approach the clubhouse from the water, while on shore a cordon of armed men was formed. When the men in the boats had fired several dozen shots the cordon on land began closing in.

The return shots from Wood were growing less frequent now. After a little while they stopped entirely. It was taken as a favorable sign by the Sheriff. Just then Mr. Cottrell, stepfather of young Wood, appeared on the porch of a boathouse near by, and yelled to the boy to give up and he would be protected. But no reply came from behind the barricade.

Slowly the cordon of armed men drew closer. Suddenly there was a shot from inside. But it was not like the ones which had gone before. This one was muffled and indistinct. It was the shot with which Wood ended his own life, sitting in a chair on the first floor near the barricaded door leading to the club float. Sheriff Brewster heard the muffled shot and guessed its meaning.

"I think he has shot himself, men, charge the door," yelled the Sheriff. In a moment a dozen men were hammering away at the door. It was broken down, and with their rifles ready for action the members of the Sheriff's posse ran inside. There in the chair sat Wood, the automatic revolver at his feet, and the side of his face stained with burnt powder. The empty rifle was found later upstairs.

Another young woman of Rutherford was receiving the congratulations of friends last night that she did not go through an experience with Wood similar to that of Miss Kipp. On Wednesday evening Miss Florence Smith, who is also a member of the Union Club and a close friend of Miss Kipp, was asked by Wood to join him with a party of friends in the morning at the Rutherford Boat Club. She refused. It was after her refusal that Miss Kipp accepted the invitation.

PRESIDENT RESIGNS; ENDOWMENT GONE

Chas. W. Needham's Retirement from Headship of George Washington University Announced.

NEW MAN NEEDED, HE SAYS

$200,000 Corcoran Fund Reduced to $16,000, and Congressional Inquiry Blocks Expected Aid Under the Morrill Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The financial difficulties under which the institution has labored for some time past and the dissipation of the Corcoran endowment fund of $200,000 are regarded here as being responsible for the unexpected resignation yesterday of Dr. Charles W. Needham, President of the George Washington University. Members of the Board of Trustees, in announcing the resignation to-day, said that it would not be acted upon for several days, and that in any event Dr. Needham would be asked to remain at the head of the university until the close of the present term.

Several days ago the surprising charge was made by Dr. Phillips, former Dean of the Medical School of the university, who appeared before the House Committee on the District of Columbia, that the $200,000 endowment fund of the university had dwindled to a promissory note for $16,000, given by Dr. Needham, with the Needham home as security. The house, Dr. Phillips said, was not worth more than $8,000. He charged that the alumni of the university had been denied the privilege of examining the books of the institution, and that so far as friends of the university were able to learn the entire endowment fund had been swallowed up evidently in the expenses of the university. Dr. Phillips was dismissed from the Faculty last Fall.

Representative Riley, of New Jersey, had before the committee a resolution calling on the Attorney General to investigate the affairs of the George Washington University before Congress should pass a bill, already favorably reported, granting to the institution the benefits of the Morrill Fund. At the conclusion of Dr. Phillips's testimony, Mr. Wiley placed before the Committee a report of the Carnegie Foundation withdrawing its grants to the university because it could not show the existence of a $200,000 endowment fund.

The next day Dr. Needham appeared before the committee and admitted that the fund had been dissipated through the expenses of the university. He also admitted that it was the original intention of the donor of the fund to have it held intact. The first impairment of the fund, he said, was in 1888, and was with the consent of Mr. Corcoran. It was said, however, that the records of the university do not show whether or not the donor consented to any further impairment of the fund.

The university, Dr. Needham declared, was ready to open its books to the Attorney General. In explaining the manner in which the university expended the last of the Corcoran fund in a house in which he might live, the President said that it was purchased to enable him to have a residence at less than the customary rental prices. It was bought for $11,000, and repairs costing $10,500 were made, subject to a mortgage of $5,500. The university paid for the equity and improvements a total of $16,000.

As to the Corcoran endowment fund, President Needham said it was the intention of the university Board of Trustees to repay the fund as soon as it could sell its property at Fifteenth and H Streets and also some property between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets on H Street. He declared that the total indebtedness of the institution is about $500,000, secured by the real estate.

The resignation of Dr. Needham surprised the Trustees, the majority of whom have stuck by the President during the time of financial stress. Had not Congress resolved to investigate the finances of the university before extending the benefits of the Morrill act, which would have meant an endowment of about $50,000 annually, it was thought that brighter days had dawned for the institution. On this point and the question of general finances Dr. Needham says in his letter of resignation

"Difficulties have arisen which, in my own opinion and in the opinion of some of my friends in whom I have the greatest confidence, can only be solved by a man coming to this office who can undertake the task free from all connection with the past. It therefore becomes my duty to make clear the way for the appointment of such a man. I stated at the time I accepted this position that my task would be to lay the foundations and complete the organization of a university doing work of university grade in all the departments of higher learning; that when the foundations of such an organization were complete I would step aside and give the place to a man specially trained for such administrative work.

"It is a matter of sincere regret to me that I am not able to complete my part of the work.

"When we failed to obtain endowments for the larger university the passage of the bill giving the district the benefit of the Morrill acts and designating this university as the agency to administer those funds for the district was fixed in my mind as a fair consummation of my plans. But this legislation is delayed, and I am constrained to conclude my work this year."

construct a private sewer in Madison Street. At the time that he made this application he was accompanied by his partner, Louis Dornbach.

"In conformity with Section 395 of the charter, above noted, a check for $50, payable to Joseph B. Nelson and signed by Louis Dornbach, was handed over to Mr. Nelson, the Chief Clerk of the Bureau of Sewers, to cover the estimated cost of inspection. Both Carberry and Dornbach were subpoenaed before me, and produced the canceled voucher for the $50 in question.

"The check, which was marked in evidence, is indorsed with the name of Joseph B. Nelson. According to the records of the department, no Inspector was ever appointed upon the construction work of this particular sewer. This record evidence was substantiated by both Carberry and Dornbach, who testified that during the process of construction neither they nor their men saw any city Inspector.

"Joseph B. Nelson, who until lately was Chief Clerk of the Bureau of Sewers, was subpoenaed and examined under oath. He stated that some time in October, 1909, Carberry made application for the permit in question. He identified the check above mentioned as the check which had been handed him by Carberry to cover the cost of inspection. He stated that, as was customary in all such cases, he deposited the check in his account in the Corn Exchange Bank, to be paid out in weekly salary installments due the Inspector.

"He further testified that at the request of President Lawrence Gresser he had not appointed an Inspector upon the work in question; that the sewer had been built absolutely without inspection, and that the $50 paid in for this purpose had been handed to Mr. Gresser personally, at the latter's request, to augment his campaign funds. (Record Pp. 168-170.) According to Nelson's testimony, this money was handed to President Gresser in the latter's private office on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 23, at about 1:30 o'clock. (Record P. 170.)

"In this connection Gustav Newman, an Inspector of private sewers in the Borough of Queens, was subpoenaed and placed under oath. He stated that some time subsequent to the election he was summoned from the Amity Club to the Borough Hall by Henry Baccus, a chauffeur in the Borough President's office.

"In spite of the fact that Newman's testimony was most reluctantly given, he finally admitted that when he arrived at the Borough Hall he was asked by 'some one'—the identity of whom he refused to disclose—to hand in signed reports in regard to the inspection of the Madison Street sewer, although he had had nothing whatever to do with the matter. These reports he refused to make.

"This testimony was corroborated indirectly by Alfred Denton, Judge of the Third District Municipal Court, Borough of Queens, who was subpoenaed and testified that some time in December, 1909, Newman told him that he had been requested by somebody in the Borough Hall to sign affidavits to the effect that he had inspected the construction of the private sewer in Madison Avenue.

"The identity of the man making the request Judge Denton refused to divulge for the reason that his relation with Newman was that of attorney and client. Both from the records and all the testimony it is clearly evident that the money paid in by the contractor for the inspection of this sewer was diverted to other purposes, and that considerable effort was made at concealment.

"In connection with this $50 check another matter arose to which attention is called at this time, inasmuch as it seems to fall within Section 41 of the Penal Code. Nelson testified that on Oct. 25, when he handed the $50 inspection fee to Mr. Gresser, he also gave him $200 in cash which had been collected at President Gresser's direction from various employes in the Bureau of Sewers for campaign purposes.

"He further stated that Mr. Gresser had personally requested him as Chief Clerk of the bureau to take charge of the assessment of the outside force. His testimony on this point is illuminating:

Q.—Did he say anything as to the amount of the assessment? A.—No; it was understood that every year they gave 2 per cent.

Q.—Two per cent. of what. A.—Of their salaries.

Q.—Of the year's salary? A.—Yes. (Record, Page 173.)

"In accordance with this direction from the Borough President, Nelson sent word to the various inspectors and foremen on the outside force to the effect that they were expected to contribute.

Q.—How did you send out word, by letter or orally? A.—Orally. * * * I would tell them when I saw them.

Q.—Who were the men that you saw yourself? A.—Oh, I saw all the foremen.

Q.—What did you tell them? A.—I told them Mr. Gresser expected them to contribute. (Record, Page 177.)

Q.—Did you keep a list of those who paid you? A.—I did have a list, but I destroyed it. (Record, Page 176.)

"Nelson further testified that in addition to the $200 handed President Gresser on Oct. 23, 1909, he gave him $250 more the following week, which sum was paid him personally in his private office, and the day before election he handed him $350 in the hallway of the Shinnecock Club at Flushing. These sums were entirely made up of the contributions of employes in the Bureau of Sewers.

"To confirm this testimony some of the employes of the Sewer Department were selected at random, and subpoenaed before me. Without exception they stated that they had all contributed to Mr. Gresser's campaign fund in response to requests either from Nelson or from Cornelius Burke, the Superintendent of Sewers. The names of the contributors and the amounts follow:

John P. Hayes, inspector, $10.
Joseph Dillhoff, assistant foreman, $15.
Ferdinand Kruger, clerk, $30.
Louis Stoeckicht, foreman, between $10 and $25.
James J. Hiland, foreman, $20.
Michael Tuite, foreman, $10.
Louis C. Walters, foreman, $20.
George D. Mickel, inspector, $30.
William Salmon, foreman, $20.

"The following testimony illustrates, in a general way, the attitude of the men assessed:

Q.—Did you contribute to the last campaign fund? A.—Yes.

Q.—How much? A.—$20.

Q.—To whom did you pay it? A.—To Mr. Burke.

Q.—Did he ask you for it? A.—Yes. I says to him, says I, "What is the cost this year?" He says, "What have you been in the habit of paying?" I said "$10." "Well," he says, "it will cost you $20." And three days after that I was laid off.

"Without exception the men seemed to think that the contribution was necessary as a matter of expediency.

"A copy of all the testimony taken in the course of this proceeding, and the original conceled check for $50 are transmitted herewith. Respectfully submitted,

"RAYMOND B. FOSDICK,
"Commissioner of Accounts."

Commissioner Fosdick held a night session last night to continue the taking of testimony from employes of the Sewer Department. To-day the testimony in this portion of his investigation will be concluded, but it will be followed immediately by an investigation of other bureaus of the borough government. It is know that evidence enough has already been procured to make it certain that no bureau will get a clean bill of health.

"SLEEPER TRUNK" INSPECTOR ON TRIAL

Miss Nellie Grant an Important Witness in the Phillipsen Smuggling Case.

CONFEDERATE TURNS ON HIM

Testifies That They Worked Together in Bringing in Dutiable Goods Fraudulently.

Philip A. Phillipsen, a former Customs Inspector, who is accused of being the active manager here of the system of "sleeper trunk" smuggling by which in recent years the Government has been defrauded out of customs duties aggregating several million dollars, was placed on trial before Judge Martin and a jury in the United States Circuit Court yesterday under indictments charging a conspiracy to defraud the Government. With Phillipsen as co-defendants were Mary S. Moore and Isabel Holland, dressmakers, alleged to have been parties to the same conspiracy.

The Phillipsen trial is the result of the discovery by the customs authorities in March, 1909, that customs employes on the piers of the American and Red Star Lines, in conjunction with Robert Schwartz, baggage master on the American Line pier, had organized an extensive system of smuggling by which trunks containing large importations of dutiable goods were sent over here as "left over" baggage and finally taken secretly from the piers for delivery to the dressmakers, who were the beneficiaries of the scheme.

Just before the case of Phillipsen and the two women was called, Schwartz, who had previously made a coonfession to the Government, entered a plea of guilty to the conspiracy charges. Sentence was suspended until after the present trial is concluded, and the Government proceeded to use Schwartz as its star witness. George Gordon Battle is representing Phillipsen and William Rand, Jr., the two women defendants.

In his opening address to the jury Assistant United States Attorney Dorr told how the "sleeper trunk" conspiracy was manipulated for five or six years before its discovery. He said there was an agent of the gang in Paris who took care of the work at that end, and that this agent got 50 per cent. of the duties saved to the dressmakers in cases where the smuggled goods got through safely.

The first witness called was Miss Nellie Grant, a daughter of Jesse Grant. Trunks addressed to her happened to be those discovered in the American Line pier when the general raid was made, for it was a part of the smuggling scheme to have the trunks addressed to some person who had recently crossed on a steamer docking at the pier where the frauds were carried on.

Miss Grant said that she had returned from a tour around the world with her aunt, Mrs. Mason, in the late Winter of 1909, but left no baggage behind in Europe and knew nothing about the trunks sent to the American Line pier in her name as left-over baggage.

Then Edward Wright, General Superintendent of the Red Star Line, was called and testified that left-over baggage was placed by itself in one section of the pier and left there in charge of Schwartz until identified or sent away. Then, after the testimony of one or two unimportant witnesses, Schwartz himself was called.

He said that he knew both Frank Faucett, a customs Inspector, who died some time ago, and Phillipsen. In the Summer of 1903 the witness saw Faucett and had some conversation, which Mr. Dorr tried to get into evidence, but Judge Martin excluded it on the ground that Faucett was dead. Schwartz, however, was allowed to say that Faucett went abroad that Summer and that in September, 1903, trunks began to come in as left-over baggage, concerning which Faucett, then returned from Europe, gave the witness certain information. These trunks, he said, he got off the dock by sending them down the chutes to the railroad pier, where truckmen received them for delivery at addresses which Faucett gave him.

Phillipsen was brought into the matter in 1904. Schwartz testified that that Summer, Faucett while abroad sent word to Phillipsen that certain trunks were coming over about which Phillipsen gave him instructions.

"How much money did you get?" asked Mr. Dorr.

"Fifty dollars a trunk to begin with," replied Schwartz.

There was a seizure in the Fall of 1907, the witness declared, but in December of that year and during 1908 the underground line got into working order again and trunks were handled as of old. By this time Schwartz's rake-off had increased to $115 a trunk.

"Who gave you the money?" Mr. Dorr asked.

"Phillipsen," replied the witness.

Faucett died in the Summer of 1908, Schwartz said, and he then told Phillipsen that he thought they had better quit the game, but Phillipsen insisted on continuing it and said he had another man in Europe named Garcia who would attend to the details over there. So trunks continued to be received until the time of the raid in March, 1909.

The trial will be continued to-day.

LIEUT. McAULIFFE ON TRIAL.

He Is Under Charge for the Arrest of Coroner Schwannecke.

Lieut. Timothy J. McAuliffe of the Alexander Avenue Police Station, in the Bronx, was put on trial yesterday at Police Headquarters on three charges growing out of his arrest of Coroner Albert F. Schwannecke in the station house on April 15.

McAuliffe is under suspension, and is facing charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, conduct injurious to the peace and welfare of the Police Department, and insubordination. Mayor Gaynor publicly apologized to the Coroner for the Lieutenant's action.

Many witnesses have been summoned for the trial, which was adjourned yesterday afternoon until next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Coroner Schwannecke told his side of the story yesterday. Robert Fullam of 235 East 136th Street had been murdered by an Italian. The Coroner received word by telephone, he said, that several witnesses were at the Alexander Avenue Station, and went there to question them. On the invitation of the detectives in the case he went into Capt. Naughton's room and began interrogating the witnesses.

He had been there about fifteen minutes, said the Coroner, when McAuliffe, who was doing desk duty at the time, came into room and told him to leave it. He objected, and the Lieutenant, becoming angry, ordered several policemen and detectives to arrest him, finally bringing it about by threatening to charge a policeman with letting a prisoner escape if he did not make the arrest. Upon the plea of the policeman so threatened, said the Coroner, he allowed himself to be arrested.

The Coroner was released after three-quarters of an hour, when Capt. Naughton came in.

SIGNS MOVING PLATFORM BILL

Mayor at Hearing Says Also There Are Too Many Court Clerks.

Mayor Gaynor has approved the bill passed by the Legislature which will authorize the Public Service Commission to take steps for the building of an experimental moving platform subway under Thirty-fourth Street, and permit the transit company to buy power to operate it.

The moving platform question has been agitated in this city for some time and a year ago the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission decided to install an experimental route under Thirty-fourth Street, between Second and Ninth Avenues.

The Mayor held a hearing yesterday on a bill adding three clerks to the City Court staff. Judge LaFetra appeared in favor of the measure, but the Mayor declared that the clerical force in the courts is already too large.

"When I was a Judge," said he, "I signed a lot of cases, but I didn't need clerks to read them for me."

"But the work is piling up, and we are short-handed," persisted the Judge.

"I have always been under the impression and I am sure that I am right," continued the Mayor, "that the courts are over-manned. In Kings County they're about double what they should be. However, I will look into this."

LAKE THREATENS TRACKS.

Mysterious Rise of Water Puzzles Tonopah Railroad Engineers.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., April 28.—The strange increase of Silver Lake on the desert is puzzling engineers connected with the Tonopah & Tidewater Railroad, and is giving them a hard fight to save the tracks from inundation.

The lake is where El Mohave River makes its reappearance, after flowing beneath the desert from a point near Daggett, where it suddenly drops into the sands. The engineers are inclined to believe that the volume of water now welling up in the middle of the lake comes from a source not connected with El Mohave.

Dikes have been erected to protect the tracks from the rapidly rising water, and a pumping plant is being installed to throw the water over a low range of hills in the desert beyond.

WOMAN MAY WEAR TROUSERS.

Attorney General of Kansas Rules There Is No Law Against It.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 28.—Gov. Stubbs received a letter yesterday from a widow at Oswego asking permission to wear men's trousers while at work at her home. It said she was supporting a large family, which necessitated outside work, and that in wearing skirts she was badly handicapped.

The letter was turned over to the Attorney General, who ruled there was no law prohibiting a woman from wearing men's trousers, especially if she were the head of the house.

KATZ DEFENSE HIT BY STRAY WITNESS

McIntyre Pointed to Him Accusingly in the Crowd and Nott Called Him.

AIDED THE PROSECUTION

Defendant's Counsel Had Accused Him of Blackmail and This Started the Boomerang.

A new witness for the people against Charles Katz, called unexpectedly from the crowd watching the trial, provided the sensation of the case yesterday, and his testimony left everything in confusion when Justice Marcus ordered an adjournment at 5:30 o'clock. It was a chance question from Mr. McIntyre, Katz's lawyer, that drew the new witness into the case, and his testimony was generally felt to be something of a boomerang.

Katz is on trial for his share in an alleged plot whereby $100,000 worth of Heinze copper securities were sold on the Street immediately after they had been pledged as collateral for a $50,000 loan at the Windsor Trust Company. Stirling Birmingham, the company's loan manager, was under cross-examination when Mr. McIntyre asked him if he knew William C. Dickel. Birmingham said they had been friends as fellow-employes of the Windsor Trust for several years. The lawyer turned and pointed to some one in the courtroom.

"Is that he?"

Birmingham, looking greatly puzzled, said that it was.

"And did you send this man, or a man named Hauchaus or any one to Katz's father to say that you were down and out, and that unless money was paid you would give testimony that would send Katz away?"

"Most certainly not."

"Did you send a man to me at recess to say that you wanted to see me before you gave your testimnoy this afternoon?"

Birmingham, still looking puzzled, denied it vigorously.

"If the man who told me that is in the room let him stand up," cried Mr. McIntyre, with a flourish.

Nobody stood up, and Assistant District Attorney Nott asked quietly if the defense intended to call Dickel. The defense had no such intention, and in two minutes Mr. Nott had the stranger on the stand. Taking the clue from Mr. McIntyre's reference, Mr. Nott began searching inquiries as to alleged overtures to Katz's father.

"Why," said the witness, somewhat reluctantly and greatly surprised at his position, "I did go to see Bernard Katz. I knew that Birmingham knew some things about Charles Katz in this case. I understood that Katz had been making overtures to Birmingham to leave town, and I wanted to let them know where they could find Birmingham. I had heard Birmingham talking the case over with his lawyers at 165 Broadway."

"And what did you hear him say?" Mr. Nott urged.

"Why, that Katz had used $8,500 of the $10,000 he made in the transaction for paying his gambling debts at the Marquette Club. When asked why Katz had stopped going there, he said that he had a new game that would beat playing all hollow, and that he hoped to make $13,000 next week without spending a dollar. That was the week before the Windsor deal. Birmingham had all that information, but he did not tell it to me, nor did he send me to see the elder Katz."

"Then why did you go?" cried Mr. McIntyre, whose voice was rising with his color. "Didn't Katz's father put you out of the house, and didn't his mother call you a blackmailer?"

"Certainly not. We parted very pleasantly. The old man was a bit excited, though. He sort of went on a rampage, so I left."

"So he went on a rampage, did he?" said Mr. McIntyre.

The witness admitted it.

At this point court was adjourned, Justice Marcus promising Mr. McIntyre a chance at Dickel in the morning. The jury was warned to expect an all-night session.

When Walter L. Clark, one of the plotters who turned State's evidence, was under cross-examination yesterday he was reviled for testifying against the very man who had provided his bail bond. Mr. Nott, in response, drew forth the fact that $5,000 of the bond was secured with Clark's own money, the receipt for which he had since given to Katz. In asking why he had done this, Mr. Nott was stopped by the court. It was a second unsuccessful attempt to bring out on the stand the rumors of an alleged fund collected for the purpose of bribing the District Attorney into inaction.

Our Suits for Men at $15 to $25

are as good in their internal construction as external appearance would lead you to expect

You must have abiding faith in your clothier. But you should select only a clothier worthy of that faith. The buying of men's clothes may be likened to the purchase of a piano; the polished case of the instrument hides either perfect inner construction or worthless rubbish. With clothes, outward style may be pleasing, yet a few wearings may disclose defects utterly fatal to shapeliness or satisfactory service.

But in either instance, you buy on faith. Why not eliminate all chances by putting your trust only in that name which has a a reputation—and a time-honored one—behind it?

It is because our own tailormen fashion every garment we sell that we can promise, even for our suits at $15 to $25, the same faultless construction through and through that characterizes our garments at the highest price we ask.

REARREST AUTO SPEEDERS.

Ten Will Face Trial Again as Second and Third Offenders.

"Well, I guess we won't see so many cases of speeding as we used to."

This was the summary of the present automobile situation in Special Sessions as seen by one of the many policemen summoned to the District Attorney's office yesterday to make out new and long affidavits concerning the first and second offences of certain fast drivers.

Ten warrants have been issued by Magistrate Breen in the Tombs Court for the rearrest of offenders who will be charged to-day, nine as second offenders and one as a third offender.

The action is made necessary by the recent ruling in Special Sessions that all second or third offences must be so charged in the Magistrates' court.

REGAN ESCAPES DEATH CHAIR.

Plea of Assault Accepted After Murder Trial Had Begun.

For his share in a Tenderloin brawl of five years ago, which ended in the death of Walter Roy Joyce, "Kid" Regan pleaded guilty before Judge Foster, in General Sessions yesterday, to assault in the first degree. The indictment had been for murder. Special Prosecutor Ely had gone through half his list of witnesses when Regan's counsel announced he would change his plea.

Regan is a brother of Police Lieutenant Martin Regan, and the cry of police protection did not subside until Detective Peabody, who was removed from the force for negligence in the case, found the "Kid" in Los Angeles.

Joyce was bartender at the "Barrel" rathskellar, 51 West Thirty-first Street. On the morning of April 13, 1905, he was killed there and several wounded in a fight over a woman. Regan will be sentenced on May 6. The limit is ten years.

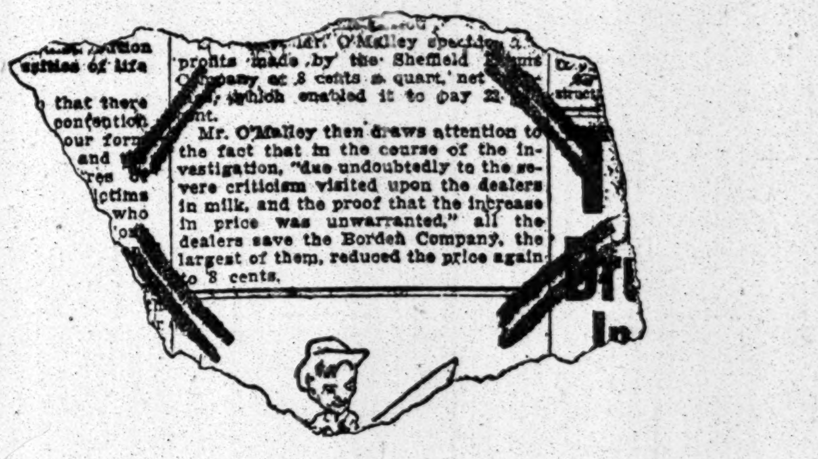
SEPARATION MONEY UNPAID.

Ex-Controller of New York Life Sued by His Wife for a Settlement.

The suit of Sarah G. Thompson against her husband, John M. Thompson, a former Controller of the New York Life Insurance Company and a son of an ex-Governor of South Carolina, to recover $1,542 alleged defaults of payments under a separation agreement, came to trial yesterday in the City Court before Judge Lynch.

The Thompsons separated in April, 1908. Thompson agreed, Mrs. Thompson alleges, to pay her $50 a month for the odd years and $100 a month for the even years and $15 a month for the support of each of their three children while they were in her custody. She charges that in July last he stopped his payments.

Mrs. Thompson began suit for a formal separation last December.



Mr. O'Malley specifies ... profits made by the Sheffield ... Company at 8 cents a quart, net ... which enabled it to pay 22 ...

Mr. O'Malley then draws attention to the fact that in the course of the investigation, "due undoubtedly to the severe criticism visited upon the dealers in milk, and the proof that the increase in price was unwarranted," all the dealers save the Borden Company, the largest of them, reduced the price again to 8 cents.

NATURALLY!

Borden's Country-Bottled Milk was NOT included in the price reduction referred to above:

—because it is a specialized product;

—because it bears no relation whatever to Ordinary City Milk, either as to purity, or price;

—because it is safeguarded by every possible precaution from country to consumer, and its only possible competitor is the expensive certified milk selling for 12 to 20 cents per quart.

BORDEN'S COUNTRY-BOTTLED MILK

—is as good as certified milk; it cannot be made safer, purer, or more wholesome.

—its low price is possible only because of its vast sales and one small profit between producer and consumer.

That extra penny guarantees the health of your family.

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS IN BELGIAN CAPITAL

Says the Nation Offers One of the Greatest Examples of Hope in the World.

HONORED BY YOUNG KING

Monarch Insists on Opportunity for Private Talk with ex-President—Latter Goes to Holland To-day.

BRUSSELS, April 28.—Ex-President Roosevelt met King Albert of Belgium to-day, and they exchanged cordial greetings, later driving together from the Brussels Exposition to Laaken Palace and spending an hour in the gardens.

The people of Brussels gave Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt and their children a warm welcome on their arrival here from Paris at noon. There was a great throng at the station, and while the crowd cheered and a brass band played Mr. Roosevelt was greeted by American Minister Charles Page Bryan and others of the Legation and was officially welcomed to Brussels by Burgomaster Max and Baron de Moor, aid de camp to King Albert.

An automobile was in waiting, and, escorted by a platoon of mounted police, the Roosevelts were driven to the Hotel Flanders in the Place Royale. Soon afterward they were taken to the American Legation, where a sister of Mr. Bryan gave a luncheon in their honor. Forty covers were laid.

The luncheon guests included Premier Schollaert and the other members of the Cabinet with their wives; Count Mérode, Grand Marshal of the Court, and the Countess; several members of the Diplomatic Corps, among them being Russian Minister de Giers and American Consul General Watts with Mrs. Watts, the Duke de Ursel, Government Commissioner of the Brussels Exposition, and E. de Cartier de Marchienne, Counselor of the Belgian Legation at Washington.

Following the luncheon there was a reception for the American colony. Col. Roosevelt then visited the exposition, and his appearance there was marked by a double demonstration—for himself and the King. His passage down the broad Avenue Louise, where there was a liberal display of American flags, was accompanied by continual cheers.

The Salle des Fêtes, where the ex-President spoke, was packed to the doors, and several thousand persons outside were unable to gain admission. While Col. Roosevelt waited in the reception room in the rear of the stage the young King arrived by the side entrance. He was attired in the fatigue uniform of a Colonel of the Guards, the crack Belgian regiment, and was accompanied by a single aid.

The King strode forward, and no introductions were necessary, as he and Mr. Roosevelt had met in America when the King was Crown Prince. After a warm handshake they talked for several minutes in low tones, the King's tall figure towering head and shoulders above that of the ex-President. His Majesty told Mr. Roosevelt how glad he was to welcome him to Belgium. While they talked the others present fell back.

King Albert then, with a profound bow, retired and entered the hall, taking his place on a gilded, red-cushioned chair immediately below the front of the stage. The crowd applauded lustily as the King entered, but the outburst was mild compared with the roar which greeted Mr. Roosevelt a moment later.

M. Wiart, President of the Exposition, attempted to introduce the Colonel, but for several minutes he could not be heard above the din. He paid a flattering tribute to Mr. Roosevelt, the King several times joining in the applause. When he referred to the ex-President's part in calling the Second Hague Peace Conference, and when he described him as "Amrica's foremost representative citizen," the audience cheered heartily.

Mr. Roosevelt in reply spoke for about twenty minutes, beginning with a few words of thanks.

"It has always seemed to me," he said, "that the Belgian people offers one of the greatest examples of hope presented by any people of the world. There has been much talk about decadence of race, but Belgium proves that a great past is not incompatible with a great present and a great future. Flanders was one of the greatest industrial centres of the Middle Ages. Now you are rivaling and surpassing the work of your ancestors."

Mr. Roosevelt then discussed the problems of citizenship, covering much the same ground as in his Sorbonne lecture. He insisted upon the necessity of the development of the ordinary qualities—industry, honesty, and morality. Speaking of leadership, he asserted that a great genius might become a great enemy of the people. "Woe to the country," he exclaimed, "which puts its trust in genius, of military or other type, rather than in the high average character of the ordinary citizen!"

He continued amid intense enthusiasm with a tribute to the monarch seated before him: "I congratulate you," he said, "that at the outset of a new reign, which I am sure will be fraught with all possible benefits, there should come as a herald and augury of triumph in the future this great demonstration of the extraordinary activities and abilities of the Belgian people."

Mr. Roosevelt did not mention the Congo either directly or indirectly. On leaving the exposition he drove with the King to Laaken Palace. The King had particularly insisted upon an arrangement whereby he could drive alone with his American guest. They were recognized and cheered all along the route, a distance of about seven miles.

A dinner was given this evening by the King in honor of Mr. Roosevelt. As the Court is still in semi-mourning, the ladies wore black gowns. Those present included the members of the Royal family, the Cabinet Ministers, and high officials attached to the King's military and civil household, a few members of the Belgian nobility, American Minister Bryan, and several eminent scholars.

The King and Queen sat together, with Mr. Roosevelt at the Queen's left and Mrs. Roosevelt at the King's right. Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who was the only lady present not wearing black, was gowned in white satin with silver trimmings. Both during and after the dinner the King and Queen devoted almost their entire attention to their American guests.

More than 2,000 persons attended the reception afterward given to Mr. Roosevelt at the Hôtel de Ville, which is the most interesting edifice in Brussels and one of the most beautiful buildings of the kind in Belgium, dating back to the fifteenth century. The square was brilliantly illuminated, and when the ex-President arrived a procession, headed by Burgomaster Max, with Mrs. Roosevelt on his arm, was formed. The party then passed through the beautifully decorated salons, being saluted on all sides.

Father Diedricks, who was formerly in charge of the Catholics in the Philippines, and two Belgian missionaries, called today on Col. Roosevelt and thanked him for what he had done for the church and for the missions in those islands.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party will leave Brussels for Holland early to-morrow.

PARIS, April 28.—Mr. Roosevelt's visit to Paris ended to-day, when, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, and Kermit Roosevelt, he took a morning train for Brussels. The party occupied a special car attached to the train leaving here at 8:10 A. M. As they drove up in an automobile a great crowd inside and outside the Gare du Nord, held back by mounted police and lines of Republican Guards, uncovered and there were cries of "Long live Roosevelt!"

LAND PARADE FOR ROOSEVELT.

Reception Committee Will Escort Him in Carriages Up Fifth Avenue.

According to the official programme for the reception of Col. Roosevelt on his return to the United States on Saturday, June 18, announced yesterday by Capt. Cosby, Secretary of the Mayor's Reception Committee, Mayor Gaynor will meet ex-President Roosevelt at the Battery and officially welcome him to his native city and country.

Col. Roosevelt, it is now announced, will return on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria of the Hamburg-American Line. He will be met at Quarantine by the entire Reception Committee appointed by the Mayor, which will be conveyed down the bay by a revenue cutter. Mr. Roosevelt will then be transferred to the committee's boat, and, escorted by a parade of excursion steamers, yachts, and harbor craft of all kinds, will be conveyed to the Battery, where he and the committee will disembark, to be received by the Mayor. The entire party will then proceed in carriages from the Battery up Broadway in this order: Mounted police, mounted bands, and escort of Rough Riders.

Col. Roosevelt, probably with the Mayor and Cornelius Vanderbilt, Chairman of the Reception Committee, will ride in the first carriage. The Reception Committee will follow in carriages.

The parade will move up Broadway to Waverley Place, turning there into Washington Square and passing under the Washington Arch. It will then proceed up Fifth Avenue in the same order to Fifty-ninth Street, where it will be dispersed.

Capt. Cosby also announced that the Reception Committee had arranged to open permanent offices in the old Mutual Life Building, at 146 Broadway, early next week, and that organizations desiring to take part in the parade should apply to the committee there.

COST OF ENGLISH WARSHIPS.

Admiralty Lord Cannot Tell Why It Is Higher Than in America.

LONDON, April 28.—The comparison of the respective cost of construction of American and British battleships, which was made by Rear Admiral Bowles, U. S. N., retired, and which showed that the American cost was considerably less than the British, formed the subject of a question put to First Lord of the Admiralty McKenna in the House of Commons to-day.

The First Lord replied that he was unable to say why the cost was lower in the protected country than in free-trade England, as he had no detailed information as to the exact proportions of the vessels and the equipments included in the computation.

"In this comparison of the cost of battleships," continued Mr. McKenna, "there is no standard of quality, but, speaking of mercantile ships, in which presumably a certain standard of excellence would be demanded, Rear Admiral Bowles admitted that the United States could not compete with the British and German firms."

Mr. McKenna was invited to say whether the standard of efficiency in the equipment of the United States Navy was 25 per cent. less than in the British Navy, but replied that he had no knowledge as to the standard of efficiency in the United States Navy and could make no comparison.

LORD KITCHENER PROMOTED.

Made a Field Marshal—The Baton Handed to Him by the King.

LONDON, April 28.—King Edward handed to Lord Kitchener the baton of Field Marshal at an audience at Buckingham Palace to-day.

The Government seems to have decided definitely that Lord Kitchener shall take up the Mediterranean appointment, in spite of the popular clamor in favor of placing him at the head of the home forces. In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Haldane, Secretary for War, stated that it was proposed that Lord Kitchener should shortly begin his duties as Field Marshal and Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean, with headquarters at Malta.

RETURNING TO CHANG-SHA.

Yale Mission About to be Reopened—Some Business Houses Resume.

CHANG-SHA, China, April 28.—The Yale Mission, abandoned on account of the rioting, will be reopened on May 2. Some foreign business houses have resumed operations at inland points, but the foreigners generally will not return to these districts for some days.

The gentry and officials are endeavoring to settle damage claims with the individual losers. The British Consul has refused demands for settlement through official channels.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

ROME, April 28.—The latest report is that the Vatican has abandoned the idea of making an official protest against the visit of the Prince of Monaco to the Quirinal, it being considered that the Prince's attitude while he was here sufficiently justified his assertion that he was in Rome as a private individual and not as a sovereign.

NAPLES, April 28.—Although the police continue their energetic investigation into the drowning of Miss Estelle Reid, the American art student whose body was found on the seashore here a week ago, they believe that her death was due either to accident or suicide.

LONDON, April 28.—The Allan liner Carthagenia, which was disabled while en route from Liverpool for St. John, Halifax, and Philadelphia, and is being towed back to Glasgow by the steamer Hesperian, passed Malin Head today.

AMOY, April 28.—Prof. Edward Ross of the University of Wisconsin, who is studying the sociology and industries of China, is stopping here. He will next visit Foo-Chow.

RIO JANEIRO, April 28.—The treaty between Brazil and Peru relating to the boundary line between the two countries in the Amazon region, was approved to-day by the Senate.

HEIN CAN'T HAVE HIS CHILD.

Court Rules That a Divorced Man Is Not a Proper Guardian.

Isa Willard Hein, whose wife, Edna Valentine Hein, recently substantiated charges of misconduct against him in a sensational trial in the Supreme Court, applied yesterday to Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman for the partial custody of his 5-year-old daughter, who under the decree of divorce was given solely to his wife. In arguing for Hein, ex-Judge W. M. K. Olcott said that Mrs. Hein had forgiven many of her husband's offenses. Justice O'Gorman said:

"That may be true, but this innocent child neither forgave nor condoned them; and the paramount consideration is not the pleasure or comfort of either parent; it is the welfare of the child. If it is true that this husband and father did not lead a moral life, the court will not strain its authority as guardian of the child in his favor."

Counsel for both Hein and Mrs. Hein were allowed time to file briefs, and decision was reserved.

BOSSES PLAN TO BEAT ALL PRIMARY BILLS

Conciliatory Policy Abandoned Since Hughes Announced Retirement from Politics.

LEGISLATURE TO QUIT SOON

May 19 Probable Date of Adjournment—Senate Committee Votes Against Woman Suffrage.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 28.—Not only will the Hinman-Green bill, embodying the Governor's plan of primary reform, be defeated, but the Legislature will adjourn without passing any primary legislation at all, if the leaders opposed to Gov. Hughes have their way. This may be stated on the best of authority.

Since the Governor announced that he had decided to accept a place on the United States Supreme Court bench and consequently to take himself out of politics entirely, there has been a complete change of front on the part of the anti-Hughes leaders. Where they formerly were anxious to placate the Governor and his friends they are now out in open opposition to his primary programme.

To-day the Assembly adopted a concurrent resolution providing for final adjournment of the Legislature on May 12, two weeks from to-day. The resolution was sent to the Senate, where it was referred to the Finance Committee, which is the usual course. It was said by the Senate leaders that owing to the handicap growing out of the Allds investigation the Senate would not be able to get through in time for adjournment on the date fixed in the resolution, and that the closing day probably would come a week later, or on May 19.

In the meantime the Rules Committee in the Assembly will take charge of all legislation next Monday night. The standing commitees in the lower house are bringing their labors to a close to-night. The most important measures have been disposed of already, and little legislation of any consequence will come into the custody of the omnipotent Committee on Rules this year except bills originating in the Senate. An exception has been made in favor of the continuance of the Assembly Judiciary Committee, and this only for consideration of the direct primary bills now pending.

These bills, including the Hinman-Green bill, it was learned to-day, will be reported without amendment or recommendation in both houses next week. The plan is to have the Governor's bill up for debate first. The leaders have marshaled their forces and arranged to offer amendments from the floor instead of having them made in committee. No plan could be better calculated to kill the bill.

The Governor's friends have gone on record as opposed to any compromise. They will oppose any amendments that are offered from the floor. His opponents will oppose the bill. The amendments planned include one to have the bills go into effect on Jan. 1, 1911, instead of immediately, and one embodying the compromise plan which retains the State convention and limits the direct primary plan to candidates for the Legislature.

The Ward Short Ballot bill was favorably reported to the Assembly to-day, amended so as to apply to New York City only; also the Ward bill making it a misdemeanor to interfere with watchers at the polls or to prompt a voter. The Toombs bill forbidding the reporting of "wash" sales of stock over the ticker was also reported favorably.

The Agnew-Perkins Anti-Oral Bookmaking bills were made a special order for next Tuesday by the Senate to-day.

The Senate Committee on Taxation recommended for favorable action the bill directed against the Raines law hotels in New York City. It provides that in order to obtain a liquor license a hotel must have at least twenty-five rooms and a dining room of at least 600 square feet, with accommodations for fifty guests at one time. Other provisions are that licenses to sell liquor in cities of the first class shall be limited to one for each 1,000 of population and that the State Excise Commissioner may appoint 150 special agents to enforce the law independent of the local police.

The Senate Cities Committee has rejected both the Shortt and the Lee bills to provide a method for determining what bonds of New York City shall be eliminated in reckoning the debt limit. The committee will report its own bill, which allows the Board of Estimate to take the initiative and submit facts to the Appellate Division for its determination as to the bonds which are to be eliminated.

Any doubt as to the attitude of the Legislature toward the plan to extend the elective franchise to women was dispelled to-night when the Senate Judiciary Committee, by a vote of 6 to 2, refused to report favorably the Hill constitutional amendment which would remove the prohibition against woman suffrage.

MISSOURI BANKER A SUICIDE.

S. R. Nelson, Brother of Seaboard National Vice President, Drinks Acid.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., April 28.—S. R. Nelson, formerly President of the Missouri Bankers' Association, committed suicide to-day by drinking carbolic acid. It is said that his accounts are correct.

He was a brother of S. G. Nelson, Vice President of the Seaboard National Bank of New York City.

$140,000 Left by Mrs. Thorne to Charity

Phebe Anna Thorne, who died Aug. 25 last, left an estate valued at $1,044,235.71, according to a report filed in the transfer tax office yesterday. Miss Thorne bequeathed about $140,000 to charitable, benevolent, and other institutions.

NOTED SUFFRAGETTE COMING.

Mrs. Montefiore, an English Leader, Expected Here in a Few Days.

Mrs. Dora B. Montefiore, one of the most original of the English suffragettes, is due to arrive here on the White Star liner, Arabic, on Sunday evening or Monday morning. She will make her first appearance before the American suffragists at the monthly meeting of the Equal Suffrage League at the Hotel Astor on Tuesday. Other guests at this gathering will be Mrs. Laurence Irving, Miss Mabel Hackney, and Miss Emily Wakeman.

Mrs. Montefiore first took an active part in the suffrage movement at Sydney, New South Wales, and the first meetings of the Womanhood Suffrage League, which did much to procure the vote for women in the colony, were held in her house. After the death of her husband she returned to England, and was for a time on the executive committee of the National Suffrage Society of London.

This organization, however, did not seem to her to be following a sufficiently vigorous policy, and she determined to do something which would attract public attention and interest the newspapers. She decided to make her protest against taxation without representation practical, and so refused, in 1904, to pay her income tax.

This was a direct attack on the most sacred part of the British fiscal system, and the Government could not pass it over. Enough of Mrs. Montefiore's furniture was sold at auction to satisfy the demands of the tax collector. Many women attended the sale, made speeches denouncing the tyranny of the Government, and succeeded in getting themselves reported and their principles advertised.

Mrs. Montefiore refused again to pay in 1905, with the same result, but in 1906 the suffragette movement had gathered sufficient strength for the trial of new tactics.

The Women's Social and Political Union of London came to her support, and when the bailiffs came to levy on her goods they found themselves locked out. For six weeks Mrs. Montefiore's house was in a state of siege, and was at the same time a rallying point for the suffragettes. Finally the police grew tired of the situation, forced Mrs. Montefiore's door, and seized enough of her furniture to pay her taxes.

A few months later Mrs. Montefiore formed one of a storming party which attacked the House of Commons. She was arrested, but like all her companions, refused to be bound over to keep the peace, and was sent to prison.

SMITH'S DEATH STIRS LEE.

Business Waits While Town Discusses It—Widow Hears the Facts.

Special to The New York Times.

LEE, Mass., April 28.—Business is almost at a standstill in this town, while citizens discuss the sudden death on Tuesday night in New York of Wellington Smith, the town's most prominent citizen.

The body was brought here this afternoon by Mr. Smith's eldest son, Augustus R. Smith. The widow is prostrated with grief. She learned the facts to-day regarding her husband's death. An attempt was made last evening to conceal them.

The family professes that its members have no idea who the woman was who was with Mr. Smith when he died and was supposed to be his wife. Although her identity has not been fully established, it is understood in Lee that she was a frequent visitor here and was a relative of one of Mr. Smith's business acquaintances. He has been heard to call her "Anna." He frequently received letters addressed to him in a woman's hand at the general delivery window of the Pittsfield Post Office. The letters were generally from New York.

In Lee Mr. Smith was known as a deeply religious man. He was a leader with his son in the Prohibition movement, and joined the No License Association because he wanted to see the sale of liquor banished from Lee for the good of the morals of the young men of the town. He was a stanch member of the Lee Congregational Church, to which he was a liberal contributor, and was a member of its Prudential and Finance Committee. His home, Elm Croft, lies in the shadow of the church steeple just across from the village green, and when an attempt was made a short time ago to discontinue the ringing of the bell in the steeple, Mr. Smith was the foremost to object, because he liked to listen to the tolling.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon, and will be private. All the stores in the town are to close for the day, as will the mills of the Smith Paper Company, of which he was President.

HASN'T APPROVED BANK PLAN.

MacVeagh Says Taft Has Not Yet Expressed Himself on It.

Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh, who was the guest of the Trust Company Section of the American Bankers' Association at luncheon in the Lawyers' Club yesterday, told his hosts that President Taft had not expressed his approval of the central bank plan. Mr. MacVeagh said that the Administration did not care to express any opinion at this time on the currency system.

"The President of the United States," he said, "was misquoted in a recent speech at Boston, in which he was reported as having favored the establishment of a central bank. I believe I may say, in connection, that he did not announce that he favored or did not approve of such a plan."

The Secretary of the Treasury was introduced by Lawrence L. Gillespie, Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company, who is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Trust Company Section.

DENIAL FROM ROCKEFELLER.

Has Not Abandoned Effort to Have Congress Charter Uplift Foundation.

Starr J. Murphy, personal counsel for John D. Rockefeller, said yesterday that the report telegraphed from Washington and printed in yesterday's papers that Mr. Rockefeller had decided to abandon his efforts to get his proposed Foundation incorporated in the District of Columbia was without foundation.

Mr. Murphy said further that Mr. Rockefeller had nothing to do with the "Economic and General Foundation," for which a charter is being sought from the New York Legislature, for "an aged man of wealth," said to have $2,500,000 to spend in charity.

7,000 MILES ON A STRETCHER.

Member of Canadian Parliament Was Taken Ill in India.

After traveling almost half way around the world, Herbert B. Ames, member of the Canadian Parliament from St. Antoine's, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic.

Stricken with fever while traveling from Bombay to Port Said, Mr. Ames was sent to a hospital at the latter port. He recovered and started for home, traveling 7,000 miles on a stretcher. He arrived much improved in health, and is now on his way to Canada.

Mr. Ames went abroad to attend the triennial congress of British Chambers of Commerce, held last September in Sydney, N. S. W.

All but One Caught in Raid Held.

The eighteen men arrested on Wednesday in a raid on alleged gambling houses at 158 West Forty-sixth Street and 121 West Forty-seventh Street were arraigned before Magistrate Appleton in the District Attorney's office yesterday morning. Eight common gamblers were held for examination. Nine were held as frequenters, and one, a waiter, was released. Bonds were furnished in all cases.

Neckwear Sale.
The Neckwear Event of 1910.
None Less Than 50c Value.

This sale is an echo of recent Philadelphia labor disturbances. The inability to deliver on many large contracts brought cancellation, which left the manufacturers no choice but to sacrifice. In consequence, we have acquired from probably the foremost American Neckwear House the silks which under normal conditions would have been sold in the better class of furnishing stores at from 50c upwards. These have been made up from our own patterns and are offered you very much under price.

There are forty solid colors and innumerable patterns; there are pure silk scarfs in plain and fancy colors, open end and reversible four-in-hands, knitted four-in-hands in plain colors and cross stripes, tubular four-in-hands in plain and vertical stripes.

As we open this morning, there are but 600 dozen in the four Smith Gray stores—come early.

TAFT MAY SPEAK OUT AGAINST INSURGENTS

Greatly Irritated by Insistence on Amending Some Features of His Bills.

WIRE COMPANIES INCLUDED

House Votes to Put Telegraph and Telephone Lines Under the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Taft, according to some of those who have talked to him very recently, is becoming irritated by the opposition in Congress to his legislative programme.

It is declared that he is on the point of breaking out into open denunciation of some of those whom he regards as attempting to block the Administration bills. It is expected that if he does not resort to public excoriation of them he will, at least, call them to the White House, and tell them exactly what he thinks of their brand of Republicanism.

He is especially indignant about the way in which certain men in each house declare publicly that they are for the Administration bills and then go into session and vote against features which the President regards as essential.

The insurgents at whom this irritation is directed declare that it will not affect their course in the least. They call attention to the fact that the irritation seems to be directed at them alone, whereas there are several regulars who have been fighting other Administration measures with all their might. The injunction and Postal Savings Bank bills are in dire difficulty because of opposition from House regulars, and one of the matters on which the President has been asking help from the insurgents is this trouble with two items of his legislative programme.

President Taft continued to-day his efforts to bring the House insurgents into line for the railroad bill. He had Representatives Cooper and Kuestermann of Wisconsin, Pickett of Iowa, and Steenerson of Minnesota at the White House and talked to them one by one about the situation. All four of these men have been voting with the regulars on the critical points of the fight, and their votes have helped to save the Administration provisions on the two occasions when one more vote on the other side would have stricken an important part from the bill.

Telegraph and Telephone Included.

After meeting a number of defeats in their efforts to amend the Railroad bill, another tie vote being recorded in one instance, the House Democrats and insurgents succeeded this afternoon, by a vote of 109 to 76, in securing an amendment placing telegraph and telephone lines under the jurisdiction of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, designating them as common carriers. This amendment was proposed by Mr. Bartlett of Georgia just before adjournment and after some of the regulars had left the floor.

Chairman Mann of the Inter-State and Foreign Commerce Committee and Representative Townsend, author of the bill, contended that such legislation had no place in a Railroad Rate bill, affecting only carriers transporting persons and property. Mr. Mann pointed out that such an amendment might cause untold complications.

"It is not denied," he said; "that Congress has the right to regulate these telegraph and telephone companies; but if they are put on the same basis as railroads it will cause trouble. Railroads are not permitted to discriminate in their rates. The same rule, rigidly applied to telegraph and telephone companies, would mean that there could be no difference between night and day rates, and that press rates could not be made lower than the rates accorded to individuals."

The amendment was supported in debate by Representatives Underwood, Fitzgerald, and Hobson, Democrats, and Cooper, insurgent.

Mr. Bartlett gave notice that at the proper time he would offer additional amendments providing that wireless companies and their rates and practices also be made subject to the jurisdiction of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Another Tie Vote Results.

Before this the Democrats, with the aid of fourteen insurgents, almost succeeded in striking from the bill that clause which provides that the United States and not the Inter-State Commerce Commission shall be made defendant in all suits brought to set aside the orders of the commission. This amendment, which was lost by a vote of 121 to 121, also provided that the attorneys for the Inter-State Commerce Commission should conduct the cases, as heretofore, and not the Attorney General, as provided by the committee bill. On the final vote the following Republicans voted with the Democrats: Hubbard, Kendall, Madison, Murdock, Norris, Gronna, Woods, Cooper, Haughen, Good, Davis, Lindbergh, Lenroot, and Volstead. These insurgents held together pretty well on other amendments which were proposed, and lost generally by close votes.

Both the Republican and Democratic whips have sent out urgent requests to all members to remain in their seats during the consideration of the railroad bill. This resulted in a somewhat better attendance to-day. The tie vote on Monday by which the commerce court provision of the bill was saved and the succeeding close votes of to-day have served to thoroughly alarm the regulars, and Whip Dwight is renewing his efforts to enlist the full Republican strength.

Speaker Cannon remained on the floor during the consideration of the bill to-day and voted with the regulars on all the amendments proposed.

In the Senate to-day it looked for a while as though a vote would be reached at last on the Cummins amendment to the railroad bill, which has been under debate in that body for a week. At the last moment, however, Senator Borah rose to make a "final" comment on the measure, and the debate began again. It was spirited for a time, and Senator Aldrich showed unusual activity in defending the bill as it stands. In the end, however, adjournment was taken without a vote on the amendment having been reached.

SETTLING HOCKING DISPUTE.

Rumored That Keene Brokers Will Make Concessions to End Inquiry.

With the further adjournment yesterday of the examination of James R. Keene in the bankruptcy hearing of J. M. Fiske & Co. rumors were revived of the prospective settlement of the claims of the losers in the Hocking pool out of court.

While James R. Keene's attorneys have stoutly denied that their client would settle, it is understood that the brokers who are accused of having played double with the pool members have had the advisability of avoiding further disclosures suggested to them by Mr. Keene, and it is predicted that the receivers for J. M. Fiske & Co. and Lathrop, Haskins & Co. will reach an agreement with Mr. Keene's brokers without further airing of the case in the courts.

DIVIDEND PAYMENTS MORE.

Interest Disbursement Next Month Will Also Be Ahead of Last Year.

The dividend and interest disbursements next month, as estimated by The Journal of Commerce, will total $87,327,004, against $79,391,032 in May of last year. As was to be expected, the disbursements will be less than those of the current month, which were estimated by the same authority at $138,502,189.

Dividends will call for $32,827,014 of next month's total, against $31,191,032 in May last year, and interest disbursements $54,500,000, against $48,200,000 last year.

The increase over last year is attributed largely to the resumption or increase in the dividends of industrial and other corporations since last May. The large number of new bond and note issues account for the increase in interest disbursements, although the fact that the returns are more complete this year is also a factor.

PATTEN GETS READY FOR A COTTON FLOOD

Bears Are to Begin Deliveries Monday, and Bull Leader Says He'll Take All Offered Him.

CALLING HIS MONEY LOANS

No Corner Coming, He Says, and If Market Goes to 17 He Will Get Out of It.

James A. Patten, who has been credited with being the real power behind the bull campaign in cotton which has helped the advance from around 8 cents a pound last Fall to nearly 16½ cents last December and 14½ cents now for the May option, came here from Chicago yesterday to meet the flood of cotton which the bears will pour in on him on Monday. Mr. Patten was in cheerful mood all day at the offices of his brokers, J. S. Bache & Co., and talked freely about everything but about how much cotton he expects to take.

"That is a business secret," Mr. Patten said. "I haven't even told my wife that yet."

Having a large part of his funds in liquid shape in the call loan market, he was busy calling loans yesterday. It is predicted that the cotton bulls will have to take care of about $10,000,000 or $11,000,000 worth of cotton on Monday. To-day is the first day for the issuance of notices for tenders of May cotton, with deliveries to begin Monday. The bears have been combing the South for cotton, and have even brought back 50,000 bales of American cotton from Liverpool at a loss said to reach $4 or $5 a bale. They have accumulated 215,000 bales in warehouses in New York. Of this 190,000 is certificated in grades ready for delivery, but it is not believed that more than 150,000 bales will be tendered on Monday. At yesterday's price of about 14.50 cents a pound, 150,000 bales are worth $10,875,000.

Mr. Patten reiterated that he had no intention of cornering the market, and the course of the market did not indicate anything like a panic on the part of the shorts. The course of the May option was downward, the drop running from 15 to 18 points, or from 75 cents to 90 cents a bale, with the market comparatively dull.

"There will be no squeeze in cotton if I can help it," said Mr. Patten. "Why, a friend of Mr. McFadden talked to me the other day about the great hardship that would be worked all over the country if the price was run up to 17 or 18 cents a pound. I told him that if cotton went to those levels I would be found sold out of my line."

Mr. Patten was asked if he thought the dullness into which the cotton market has fallen in the past week or so was the result of the Government proceedings against the pool or the fear of a corner.

"I think they are waiting to see if I take my cotton," he said, "although the suit has no doubt hurt the market. I am here to take all the cotton that is offered me and to pay for it. I do not know what Scales or Brown or Hayne are going to do. They bought cotton and I bought cotton, but we never had any agreement. Its none of my business what they are going to do."

Mr. Patten said that he did not know much about the prospects for the new crop. He said that he had very little information about the damage done by the recent frosts. "I get all sorts of letters and telegrams," he said. "Some of them from people I have never heard of, but I know no more than the Street. I think it will be a week or so before anybody can tell."

DIFFERENTIALS UP AGAIN.

Trunk Line Committee No Nearer a Conclusion Than Before.

The Export Committee of the Trunk Line Association held a prolonged meeting yesterday to discuss a settlement of the export differential rate dispute which has been on for many months, but no more definite conclusion was reached than at a previous meeting held on Monday last. It was decided by the conferrees to refer the questions once more to the executive officers, in the hope that these may succeed in establishing harmony, although so far the traffic officials of the trunk lines have been unable to do so.

It is thought that the recent increase in operating expenses of all lines, due to the increased wages, will be an influence favorable to a settlement of this rate dispute between the lines running from this port and those running from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston.

CALL MONEY 7 PER CENT.

Rate Went Up Through the Shifting of Loans by Cotton Bulls.

Call money loaned yesterday at 7 per cent., which was the highest rate recorded since the first week of January, when as high as 14 per cent. was paid. A factor which contributed to the rise was the calling in of a large amount of money which had been loaned out by cotton bulls, who had previously prepared for the payments which they will have to make for cotton to be delivered to them in May. Patten was among those who caused money to be called, and, in addition, important interests in the Street were credited with calling in money which temporarily had been employed in the call money department.

All this led to a considerable amount of shifting of loans, with the natural result of an advance in the rate. The range in the call rate yesterday was from 3½ per cent. to 7 per cent., but most of the loans were made at close to the low figure of the day.

COBALT MERGER PLANNED.

Silver Mines in That District Likely to be Brought Under One Head.

The project for a merger of the principal producing silver mines in the Cobalt District of Canada which has been simmering for more than a year, is said to be taking definite shape under the supervision of Samuel Untermyer, who was chiefly instrumental in bringing about the merger of the Boston Consolidated Copper and Gold Mining Company with the Utah Copper Company. It will be recalled that for the copper merger Mr. Untermyer received a $775,000 fee from the Boston Consolidated stockholders.

The Cobalt camp produces about 12 per cent. of the world's output of silver. The properties so far named as likely to be comprised in the merger are the Nipissing and La Rose properties, which are already closely allied through having five Directors in common, and Kerr Lake and Crown Reserve, the former a Lewisohn property.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—For the first time in several weeks the region of special interest on the weather map has shifted to the district between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains, which is now covered by an extensive area of low pressure, accompanied by temperatures ranging from 90 to 94 degrees.

There was no precipitation of consequence.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light to moderate north to east; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate northeast to east; Souh Atlantic Coast, light to moderate and mostly northeast.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have light to moderate north to east winds, with fair weather, to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York and New Jersey—Fair Friday; warmer in the interior; Saturday fair, warmer; light to moderate northeast to southeast winds.

New England—Fair Friday; slightly warmer in west portion; Saturday fair, warmer; light to moderate north to northeast winds, shifting to southeast.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, warmer Friday and Saturday; light northeast to southeast winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1909.	1910.		1909.	1910.
3 A. M.	48	50	4 P. M.	54	58
6 A. M.	47	48	6 P. M.	50	57
9 A. M.	43	51	9 P. M.	45	53
12 M.	49	54	12 P. M.	42	51

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 54; for the corresponding date last year it was 48; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 53.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 51; at 8 P. M. it was 55. Maximum temperature, 60 degrees at 5 P. M.; minimum, 48 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity, 60 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 33 per cent. at 8 P. M.

THE INCOME TAX AMENDMENT.

What's the hitch about passing the Constitutional amendment regarding the income tax? Both parties are in favor of it. Every voter who has no income is in favor of taxing everybody —man, woman, or child—who has an income. And every legislator who is afraid of his constituents is in favor of the most popular proposal in sight, with greater possibilities of class and State antagonism than even the trust-busting crusade against malefactors of corporate wealth. Yet somehow or other votes are to be had in favor of it only on days when its passage is unlikely. Gentlemen take turns in going on the record and staying away on alternate days, so that there is plenty of campaign material, but thus far no amendment. It was to have been passed certainly last Tuesday. It is to be passed more certainly next Tuesday, but there will be no quorum unless it is gathered by the Legislature's police.

There is likeness to this condition in other current affairs. Regarding this same measure there was like backwardness in other States. Regarding that other primary Republican measure, the anti-railway bill in Congress, very popular among the politicians, there is difficulty in getting ahead. The Senate votes to make time by meeting earlier, and there is no quorum. And in the afternoon it is necessary to go to the baseball game, and there is no quorum. Are the people taking notice how the politicians are running away from their own measures? Will they suffer the issues to be buried in this manner?

Why are the politicians so backward about redeeming their promises to the people? Can it be possible that they are having doubts about what they heard the people say they wanted? Is it possible that both machines are discovering that they are agreed in wanting what the rank and file of neither organization want? Every man is in a position to answer these questions. He knows what he and his neighbors are thinking and saying. The politicians are betraying a suspicion that their constituents are not thinking about the income tax or disturbance of trade as universal blessings. This doubt ought to be removed. We are all really in need of the absolute truth about what the people are thinking and wanting. Perhaps the politicians are right in fancying, or in acting as though they fancied, that their recent procedure calls for a final curtain rather than an encore.

Perhaps after all the people are making their own issues instead of accepting the issues made for them. We do not recall that any of the pending legislation at any capital has elected any candidate. But there is nobody who follows public affairs who cannot recall conspicuous cases in which defeat has followed support of those proposals, because the people are thinking about the tariff mostly, and are thinking differently from the Administration, which is dragging sundry herring across the scent.

This is merely the political view. Several gentlemen whom the community hold in regard were heard upon the merits of the income tax proposal, but rather wandered from the point. If the proposal were to pass an unobjectionable form of income tax the views of Mr. LAWSON PURDY would be weighty. But the proposal is to pass a bad form of income tax, and we do not understand that Mr. PURDY argued against the opinions that this proposal has defects apart from the principle which he advanced. Highly complimentary remarks are made about the argument by Prof. SELIGMAN. He contended that the tax would not discriminate against State securities because it was a universal tax, and all securities would be upon a level. But the prohibition of a discrimination in favor of any security, and a compulsion that a universal burden shall be assumed, is a requirement that a State's securities shall not enjoy an existing privilege of exemption which is of high value. The credit of the State and the City of New York is now benefited by laws giving their securities certain exemptions from taxation, and preferences for certain legal uses. According to the professor's argument there could be no analogous exemption from the universal Federal tax, and therefore no discrimination against any security. But the State could not legislate its securities out of this Federal tax in the manner in which it has legislated them out of the otherwise general tax laws passed by itself. The reduction to a level is practically the same as forbidding the rise above a level. The State's securities would be prejudiced by the amount of the tax, and this would be true none the less because all other like securities would be prejudiced also.

The proposal is bad because it is a bad proposal, not because an income tax is a bad tax. Opinion may differ about an income tax, but it is not strange that it is necessary to close the doors and call the police when it is proposed to take a vote on this tax. There is a natural reluctance to oppose the Administration regarding a policy to which it unfortunately committed itself. Many Democrats are willing to compel their opponents thus to embarrass themselves, although the proposal to subject State securities to a Federal tax is undemocratic. Thus the resolution has a factitious strength derived from its demerits. We have had too much such meretricious legislation. It is better politics to vote on the merits or demerits of legislation as legislation rather than as politics. The proposal has no hopes without Democratic support. The Republicans ought to be wary about voting in such company, and Democrats might well be cautious about allowing political tactics to betray them into support of a measure which no Democrat would initiate in its present form.

MR. HAMMERSTEIN'S RETIREMENT.

We all feel about the retirement of Mr. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN from the operatic field, as he says he feels himself, both glad and sorry. We cannot help being glad that the crisis has passed in the operatic fever, that the period of high temperature, great restlessness and uncertainty will now give place to comparative calm. On the other hand it is a pity that we must lose Mr. HAMMERSTEIN'S good influence in local operatic management. His experiment in that exacting and too frequently ungrateful work cannot be called a failure, as his influence has unquestionably developed a liking for and comprehension of the lyric drama in New York among people who had previously cared little for opera. The Metropolitan Opera House will draw larger audiences next season than it has ever known before.

Mr. HAMMERSTEIN has brought famous artists of the lyric stage to New York who might never have been heard here but for him. He has made us acquainted with the best works of MASSENET and with DEBUSSY'S "Pelléas," CHARPENTIER'S "Louise," and STRAUSS'S "Elektra." His four years of management were marked by lofty aims and generally satisfying results. Undoubtedly it is better to have opera on "a paying basis," and there is no reason why the Metropolitan Opera House, with its vast resources, should not be managed next season with a degree of liberality and catholicity of taste which will atone to the multitude of operagoers for the absence of Mr. HAMMERSTEIN.

WHAT MAKES PRICES?

The Legislature has passed through its earlier stages a bill authorizing corporations to issue shares of capital stock without use of the word dollars. The shares will simply entitle their owners to a proportionate division of property and its income, leaving their value to be determined by something else than the face of the certificate of title. What would be the effect on the price of the shares sold by corporations if they were organized under this law rather than under the present usual, although not universal, custom?

The question is timely in connection with the price of steel manufactures and the increased dividend of the Steel Corporation. The Journal of Commerce says that there was no value originally in the corporation's shares, and that it is able to pay dividends upon a billion of water only by extortionate prices for the goods it sells. "These prices had to be paid by the consumers of all products for which the use of iron and steel is necessary. This value has been drawn out of the people of the country like a transfusion of blood, by the degree of monopoly power imparted through the combination of many companies into one corporation." The Journal of Commerce thinks that some of this power of extortionate price making is derived from the tariff, but also attributes much of it to monopoly and excessive capitalization.

The price of steel rails is certainly not due to these causes, because it has not varied, and is not as high as it was before the corporation was formed. The price of the goods sold by this "monopoly" is generally not higher than the prices of competitors not in its combination, and the most extortionate prices now or recently current were in lines of trade not organized at all. The prices of tin metal and tin plate may be cited as illustrating the fact that the closer a "monopoly" administered upon modern lines the more stable and reasonable are its prices. There is no extortion comparable to that of the unorganized and irresponsible individual owner of anything. The last pound of flesh is then taken ruthlessly, as the price of farmers' products attests.

The reorganization of the Steel Corporation under a form like that of the Great Northern Ore Company would have the same effect upon the price of its goods as the organization of the ore concern has on the price of ore—that is none at all. Nobody asks what is the capital of the seller of anything. The Journal of Commerce knows that the railways' rates are not related to the capitalization of the railways. The Steel Corporation's dividends are proportioned to the amount of its sales and not to its capitalization. The same is true of the Standard Oil Trust, which is as much undercapitalized as the Steel Corporation is alleged to have been overcapitalized. If the capitalization were doubled or halved prices would still be governed by the conditions in the industry, and not by the capitalization. Neither the trust nor its competitors can vary much from each other's prices, for there cannot be two prices in the same market, and yet in the steel trade there are all degrees of capitalization at more and less than strict values for the property covered.

THE MANCHESTER RACE.

The English nation saw Wednesday in the flight of LOUIS PAULHAN, driving his biplane over a distance of 186 miles at express train speed from London to Manchester for The London Daily Mail's prize of $50,000, an event of which school children will read a hundred years hence as marking a historic advance in practice of the science of aerodromics. This, together with the first demonstration flights of the brothers WRIGHT three years ago, and the flight of BLERIOT across the English Channel last year, will be remembered as accomplishing again in history something the world's scientists had declared to be impossible. Only two years ago Prof. SIMON NEWCOMB spoke slightingly of the aeroplane's capabilities of sustained flight as compared with the dirigible balloon, the flights of dirigibles at St. Louis being "hundreds of times longer than the Farman or Wright flier has ever gone." But at Dayton, Ohio, yesterday, Mr. WILBUR WRIGHT declared that "an aeroplane with sufficient gasoline capacity to attempt a transatlantic flight can easily be built."

The aeroplane, like the other bewildering inventions that have distinguished the latter half of the nineteenth century and the first years of the twentieth, has been the constant subject of scientific incredulity. Prof. S. P. LANGLEY, who founded the science which gave it birth, was derided because he announced the discovery of eight principles of artificial flight which are now accepted as true. One of these principles, that the thin planes consume less power for support at high speeds than at low speeds, was greeted with inextinguishable laughter, as flying in the face of the law of friction and of air pressure. But the impossible thing is now proved and verified.

The next thing, after showing that the heavier-than-air machine can fly any convenient distances with one or two passengers, is to make them as safe as bicycles and to give them the capacity of public conveyances. We know that these things, too, are "impossible." Who will do them?

WOMAN SUFFRAGE SET BACK.

The Assembly has acted wisely in refusing to relieve its Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the Woman Suffrage bill, providing for an amendment to the Constitution enabling women to vote. So far as the debate on Mr. TOOMBS'S motion is concerned, it was not much more to the point than most public discussions of this involved and perilous subject. No matter how many influential supporters the bill has, the time is assuredly not ripe for legislative action in the matter in this part of the country.

Woman suffrage means a great deal more than votes for women. It means a radical change in the present structure of society and the relations of the sexes. The advocates of such a measure are venturing on dangerous ground. We are willing to admit that the social system at present has its evils, but the home is now the basis of all society, and when the home is destroyed there must be chaos before some new order, of which only the haziest ideas are now entertained, is established.

The legislators have postpoend woman suffrage. The year 1914, when the Constitutional Convention meets, has been mentioned as a possible date for its consideration. That is near enough for a social revolution, certainly. Assemblyman MERRITT is not alone, among the present opponents of a movement to weaken the social structure, in believing that women will vote in the near future. It may be that the suffragists will win if they keep at it, and gather in recruits, but the day of their triumph, we firmly believe, will be a sorry day for them.

SMOKING MOTOR CARS.

It is useless to tell a chauffeur who delights in ejecting smoke from the exhaust pipe of his car that this practice is injurious to the health of citizens. Have him arrested.

Health Commissioner LEDERLE, at the instance of Col. E. S. CORNELL, who heads the Nuisance Committee of the National Highways Protective Society, introduced on Wednesday, and the Board of Health adopted, an amendment to the Sanitary Code that makes this a misdemeanor, whether indulged in by owner or chauffeur. The code provision speaks of "dense smoke." The officials know, of course, that a certain amount of smoke is emitted unavoidably by most gasolene motors. It must be dense smoke like that discharged from a building, vessel, stationary or locomotive engine to constitute a nuisance. The rigorous enforcement of this provision will be just and deserved.

THE FALL OF BARYE.

Hitherto ANTOINE BARYE has been regarded not only as the greatest modern sculptor of animals, but as a naturalist of authority. His statuettes of beasts have not only been praised as models of grace and expression, but as marvelously lifelike reproductions. The "observation" of BARYE the critics of the fine arts have always highly extolled. But alas for the myths which have sustained us!

Mr. ROOSEVELT declares that in the matter of elephants BARYE is "always wrong." His elephants do not walk right. They should be pacers. As an authority on elephants Mr. ROOSEVELT is not to be disputed. The elephant is all his own. If BARYE'S elephants are wrong, therefore, how much longer may we put our trust in his lions and panthers? His reputation is assailed and must fall. He is false to nature, and nature and the Colonel are on intimate terms.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Negro" and "Colored." It was by the close vote of 3 to 2 that the Louisiana Supreme Court reached its astonishing conclusion that persons of less than full African descent are not "negroes," and therefore are not subject to the provisions of a law which uses only that particular word. Justice PROVOSTY, who wrote the prevailing opinion, discussed at great length the common usage of the words "negro" and "colored," and he insisted that, while every negro is a person of color, not every person of color is a negro.

Evidently he did not consider it necessary to treat as of any weight the fact that the members of both classes—those of full no less than those of mixed blood—seem to dislike the word "negro" almost as much as they do "nigger," almost invariably refer to themselves as "colored," and usually treat the term as an all-inclusive designation. Their other favored designation, "Afro-American," is also without distinction as to degrees of mingling. It is evident that they recognize a racial solidarity far broader than does Justice PROVOSTY and the two other Justices who agreed with him, and that for them a mulatto, a quadroon, and even an octoroon is for most, if not all, intents and purposes a negro.

The strongest argument presented in support of the decision, perhaps, was the one that in drafting not a few other Louisiana laws and ordinances care was taken to make them explicit as applying to everybody with a known or recognizable strain of negro blood. The Legislature that passed the statute under the court's consideration could have taken the same precaution had it chosen to do so, and the fact that it did not was held to compel the conclusion that it had no such intention. The dissenting Justices, however, took a different view, declaring themselves "clearly of the opinion that the word 'negro,' as used in the statute, has the same meaning as 'colored,' a term used in popular language to designate persons of African descent, mixed or unmixed."

Not the least worrying phase of the decision for the Louisianians is that it will give "griffes" a legal right to enter barrooms patronized by the whites, for in that case, too, the law excludes "negroes" only, and says nothing about thirsty people who are merely "colored." Fortunately, the General Assembly convenes again next month, and all the laws affected can easily be so amended as to make their meaning and intent clear.

Preaching Versus Practice. There would have been more force in the wise and eloquent speeches made at the conference held in the Produce Exchange on Wednesday if more of the orators could have been credited with either inclination or intention to follow themselves the advice they offered to others. Some of those present, indeed, called themselves farmers, but evidently they were farmers upon whom the burden of Spring planting does not fall heavily, else would they have been at home attending to it, instead of here in the city, imploring the rest of us to abandon the sorts of work we like best or find most profitable, and to take up agriculture, for which we have no taste and no known ability.

Of course, farming is all right and a noble profession; its importance cannot be exaggerated, and if more engaged in it food would be cheaper and more abundant; but its praises are more convincing when they come from farmers than when uttered by railway Presidents, commission merchants, and the representatives of high finance. It's not that they do not know—it's that evidently they do not convince themselves and so leave a suspicion in the mind that somewhere or other in their arguments there is an element of fallacy. The chances are that these wise and eloquent gentlemen do not take sufficiently into consideration the fact that modern methods of agriculture have enabled one farmer to do the work that used to employ ten, and that the nine have looked for other jobs for reasons better than a vicious preference for urban excitements. Probably as many have been left "on the land" as knew how to make a living there, and probably as many are now returning to it as it invites by the offer of adequate rewards.

The city, after all, is not such a bad place, and it supports the farmer almost if not quite as much as he supports it. He raises crops to sell, much more than he raises them to eat—and his sales to other farmers are small. That may explain why the cry of "back to the land" does not seriously interfere with rustic quietude, but usually resounds in paved streets, thickly built up on each side. The farmer is no more eager for a host of competitors than are other people, and the high price of food—when he gets any of it—does not trouble him a bit. On the contrary, he shows an eager desire to push it higher still, and he ruthlessly practices all the arts by which supplies are restricted and monopolized—the very arts which he is so fond of denouncing when they are used against himself.

A Husband With a Grievance. A Chicago police Magistrate has refused to entertain a charge of theft made by a husband against a wife, not because she was innocent—she admitted her guilt—but because to the magisterial mind the circumstances justified the crime.

It seems that the husband was not what, Down East, they call "a good provider." On the contrary, he provided nothing at all for the domestic budget, and spent all he earned on himself. So one day the wife, with the assistance of a sympathetic brother and of a boarder, also sympathetic, seized the husband and in spite of his protests and struggles extracted from his pockets $11—which is a good deal of money, and was all he had. Accusation, arrest, trial, and acquittal with commendation followed.

Everybody except the husband is satisfied, probably, and yet it was "wild justice" that was done, and as a precedent the verdict in this case might in time lead to abuses. The husband, bad man as he doubtless is—don't the wife, and the brother, and the boarder say so?—has the grievance that he was in effect lynched and was deprived of his property without due process of law. He cannot, in an $11 matter, get a hearing before the Supreme Court, but if he could that Magistrate's verdict would surely be reversed.

TIMES TOWER VIEW OF COMET.

Miss Proctor Describes a Probable Glimpse of the Celestial Visitor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I watched for Halley's Comet this morning from The Times Tower from 3:25 A. M. to 5 A. M. The moon was shining so brightly that there seemed little chance of seeing the comet. At 3:30 o'clock I noted Venus glowing at first with a ruddy hue till it reached the clearer sky above the dust and smoke which drifted in the vicinity of the horizon. Then it regained its usual silvery light, undimmed by clouds. At 4 o'clock there was no sign of the comet, and the light of the moon was bright enough to make it possible for me to write my notes.

At 4:10 o'clock, through a rift in the upper cloud of mist which bordered the horizon, I saw what looked at first like a hazy star of ruddy hue, and examining it more closely with a Busch binocular (six power) I noticed that just above it and tilted slightly over in the direction of Venus was a short feathery-looking appendage, reminding me somewhat of a shuttlecock with the feathers clipped and close together. By 4:12 o'clock the object was again hidden by the clouds, or rather mist.

The interval in which it stayed visible was so brief that I had not time to note accurately its exact position. All I had time to observe was that it was low down in the cloud mist on the horizon and to the left of Venus, which was considerably higher in the sky. I waited until 5 o'clock in the hope of seeing the sunrise, so as to determine its distance from the place where I had seen the starlike object, but the mist was too dense to make it worth while.

My time records were made by the great clock of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building, the hands and hours of which are illuminated all night, but at dawn the lights were extinguished. On seeing in this morning's papers that news from the observatory at Zurich reports that the comet has no trace of a tail, I am wondering if the object I saw was Halley's Comet. If so, it scarcely looks any brighter than it did when I saw it Sept. 18, 1909, at 3 A. M., through the great 40-inch refractor at the Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., owing to the courtesy of Prof. E. E. Barnard.

The fact that the comet has apparently lost its tail need not discourage those who are on the watch for a glorious spectacle later on, for comets are well known for the way they have of taking us by surprise. For instance, the Morehouse Comet of 1908 was unique in its unexpected transformations. After displaying a broad, fan-shaped tail Sept. 30 it lost its tail altogether Oct. 1, and photographs taken Oct. 2 showed three distinct tails, so we may still have hopes regarding Halley's Comet in the near future.

Christian Science and Witchcraft.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was painfully interested, like multitudes of others, in the account in yesterday's TIMES of the suicide of Miss Stephens. Pitiful it is that spiritual and mental troubles so unbalanced her poise that she should take into her own hands that God-given boon—Life! I have no intention of casting the slightest reflection on the faith she held, but write to ask a simple question through your columns which I hope some expert in Christian Science or psychology will kindly answer. In neither of those philosophies am I skilled. I appeal to the wide circle of your intelligent readers, among whom there must be many who will be able to disclose the truth of the matter so as to reveal the error or weakness of my supposition.

My query is this: Wherein does the direction of "death thought" against a person, or the practice of "malicious animal magnetism" about which we hear so much, differ from the practice of witchcraft as it existed in the times of old Judge Sewall? Are not such theories hurling us with shocking rapidity back into rayless darkness instead of leading to the "light" which Miss Stephens claimed to be seeking?

Weston's Achievement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a regular reader of the interesting reports concerning the wonderful progress of veteran Edward Payson Weston, appearing from time to time in THE NEW YORK TIMES, I suggest that these reports, with such other incidents and data of his appreciable achievements—Weston's unequaled ocean to ocean feat—ought to be published in book form. I feel confident that such a book, owing to its unique features, would appeal to a sufficiently large number of readers to make the publication a financial success.

I would respectfully suggest that measures be taken to create and establish a permanent department of pedestrian instruction, either by private beneficence or public donations of a National character, and veteran pedestrian Weston be appointed director general of the department for the balance of his life, such an office to carry with it a sufficient salary in accordance with the dignity of the position.

South American Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a brief but able communication, your correspondent "Cambist" contends that, owing to our demonetization of silver in 1875, and its continued adhesion to silver coin valuations by China, that empire is receiving one-third more than before for its silver-priced exports of iron and other commodities to this country; and he concludes that prices and wages must either fall here, or rise there; which last event he deems improbable. It is the same with most of the South American States; we are paying them highly profitable prices for their commodities and getting but profitless prices for our own. Between the silver crase of 1850 and the gold crase of 1875 there was an interval of twenty-five years, and since the latter event there have elapsed thirty-five years. Is it not about time to reconsider our attitude?

Subway Rowdies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see by your issue of the 6th that young hoodlums are terrorizing Subway passengers, and that your Magistrates are undetermined as to the most effective mode of punishment. Permit me to suggest the flogging post, that is the most dreaded punishment by all malefactors, therefore it must be the best deterrent. It would appear that in the cases of these youthful ruffians "the ends would justify the means."

Proof of Fitness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To good citizens everywhere the appointment of Gov. Hughes to the Supreme Court will be most gratifying, and a feeling of relief and thankfulness that the vacant seat on the bench will be so worthily filled.

Perhaps the strongest proof of the eminent fitness of this selection is the severe condemnation of the act by W. J. Bryan of Nebraska.

WANTS CITY TO BE HOST.

Prendergast Asks $2,000 to Entertain Visiting Controllers.

Controller Prendergast has sent a communication to the Aldermen's Finance Committee asking it to approve an appropriation of $2,000 "or as much thereof as may be necessary" to provide for the entertainment by the city of the members of the National Association of Controllers and Accounting Officers who will meet here on June 9-11.

The Controller explains that all the cities in which previous conventions have been held have provided for the entertainment of the members of the Association and submits the following statement of "suggested entertainment and probable expenditures":

Theatre party	70 at $2.00 each	$140
To Coney Island and return	70 at .40 each	28
Informal dinner	70 at 1.50 each	105
Seeing Coney Island	70 at 2.00 each	140
New York bus	70 at 1.00 each	70
New York boat	70 at 2.00 each	140
Banquet	70 at 4.50 each	315
Music		30
Guests' wine and cigars	10 at 5.00 each	50
Convention ball	Free
Menus	70 at .50 each	35
Badges	70 at 2.00 each	140
Incidentals		300
Total		$1,493

Banquet—Dinner, decorations, two cigars, and cocktails. Committees—Badges, menu, programme, speakers.

Alderman Dowling, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Tammany leader of the Board, said it seemed to him that the Controller might have itemized the $300 for "incidentals" if he could figure the rest of things down so close, even to two cigars for each man.

He also appeared anxious to know what would happen on the Coney Island trip at $2 a head. "But I suppose the delegates will bring a little money with them," he added.

The Controller's petition says:

"The magnitude of the financial operations of this great metropolis, and the complexity and ramification of the administrative responsibilities, entering as they do into almost every activity of human endeavor, was the great attraction in determining New York as the place for the association's convention of 1910.

"It would seem only becoming on the part of the legislative and administrative officials of the city to make some provisions for the suitable entertainment of the officials who will be in attendance at the forthcoming national convention, and thus give them an opportunity to see some of the beauties, and some of the more interesting places of our great city."

$76,000 GOES TO HOSPITALS.

Fund of the Saturday and Sunday Association is Divided Among Them.

The Distributing Committee of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, composed of the Mayor, the Postmaster, the President of the Chamber of Commerce, and James Speyer, John Claflin, Richard J. Cross, and James C. Fargo met at the Mayor's office yesterday afternoon and apportioned the collections for last year. The fund distributed was $76,000, an increase of $4,000 over 908.

The division is made on the basis of the amount of free work done by each member of the association during the year, with the restriction that no hospital shall receive more than 10 per cent. of the total or less than $250.

The largest amounts will go to the Montefiore Home and Hospital for Chronic Invalids and the Mount Sinai Hospital, which received allotments of $7,600 and $7,551, respectively. The Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases, the Convalescent Home, the Red Cross Hospital, the Ophthalmic and Aural Institute, and the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women received the minimum.

UNION OPENS NEW BUILDING.

Engineering School Structure Given by Carnegie Is Dedicated.

SCHENECTADY, April 28.—The new $100,000 general engineering building, the gift of Andrew Carnegie to Union College, was opened to-day with elaborate exercises, which were attended by representatives of practically all the colleges and universities of the East.

The alumni have endowed the school with $100,000, the condition of Mr. Carnegie's gift.

Transcontinental Roads.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are men of great wealth who desire, in their benevolence, to do something for the public good, and have difficulty in deciding what kind of gift would be most acceptable to the people.

If I had $50,000,000 to expend under such conditions I would build a macadam road, sixty feet wide, from New York to San Francisco. The Government, under a system of tolls, if necessary, could easily maintain repairs. Cities would build branch roads to the main transcontinental thoroughfare, land values would rise, and the automobilists would be made happy.

Such a public work would be of enduring worth and perpetuate the name of the benefactor forever.

After Stenography, Cooking.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Could you tell me through your columns how one employed during the day could gain a knowledge of cooking? I am a young business woman, and not living at home have never had an opportunity of learning. I now feel that my education in that respect has been very much neglected, but I don't think it is too late to learn. Having mastered bookkeeping and stenography, surely it is possible to grasp the intricacies of boiling and baking. I could give three or four evenings a week to this and would like to join a class where the fee would be reasonable or take instruction from some practical housekeeper, who could also show me something about economical buying.

Popular School.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If it once went out that any school was actually requiring pupils, in their own interest, to learn one set of lessons before undertaking harder ones, there would be a waiting list a mile long. Parents would scheme to have their boys transferred thither. Rents would go up in the district tributary to the school, since every one would want to live in it. I wonder if it could not be tried.

TRAVEL TALES.

There is a field where daisies grow,
Where simple rivers seaward flow,
Just children wander there.

There is a garden full of flow'rs,
And butterflies and golden hours,
Where pleasure tends the day-dream bow'rs.
Daughters of Eve walk there.

There is a path where night flow'rs bloom,
Where glow worms chase the pressing gloom,
Where Life's the bride and Youth's the groom.
The sons of men walk there.

There is a road where Autumn reigns,
Where leaves are sere or strew the plains,
Where Summer yields to Winter's pains.
Even the wise come there.

There is a place where skies rain tears,
Where gaunt trees rise and shadowy fears,
Where every footstep galls and sears.
Only the fool comes there!

But there's the field where daisies grow,
Where simple rivers seaward flow,
Come! Let us wander there!

STEPHEN CHALMERS.

THINK D'ANNUNZIO GOT NO HELP HERE

Relatives of the Novelist Doubt Cabled Reports About a Generous Millionaire.

SAY HE'S ALWAYS IN DEBT.

Prodigal in His Manner of Living, but Can Always Earn Money When He Needs It.

The relatives in this city of Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian poet and novelist, place little credence in the cabled reports that he has been relieved of his financial difficulties by an unknown American millionaire. They are not in the least astonished to hear that the author has had some trouble with his banker, as that has happened before, but they have supreme confidence in his power of earning as much money as he wants by his pen without recourse to the beneficence of strangers.

Alfred D'Annunzio, his cousin, has a drug store at Forty-fifth Street and Ninth Avenue, and he talked yesterday of the novelist's money affairs.

"He is a spendthrift," he said, "there is no doubt of it. He really has no idea of the meaning of money. He is always in debt. One day he makes a lot; the next day he has not a cent. But he can always make more."

The novelist stands out from other Italian writers by his power to get good terms from his publishers. Most authors of his country are forced to sell their works outright to the publishers and get only a small price. However much the publishers afterward make does them no good. D'Annunzio, on the other hand, is able to demand large royalties.

But he lives extravagantly in his villa Capenicina at Rome, goes in for hunting, and has a large kennel of dogs and a fine stable of horses. Then he is an art collector, and in his villa will be found such treasures as a fragment of a horse's head from the frieze of the Parthenon at Athens. His relatives here do not wonder, then, that he is often in debt.

"He owed the Bank of Rome $2,000," said Alfred D'Annunzio yesterday. "But that did not trouble him. The bank asks him for the money and he tells it to wait. It will not wait and threatens to seize his villa and all it contains.

"But there are lots of people who will help him. He has only to sign his name to a piece of paper to get all the money he needs. When he must pay some one off he has only to write something and his publishers will pay him as much as he needs. He had property of his own once, lands in his native town, as we all had, but they are gone long ago."

Mr. D'Annunzio described how his distinguished cousin works. When the fit seizes him he begins at night and writes steadily to the small hours of the morning. He has a high desk, lit on either side by a big candle, such as is used in Roman Catholic Churches for the lectern, and before this he stands by the hour writing with great rapidity. He makes few corrections, and when the humor is on him seems to be able to write endlessly.

The author has thought several times of coming to this country on a visit, but he dreads the publicity and the lionizing which would be his lot here, and so when he has seemed on the point of departing he has changed his plans. Lately his mind has been turning toward South America.

"I think it is the Latin races who inhabit those countries which attract him," said Mr. D'Annunzio. "Of course my cousin can speak English, but he would not feel himself as much at home here as in South America.

"Last week he wrote to his brother here and said he was thinking of a South American trip and that he would lecture there. I suppose he hopes to make money by lecturing to pay off his debts."

FREE CONEY ISLAND BATH.

Controller Will Call for $170,000 to Construct a Public Pavilion.

Controller Prendergast will recommend to the Board of Estimate, at its meeting to-day, the appropriation of $170,000 for the erection of a municipal bathing pavilion at Coney Island. If the Board approves, the pavilion will be built on the beach between Ocean Parkway and West Fifth Street, where the city's title to a 1,085-foot frontage strip was established last year. It is proposed to build a house three stories high, and 60x400 feet. In his report the Controller gives a detailed statement of the plans, drawing these conclusions:

> It will thus be seen that 6,934 persons could be accommodated at one time, the proportion being 5,592 men and 1,342 women, which my investigation leads me to believe would be a fair distribution. Allowing that between the hours of 8 and 6, which include ten hours, these rooms could be used four times a day, or, in other words, that each bather would be permitted to occupy a locker for two and one-half hours, 27,736 people would be taken care of in one day.
>
> It is fair to assume, from the investigation I have had made, that each day an average number of 10,000 persons would use these bath accommodations during a season, say, from June 15 to Sept. 15, making ninety days, showing an attendance of 900,000 persons during a season.
>
> Boston, with a population of about 600,000, took care of 602,000 bathers at the L Street bathhouse for the sum of $8,234, or at the rate of $91.47 per day. From 5,000 to 15,000 persons used the baths at this station each day, so that there was an average daily attendance of 6,688 persons.
> Since New YorkCity has an estimated population of 4,500,000, I feel warranted in stating that the average daily attendance at the proposed Municipal Bathing House at Coney Island would be at least 10,000.

Alderman Drescher, of Brownsville, one of the new men in the Board this year, first started the agitation for the municipal baths. He introduced a resolution before the Board, referring the matter to the Controller. Mr. Prendergast immediately became enthusiastic about the idea, and sent a representative of his office to Boston with the Alderman to look over the baths maintained by that city at Revere Beach.

TO PRACTICE AT GETTYSBURG.

Regular Army and Militia to Manoeuvre There This Summer.

GETTYSBURG, Penn., April 28.—A detail of army officers is here completing arrangements for the site for the encampment next July of the regular army and the militia of the Middle Atlantic States. The party consists of Brig. Gen. W. W. Wotherspoon, Major Eben Swift, Capt. Frank S. Cochou, Col. F. R. Kiefer, Major W. C. Cannon, Major R. McA. Schofield, and Capt. B. M. Wells.

Twenty thousand acres have been released by land owners for manoeuvring purposes, none of which is Government property.

CALL WHITE'S BOOK A LIBEL.

Member of Drew Family Asks Whitman to Bring Criminal Action.

William H. Drew of Brewster, N. Y., left with the District Attorney yesterday afternoon a copy of "The Book of Daniel Drew," the alleged biography of the one-time Wall Street man recently published by Doubleday, Page & Co. He was accompanied by his lawyer, Frederick S. Barnum of White Plains.

The indignation of the Drew family over the book, which pictures him as an illiterate and unscrupulous man, led to a request that a criminal prosecution be begun against its author, Bouck White. Assistant District Attorney O'Malley will consider the possible grounds for action.

SHUBERTS MAY LEASE VACANT OPERA HOUSE

Said to Want the Manhattan for Productions Like Those in the Grand Opera House.

HAMMERSTEIN FOR BERLIN

Offer for Him to Manage New Opera There May Be Renewed—He Says He Will Give No More Grand Opera.

If the Manhattan Opera House, which is to be no longer used for opera, does not become a music hall it is probable that it will be leased to William A. Brady and the Shuberts as a combination house to play much the same sort of attractions that are played by the Theatrical Syndicate at the Grand Opera House and the new City Theatre. The Shuberts have no theatre which would cover that district, and they are said to be anxious to get the Manhattan.

Mr. Brady when seen yesterday would only say: "I am not at liberty to talk."

William Hammerstein said last night: "Nothing whatever will be decided about the Manhattan Opera House until my father cables what is to be done with it. Personally I think it is an ideal location for a vaudeville house, and I think there is no doubt it will be used for that.

"But father is a very active man and he may bring over some European attraction to occupy the house. It is possible he may make an attempt to bring over the Passion play from Oberammergau. He thought of it some time ago. Or he may bring over a Russian ballet.

"A vaudeville house would not interest him, and he must be active. So if the house becomes a vaudeville theatre he will probably build another theatre somewhere in New York and do something new."

A syndicate of Berlin bankers has arranged to build an opera house in the German capital, to run in competition with the Royal Opera there. In the Winter the report was sent here that the position of impresario of this theatre had been offered to Oscar Hammerstein. At the time Mr. Hammerstein admitted that he had been approached in regard to the matter, but said that he found himself too much occupied with other things to consider the matter. Now the case is different, and it is thought that he may be approached again.

The Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company who were in town said yesterday that they could add nothing to what information had already been given out about the taking over of the Manhattan Opera Company.

QUITS OPERA FOR GOOD.

Hammerstein Says He Will Confine Himself to Dramatic Productions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 28.—"I shall never again be a grand opera impresario," said Oscar Hammerstein to me to-night, almost with tears in his eyes. "I shall give opera and great dramatic productions, but not grand opera, at my Manhattan Opera House.

"All my other interests in grand opera, covering thirty-three houses outside of Manhattan, are to be turned over to the Metropolitan Opera Company, together with the copyrights of operatic productions, costumes, scenery, and other accessories. My agreement, signed on Wednesday in New York by power of attorney given by me, binds me to keep out of the field of grand opera.

"All of my contracts will go to the Metropolitan Opera Company, and they can retain such of my singers as they want. Those they do not want may be dismissed under the conditions of the contracts.

"The Metropolitan Opera Company has now every requisite for success. It can put an end to the tyrannous exactions of artists and moderate the excessive demands of the public, which in the last year has been spoiled by the competition of two of the most magnificent musical organizations that America or Europe has ever known. Between the exactions of the public and the artists during this strenuous competition it was utterly impossible for an opera company not run upon pure principles of benevolence to continue in existence.

"I shall produce light opera in New York and produce it in accordance with my high ideals of what the public should have."

Mary Garden refused to-day to be interviewed on her differences with Mr. Hammerstein or her own future plans.

NORA BAYES DISDAINS MONEY.

Ziegfeld Offer of $1,000 a Week No Inducement to Her to Return.

The hearing of the suit of Florenz Ziegfeld, the theatrical manager, for a permanent injunction restraining Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth, her husband, from appearing under any other management than his own, was continued yesterday in the Supreme Court and will go on again to-day. Miss Bayes refused yesterday in court to return to Ziegfeld's management at $1,000 a week.

"Not after the way he has treated me!" she exclaimed.

The trial is being largely attended by theatrical folk and those who want to see their footlight favorites with the paint off.

PRIZES AT A BENEFIT.

The California Club Gives Away Gold with Some of Its Seats To-day.

The California Club is to give a benefit performance at the Belasco Theatre this afternoon for the benefit of the Actors' Fund Fair. Among the artists who will appear for the club are Nance O'Neil, Fred Niblo, Florence Nash, Donald Brian, Laura Nelson Hall, Sahey Dorsell, Marjorie Conroy, Joseph Buettner, Helen Porter, Barbara Kinds, Leslie Adams, Angela Ogden, and Kenneth Casey.

To make the benefit more than ordinarily attractive eight gold pieces, in denominations of $2.50, a donation from Clarence H. Mackay, will be given away to the occupants of seats drawn for by Miss Hall. There will be other prizes also, including a case of Golden Gate fruit. And every woman will receive a corsage bouquet.

The programme will consist of three one-act plays by Margaret E. McCann, a Californian, and specialties. Mr. Belasco, an enthusiastic Californian, has lent the theatre, where tickets can be obtained to-day.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER ILL.

Attacked After Eating Soft-Shell Crabs —Abandons Tour.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 23.—Mrs. Leslie Carter, who closed her engagement in "Vasta Herne," at the Euclid Avenue Opera House last night, is sick in bed at the Hollenden Hotel, and has canceled all her dates for the season. The company disbanded to-night and will go to New York.

Mrs. Carter was taken ill early this morning, and a physician diagnosed the case as acute colitis. It is believed that soft shell crabs, which Mrs. Carter ate last night, brought on the attack.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee and Miss Witherbee will go to Lake Champlain the 1st of June to spend the Summer.

The wedding of Miss Helen Alexandre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Alexandre, and Bayard Hoppin will not take place until the Fall. Mr. and Mrs. Alexandre will go to Lenox next month for the season.

Mrs. J. Fred Pierson entertained last evening with a dinner of eighteen covers at her residence, 20 West Fifty-second Street, for her daughter, Miss Marguerite Pierson, and her fiancé, George Huntington Hull, Jr., whose marriage takes place in June. The guests were mostly from Tuxedo.

Miss Amy Baker will give her annual recital at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Sherry's. She will be assisted by Carl Morris, baritone, and Bruno Huhn will be at the piano.

Mrs. Charles E. Orvis will entertain at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon at her residence, 35 West Eighty-first Street, the Mary Washington Colonial Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. The Rev. Dr. Ernest Stires and others will make brief addresses.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rogers will go to their Newport villa about the middle of May.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman have opened their country place at White Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Patterson and family sailed on the Amerika to spend the Summer motoring abroad.

MOUNTAIN CHILDREN AIDED.

"Alice in Wonderland, Continued," Given at Benefit at New Theatre.

An operetta, "Alice in Wonderland, Continued," was given at The New Theatre yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the New York Auxiliary of the Southern Industrial Educational Association. The book was by Rebecca Lane Hooper and the music by Mabel W. Daniels. The proceeds were for the benefit of industrial schools for the children of mountaineers of the South.

Miss Ella Marion Lindley's dancing as "The Purple Shadow at North Pole" was excellent, as was that of Miss Grace Hornby as Alice, and Miss Rebecca Lane Hooper as the Duchess. Edwin H. Bigelow took the part of Tweedledee, and Lowell Lawrence Decker that of Tweedledum. Allen T. Hopping was the White Rabbit and Miss Margery Shannon was the Fairy of the story. Her dancing was much applauded.

Miss Dolly Lynch and Miss Louise Freeman, who were on the programme as the Wood Nymph and the Fairy, respectively, did not appear.

Others taking part in the entertainment were Miss Eleanor Dubois, Miss Brainerd, Miss Maud Aldrich, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, and Miss Janet de Kay.

New York University Boys Give Bright and Tuneful "Undergraduates."

Students of New York University scored success last night in their 'Varsity show, "The Undergraduates," produced at the Berkeley Theatre, in West Forty-fourth Street. The musical comedy opened for a three days' run, performances being scheduled for to-night and to-morrow afternoon and evening.

The book is the work of William Le Baron, '05, who wrote the libretto of four former New York University shows, "The Isle of Skidoo," "The Oracle," "Captain Kidd & Co.," and "The Echo." Dunis Taylor, who collaborated with Le Baron in the production of the other plays, is responsible for most of the music in "The Undergraduates" also, but a few interpolated numbers were written by Newman Levy, '10; Emil Nielson, '10, and Albert Unger, '10. Walter E. Atkinson, '11, wrote the lyrics.

Charles Moore, '13, and Gerald Nolan, '11, play the parts of Jimmy and Bob, footpads, and their song, "A Burglar, Is An Honest Kind of Crook," accompanied with an eccentric dance, made a hit.

"The Up-to-Date New York Girl," sung by E. Shapiro, '13, in the rôle of Marion Henley, is another number which deserves mention. Shapiro is supported by a sextet chorus.

A bit of clever character work is seen in Norlin's presentation of an aged college President. He appears with E. J. Judd and T. Crawford in a song called "Gestures."

The part of Mazie Canfield, the college widow, is well acted by J. H. McMahon, '11, as are the parts of Grace and Marion Henley, played by W. Du Mond, '10, and E. Shapiro, '13. The work of the chorus is good.

DROP JOHN CORT CIRCUIT.

Klaw & Erlanger Cancel Bookings of His 140 Theatres in Northwest.

Announcement came late last night from the offices of Klaw & Erlanger of the Theatrical Syndicate that their firm had canceled all attractions booked by the syndicate for the Northwest Territory for the season of 1910-11. The announcement was in the form of a letter directed to John Cort, manager of the Northwestern circuit, which was as follows:

> Mr. John Cort Knickerbocker Theatre Building, New York.
> Dear Sir: In looking over our route sheets and arranging tours for the coming season of 1910-1911 we have come to the conclusion that we will best conserve the interests of the theatres we represent and of the traveling companies by eliminating your territory from our books. Very truly yours,
>
> KLAW & ERLANGER.

The John Cort circuit includes most of the important theatres along the Pacific Coast region north of San Francisco, as well as many less important one-night stands. Seattle, Portland, and Tacoma are among the larger places in the list, which contains about 140 altogether, according to Klaw & Erlanger's representative.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Harriet Burt, until recently leading woman with De Wolf Hopper, is to go into vaudeville and will make her debut in a musical playlet on May 15.

Among the new engagements for the revival of "Jim the Penman" are George Barnum and Frederick Paulding, the former known as the support of May Irwin, and the other recently with Blanche Ring in "The Yankee Girl."

Show girls and chorus girls from Lew Fields's and the Shubert musical productions will sell flowers in the lobby of the Broadway Theatre Sunday night at the benefit to be given for the mother of the late Lotta Faust.

Marceline, the clown at the Hippodrome, will be the guest of honor at the May party to be given by the Hippodrome midgets at Central Park a week from Saturday.

Paul Armstrong, author of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," has received a request from E. C. Benson of the Wisconsin School for the Deaf and Dumb, asking permission to have his play performed in the sign language, a request which he has granted. The Faculty and students of that institution have given "The Taming of the Shrew" in this manner.

FOR THE TABLE.

Large bunches of fine asparagus, with pale-green stalks of large size, can be had for 25 cents a bunch, and for those who prefer the small green stalks large bunches can be had at the same price.

One of the best ways to serve asparagus is to boil it in salted water, served without toast, in individual dishes at the table, and with a dish of hot melted butter served as a sauce.

When served with cream the tender parts of the asparagus should be cut into inch pieces, and boiled tender in as little water as possible. The water is drained off, the asparagus seasoned, and a little good white sauce, made of rich milk or thin cream with butter and flour, is poured over it.

A scallop of asparagus can be made by taking the tender ends, cutting them into small pieces, and boiling for fifteen minutes. They are then alternated with layers of bread crumbs in a buttered baking dish. Bits of butter, salt, pepper, and cubes of hard-boiled eggs are added to each layer. Buttered crumbs finish the top, and after baking twenty-five minutes the asparagus is served in the baking dish. All the hard ends of the asparagus can be used for cream of asparagus soup.

Asparagus served in crisped rolls makes an attractive dish. The asparagus tops are boiled for fifteen minutes, after being carefully washed. Tops have been cut from the rolls in the meantime, the inside is taken out, and the shells are set in the oven to dry. A pint of milk is put on to heat in a double boiler, and four eggs, well beaten, are added and stirred until they begin to thicken. A large tablespoonful of butter, salt, and peper is added, the mixture is taken from the fire, and the chopped asparagus tops added. The roll cases are filled, the tops replaced, and then sent to the table hot.

By having the frames to hold the asparagus tips out of water the stalks can be boiled from thirty to forty minutes, and much more of them is then edible.

BIG HIT FOR HOPPER IN 'A MATINEE IDOL'

New Piece at Daly's an Oasis in Musical Comedy Desert Wastes.

LONG WAY AFTER MOLIERE

But, Close Enough to Broadway, It Is a Bright, Clean, Laugh-Provoking Entertainment.

A MATINEE IDOL, a Song Comedy in two acts. Book by Armand and Barnard; music by Silvio Hein; lyrics by E. R. Goetz and Seymour Brown. Daly's Theatre.

In one of the brightest and cleanest musical comedies that the season has produced that very tall and very clever person, Mr. De Wolf Hopper, scored an old-time Hopper success at Daly's Theatre last night, though he confessed to an unfamiliar sort of looseness in a rôle which permitted him to wear modern dress in place of tights and the various other addenda of the musical comedy monarch which have been his portion—or rather, one would say, his all—for so very long.

Mr. Hopper, however, is long any way you take him, and in a piece which has the exceptional merit of starting with an intelligent plot, and sticking to it pretty well, his opportunities for fun are many and varied. "A Matinee Idol" is one of those entertainments that comes along so seldom that it may be regarded as an oasis in the general musical comedy desert waste. And for that gratitude, and then some—as the comedian might say, if he were writing this and didn't happen to think of something better.

"A Matinée Idol" is described as being after Molière. Two hundred and forty-four years, to be exact, and there are some differences not of time. But the fact need not be taken as necessarily implying any unpleasant allusion to the present work. It is scarcely likely that in 244 years from now Mr. Hopper will be playing this piece, and for that reason it may be pardonable to mention that those who are desirous of having a number of hearty laughs had better take advantage of this present opportunity. If the suggestion encroaches somewhat upon the prerogatives of the officially chosen agent of publicity the circumstances seem to justify it.

In so far as the piece presents the spectacle of a gentleman, though an actor, passing himself off as a physician under force of conditions over which he has no control, it is the same idea which Molière treated. But there—and this not in anger but in kindness—all resemblance ceases. After all Molière is better without songs, dances, and pretty young maidens all in a row, and musical comedy isn't. This being musical comedy it is better as it is. Q. E. D.

The actor, who confesses that he has been running downhill for three years without being able to get to the bottom, does get to a French seminary to take up a post as a teacher of "dramatic elocution," two things which have hitherto been considered somewhat antagonistic. But finding the position filled he is in very hard luck until he conceives the idea of passing himself off as the much-wanted physician for a youthful son of the head professor. The boy, in order that he may remain near the girl he loves, has been feigning illness, and eventually a bargain is arranged between him and the sham doctor. The scene in which the doctor makes a diagnosis of his patient's case is excrutiatingly funny. So is another which follows shortly and in which he reveals his hypnotic powers, this demonstration leading up to a highly effective "Hypnotic Waltz and Finale," by the very graceful and pretty chorus.

Throughout Mr. Hopper's original and richly varied comic gifts and his unflagging spirit keep the fun up to boiling point. And, as usual, there was on this, the first night, the occasional interjections of seemingly unexpected lines to provide laughs which only a New York audience ever gets. The audience in its part was not slow to find its own reason to laugh, as, for instance, at a question put to the tall comedian as to whether he ever really, truly knew what love meant.

Again, as at other times, Mr. Hopper has a diminutive person as a foil, the human half-portion, or demi-tasse, as he is here alluded to, being Georgie Mack, an exceptionally funny little individual, who sings, dances, and delivers his questions and answers as glibly and as comically as if he were a whole man. And that very agreeable young woman, Miss Louise Dresser, wearing three or four very charming frocks, and looking most refreshingly handsome, has three excellent songs, which she sings in her most insinuating manner.

Of these the best, possibly, is "Put on your slippers; you're in for the night," though the others went very nicely. An attractive member of the cast, also, is Miss Ethel Green, who is not too saccharine to be quite human, as is the common failing with soubrettes, and who, barring a little too much forcing of a top note, sings pleasingly. Her best song is "Little Lady in the Moon."

The song numbers are all tuneful, however, and very well sung, with a background at times of extremely pretty girls in delightful frocks, dainty and unusual as to color combinations and lending themselves nicely to the general picturesqueness of the entertainment.

Mr. Hopper, besides responding to demands for autographs in a capital little song, has another with Miss Dresser in which the refrain, "If you could only see yourselves as others do," is illustrated with some very funny business, including a psychic demonstration, a race track episode, and a mental telepathy act, which is a most amusing variant of the specailty. Also in "Nonsense," sung with Mr. Mack and Mr. Santley, the youthful hero of the piece, he has some allusion to current events and well-known personages, which the audience of Molière's time would scarcely have appreciated, but which have timeliness at Daly's. Thus, for instance, to the question:

"How much criticism can Teddy Bear?" The answer: "More than Billy—Kin."

Readers who do not see the point may write Mr. Hopper.

In the rôle of a matinée idol Mr. Hopper indulges himself to the full with Shakespearean quotations. He is never more amusing than in a burlesque edition of William Elliott's courtroom speech from "Madame X."

MISS SATTERLEE A BRIDE.

Daughter of Late Bishop of Washington Wedded to F. W. Rhinelander.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Miss Constance Satterlee, only daughter of the late Episcopal Bishop of Washington and Mrs. Henry Yates Satterlee, was married at noon to-day to Frederick W. Rhinelander of New York at St. Alban's Church. The Right Rev. Alfred H. Harding, the successor of the bride's father as Bishop of Washington, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Philip Rhinelander of New York, a brother of the bridegroom. Miss Marguerite Churchill of New York was the bride's only attendant.

The ushers were Gracie K. Richards of this city and E. Lansing Satterlee, Thomas N. Rhinelander, and Le Roy Gibbs, all of New York.

BROMFIELD—INNIS.

The wedding of Davenport Gordon Bromfield and Miss Dorothy Innis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds Innis, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 53 West Seventy-third Street. Miss Innis's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. William W. White, Jr., of Providence, and the best man was Delavan M. Baldwin. There were no ushers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frederick Arnold of Poughkeepsie, but owing to family mourning there was no reception.

TAFT DINES CHINESE PRINCE.

Entertains Tsai Tao, Brother of Regent, at White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Prince Tsai Tao of China, brother of the Regent, who arrived in Washington this morning, called on the President at noon and dined at the White House this evening. Incidentally he attended a cavalry drill at Fort Myer with his suite of ten officers of the Chinese Army and Navy, and received formal calls from the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War. Col. W. S. Schuyler, U. S. A., has been detailed as the official escort to the royal visitor, and accompanied the Prince from Honolulu. He will remain in attendance through the Prince's American tour.

MISS ANITA INGERSOLL WEDS.

Married to Roger M. Minturn at Mrs. G. S. Floyd-Jones's Residence.

The marriage of Roger M. Minton, a son of the late Charles Telfair Minton, and Miss Anita Ingersoll, the elder daughter of Mrs. Robert Taylor Varnum by her first husband, was celebrated at noon yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. Stanton Floyd-Jones, 207 West Seventieth Street, relatives of the bride.

The house was decorated with dogwood, apple blossoms, and palms. The bride, with her brother, came down the floral-trimmed stairway to the dining room at the rear of the house, where the bridal procession formed, and passed through an aisle made by white ribbons fastened to standards to the drawing room in front of the prie dieu, where, against a background of apple blossoms and palms, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Sinnott of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The bride wore a trained, embroidered white satin princess robe, with point lace on the bodice, and a point lace scarf veil draped over one of tulle caught by natural orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids. She walked down the ribbon aisle with her brother, Hamilton Ingersoll, to Mr. Minton, and his best man, Edwin Kane, awaiting them at the temporary altar, and her mother, Mrs. Varnum, gave her in marriage.

She was preceded by her two bridesmaids, Miss Leila Haven and Miss Laura Livingston, who wore flowered white chiffon over green satin, trimmed with white chiffon covered with dewdrops, and having sprays of apple blossoms on the corsages. Their large pink crin hats were trimmed with pastel-tinted Spring flowers and pink ribbons. They carried tiny pink bridal wreath roses. The bridesmaids were followed by the flower girls, the Misses Mildred and Priscilla Taylor, cousins of the bride and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Blackstone Taylor.

Miss Justine Ingersoll, the bride's young sister, preceded her. She wore a pink flowered white chiffon frock over pink satin, trimmed with pink ribbons, and her yellowish crin hat was trimmed with pink honeysuckles and pink ribbons, with long ribbon sash ends. She carried pink roses.

Mrs. G. S. Floyd-Jones was in a robe of King's blue satin, covered with black lace, and wore a black lace hat with a blue aigrette.

Mr. and Mrs. Minton are booked to sail on Saturday for Europe.

Among those invited were the Misses Furniss, Dr. Frederick Goddard and Mrs. Goddard, Miss Catherine Hamersley, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey, Miss Dickey, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Duval, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Emmet, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hadden, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Endicott, Miss Lillian Endicott, Mr. and Mrs. George Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. Austen G. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francklyn, Mr. and Mrs. William Manice, Mrs. Peter Moller, Miss Moller, Miss Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Munroe, Miss Jean King, Mrs. Edward Knapp, Mrs. Robert Livingston, John McKim Minton, Telfair Minton, Miss Minton, Mr. and Mrs. William M. V. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Burrill, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Carpender, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, Miss Chapin, Miss Alice Kortright, Mrs. Bruce Brown, Philip H. Adee, Miss Virginia Alexandre, Mr. and Mrs. Auerbach, Miss Auerbach, Mr. and Mrs. Bradish Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morris, Mrs. James M. Varnum, Miss Sophie Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wharton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Walsh, Jr., Mrs. Robert Sturgis, Miss Sturgis, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Shepherd, Mrs. Remsen, Miss Remsen, and Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor Pyne.

Warner-Roosevelt Wedding Plans.

The wedding on May 14 of Miss Lorraine Roosevelt and Langdon Warner of Boston, which will take place at Waldeck, Oyster Bay, the country place of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, will be a small and quiet one. The families and a few intimates only are to be present.

The Rev. Theodore C. Williams of Boston, formerly of All Souls' Unitarian Church, will perform the ceremony. The bride's brother, Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt, will give her in marriage.

The bridesmaids are to be Miss Margaret Roosevelt, Miss Janet Dana, Miss Laura Chanler, Miss Ruth Draper, and Miss Alice Parker of Washington.

The ushers are to be Nicholas Roosevelt, Ralph W. Page, Arthur W. Page, James Sherman Pitkin, William James, Jr., Francis W. Peabody, Gardner Browne Perry, and Whitcomb Field. Mr. Warner's best man is to be his brother, Roger Sherman Warner.

Miss Isabel Goodnow to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Goodnow (Miss Elizabeth Lyall) of 46 Riverside Drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Isabel Goodnow, to E. Kendall Gillett, a son of the Rev. Charles R. Gillett and Mrs. Gillett of Pelham Manor.

Dinner for Miss Alexandre and Fiance.

Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee gave a dinner of eighteen covers last evening for Miss Helen Alexandre and her fiancé, Bayard Hoppin. The table was decorated with Spring flowers. The guests included Miss Beatrice Pratt, Miss Civilise Alexandre, Miss Katherine Steward, Miss Anna Robinson, Miss Agnes Landon, Mr. and Mrs. Maunsell S. Crosby, and Malcolm D. Sloane, John Sloane, Ernest Tracy, Whitney Kernochan, and Howard Phipps.

R. R. Santini to Wed Miss Gilbert.

Randolph Rogers Santini of 41 East Seventy-sixth Street and Miss Vera Pierrepont Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierrepont Gilbert of 33 Riverside Drive, took out yesterday a license to marry. Their engagement was announced last September. Mr. Santini is a son of Pio Santini of Rome, former Senator and Police Commissioner under Prince Prospero Colonna. His mother was a daughter of Randolph Rogers, the American sculptor. He has been in this city four years.

Harris Selects Play for Helen Ware.

Henry B. Harris announced yesterday that the play selected for Helen Ware's starring tour under his management next season was "Delia of the Secret Service," a four-act drama by Robert Peyton Carter and Anna Alice Chapin. Miss Ware will sail for Europe at the end of her present tour in "The Third Degree" and will return in August to begin rehearsals for her first starring season.

REV. HENRY H. JESSUP DEAD.

Missionary Dies in Syria, Where He Labored Amid Perils for 54 Years.

News was received yesterday by cable at the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions of the death in Beirut, Syria, of the Rev. Henry Harris Jessup, missionary and author, in his seventy-ninth year. The cablegram was sent by the Rev. William Jessup, a son who is a missionary in Syria. Another son is Henry W. Jessup, a lawyer, at 31 Nassau Street. Two daughters are in Syria. They are Miss Annie Jessup, a missionary, and Mrs. Day, wife of a professor in the Syrian Protestant College at Beirut.

Dr. Jessup was graduated from Yale in 1851 and from the Union Theological Seminary in 1855. He was a missionary at Tripoli, Syria, from 1856 to 1860, and since that time he had been stationed at Beirut. In 1865 Princeton gave him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He was missionary editor of the Arabic journal El-Nesrah, and was moderator of the General Assembly of 1879. Among his works are "The Mohammedan Missionary Problem," "The Women of the Arabs," "The Greek Church and Protestant Missions," "Syrian Home Life," and "Kamil, Moslem Convert."

To Dr. Jessup more than to any other man is due the remarkable spread of missionary and educational work in Syria in the last half century.

ACTRESS SUFFRAGIST TO MARRY LAWYER

Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, Niece of Forbes-Robertson, Engaged to Swinburne Hale.

WON BY HER SPEECHES

Young Attorney Began Ardent Courtship After Hearing Her Espouse Woman's Cause.

It came out yesterday, despite the wishes of the parties that it be kept from the public for a while longer, that Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, an actress, the niece of J. Forbes-Robertson of "The Third Floor Back" fame, will be married early in the Summer to Swinburne Hale, a young lawyer of 49 Wall Street. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the Maine woods.

Miss Forbes-Robertson will not give up the stage nor abate her efforts on behalf of the woman suffrage cause after her marriage to Mr. Hale. She has been prominently connected with the campaign for woman suffrage both in England and in this country, where she has been of large service through her platform eloquence.

She is a finished speaker, and though she has never become associated with the extreme militant suffragettes closely enough to accomplish arrest, she has done a great deal of platform work here and abroad. Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, her uncle; Gertrude Elliott, his wife, and Miss Forbes-Robertson were all deeply interested in the cause of woman suffrage in England. In New York they have taken part in various theatrical benefits for the advancement of the cause.

It was one of her speeches that attracted the attention of Mr. Hale several months ago. He sought and gained an introduction to her, and now, after a somewhat brief but ardent courtship, the engagement is announced.

It was not Miss Forbes-Robertson's eloquence, however, that made Mr. Hale believe in woman's suffrage. He had concluded that women have the right to vote before he had met her. Mr. Hale will be but another element added to the English group of woman suffragists.

Miss Forbes-Robertson has been in this country only two or three years, having come from London, which she still calls home. Her father is Ian Forbes-Robertson, and her grandfather on her mother's side was Joseph Knight, the famous English critic, editor also of Notes and Queries.

In New York she has played in "The Morals of Marcus" and "The Mollusc," and this season she joined The New Theatre Company. She played the leading rôle in "The Cottage in the Air," and ingenue rôles in other plays. She was Enid Underwood in John Galsworthy's "Strife," this part being that of the Secretary's wife. He and she sympathize with the laborers' fight against the company for a raise of wages and betterment of conditions in the factory.

The New Theatre Company is on tour now, but Miss Forbes-Robertson did not go with it. It was stated last night by her friends, however, that she hasn't the slightest intention of giving up the stage, though her theatrical engagement for next season hasn't been announced.

Swinburne Hale is from the Middle West. He calls Chicago his home. He was graduated from the Academic Department of Harvard, following that with a diploma from the Harvard Law School. He began practice in New York two years ago. He lives at 20 Jones Street.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

GEN. E. P. ALEXANDER DEAD.

Noted Confederate, Railroad President, and Writer Was 75 Years Old.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 28.—Gen. E. P. Alexander, a noted Confederate soldier and writer, died here to-day.

Gen. Alexander was born in Washington, Ga., on May 26, 1835, and was graduated from West Point Academy in 1857. He was Second Lieutenant in the United States Corps of Engineers until 1861, when he resigned and entered the Confederate army. After the war Gen. Alexander became Professor of Mathematics and Engineering at the University of South Carolina from 1866 to 1870.

Afterward he became interested in railroads, and had been General Manager or President of several railroads, including the Central of Georgia, Louisville & Nashville, and the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company. He published "Military Memoirs of a Confederate." He served as arbitrator in the boundary dispute between Costa Rica and Nicaragua until it was settled in 1900.

Charles Francis Stone.

Charles Francis Stone, a lawyer, of the firm of Davies, Stone & Auerbach, died Wednesday night, in the home of his son-in-law, Dr. W. B. Power, in Redlands, Cal., where he went for his health. Mr. Stone was born in this city in 1834. He was graduated from Harvard, and also studied at Heidelberg. He lived at 17 West Twelfth Street, and was a member of the University, Harvard, and Colonial Clubs. He left a widow, four sons and four daughters.

Obituary Notes.

FRANK F. WEST, a fish dealer at Fulton Market, died on Wednesday at his home, 1,058 Seventeenth Street, Flatbush, in his forty-first year. A widow survives him.

WILLIAM G. PRESTON, a Boston architect, who designed the Mechanics' Building, the Cadet Armory, the Boston University of Law Building, and the Rogers Building of the Institute of Technology, is dead at his home at Brookline, Mass., aged 68 years.

HENRY KNEFELY, who established the first limburger cheese factory in this country in Jefferson County, N. Y., died on Wednesday at his home in Baltimore, Md., in his eighty-eighth year. He was born in Germany and came here as a young man of 18.

JOHN I. KINSEY, who for forty years was master mechanic of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company's shops in Easton, Penn., died there yesterday, aged 83 years. The locomotives built by him and which bore his name were considered the strongest and speediest type of their day. He invented a spark arrester for locomotives.

WILLIAM PENN HUSSEY, son of the inventor of the Hussey plow, died on Wednesday at his home in Danvers, Mass., in his sixty-fourth year. In 1895 Mr. Hussey bought a coal mine in Nova Scotia for $65,000 and sold it later to an English syndicate at a profit of $2,500,000. A widow and a son survive him.

EMIL EBERSPACHER, son of Christopher Eberspacher, the builder of many of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad bridges, died on Wednesday at his home in this city of pneumonia, in his fifty-third year. He had been a member of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club for twenty-eight years. Mr. Eberspacher succeeded his father in the bridge building business.

Mrs. R. J. PAGE, second daughter of the late John Mitchel, an Irish journalist, author and Nationalist, died on Wednesday night at the rectory of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Lebanon, Penn., of which the Rev. J. M. Page, her only son, is pastor. She was born in Dublin sixty-four years ago, and shared the eventful life of her father when he went into exile in Australia. She was the widow of the Rev. J. Page.

Dr. HERBERT LESLIE BURRELL died on Wednesday at his home in Boston of heart disease, in his fifty-fifth year. While in military circles Dr. Burrell was medical director of the First Brigade of Massachusetts Volunteer Marines, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and later Surgeon General. During the Spanish-American war he was Chief Surgeon of the Bay State, one of the hospital ships. A widow and two young sons survive him.

WESTON PLUCKILY RESUMES WALKING

Injured Pedestrian, However, Cannot Reach City Hall Until Monday Noon.

Special to The New York Times.

HUDSON, N. Y., April 28.—Edward Payson Weston stopped here to-night at 6:15 o'clock for a rest of six hours after having made the least day's mileage he had piled up since he left Los Angeles on Feb. 1 for his tramp of 3,483 miles to City Hall, New York. To-day he made only 24 miles, every one of them fraught with pain because of the injury to the old man's right ankle when he was bowled over by a young man who was catapulted against him by an automobile at Schodack early last evening.

Weston went promptly to bed on his arrival here, but he said he was feeling strong, and the ankle was troubling him less than it had been during the day, and he hoped to make a gain to-morrow, although he has decided that it will be impossible for him to finish at the City Hall, New York, before Monday. It is his present intention to get to the City Hall at noon on Monday.

Mr. Weston left word with his valet that he was to be called at 12:45 o'clock to-morrow morning, his breakfast to be ready at 1, and he is going to leave at 1:30. He said before he went to sleep this evening that he would surely reach Poughkeepsie about noon to-morrow, but declined to tell where he expected to spend the night.

Mr. Weston's right ankle is still badly swollen and discolored as a result of his injury, and every step he took to-day hurt him, but he held steadily to his task, and to-night, although he was disappointd at his showing for the day he said he was sure his foot was getting stronger and that he would be able to get through to New York on Monday.

It was a fortunate circumstance for him that during to-day he had no towns of considerable size to pass through, and, therefore, no big crowds to bother him until he reached this city this evening. Here his way was made easy by Chief of Police James J. Lane, Sergt. John Cruise, and a squad of parolmen who met him at the city line and escorted him to his hotel.

Weston tried to start on his way at 1 o'clock this morning from the farm house of T. Raymond Van Hoesen, near the town of Schodack, where he went after he was hurt yesterday afternoon, but Dr. Ira M. Garrison of East Greenbush, who was called to attend him early last evening, vetoed that proposition, as Weston's ankle was so badly swollen the doctor told him it would not do to start until several hours later.

When the Van Hoesen family rose at 5:30 o'clock, Mr. Weston got up with them, and had a hearty breakfast, which he appeared to enjoy. Promptly at 6:30 o'clock he left the Van Hoesen house, and for the first hour of his tramp toward New York, he certainly was an object of commisseration, because his right foot was so lame that he could scarcely bear his weight upon it, and limped in a manner which aroused the sympathy of all who saw him. He was stiff and bruised from his fall on the road when he was knocked down, and it was only by the exercise of his adamantine will that he was able to keep on his way at all.

The one thing favorable to him in the weather conditions of the early morning was that the wind was from the north, and, therefore, on his back. During the first hour after he left Van Hoesens he covered only a little over two and a half miles.

On the second hour the old man made a trifle over three miles, and then, the wind having died down somewhat and the sun having come out stronger, he warmed up to his work and began making almost four miles an hour. He reached Kinderhook at 10:15 o'clock, twelve miles from his starting place, and went to bed, where he remained until 2:30, when he got under way for the last leg of to-day's tramp, which was to this city, twelve miles away.

He had stiffened up considerable during his rest at the hotel in Kinderhook and limped considerably the first four miles, but after that, although he told members of his party that he was suffering considerable pain, he began walking in better form, and came through to Hudson at an average of a little better than three miles an hour, arriving here at 6:10 o'clock.

Mr. Weston has been particularly irritated over automobiles to-day, and he said that if he had had a revolver he certainly would have taken a shot at a touring car party which passed him near a bridge this side of Kinderhook. Weston was walking in the middle of the road when a car containing two men and two women bore down on him from the rear, and, traveling at a good rate of speed, did not blow the horn until the car was within a few feet of the pedestrian. Somewhat nervous from his experience of last evening, Weston jumped to one side just in time to escape being struck by the car, the speed of which was not slackened. Weston happened to jump in the right direction, and the car whizzed by, barely missing him.

A boy riding a bicycle also disconcerted the old man to-day, because he insisted on riding close to Weston after he had been warned away. The boy was so intent on watching the pedestrian that he did not notice a stone in his path, and when he struck it and fell off his wheel he rolled against Weston's left foot. Weston whacked the boy well with his walking stick. Fortunately the boy struck his strong foot and did Weston no harm.

John L. Sullivan, the former champion pugilist, will tell in next Sunday's Times how he intends to report for this newspaper the Jeffries-Johnson fight at San Francisco on July 4. He discusses the factors of success in such a contest, and his letter is illuminated with touches of his own and other people's philosophy.

Excelsior Handicap Horses.

Following the close of the regular Spring meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club yesterday, a second Spring meeting over the Aqueduct course will open to-day under the arrangement made for filling in the dates claimed originally granted to the Metropolitan Jockey Club. The big event of the second meeting, the Excelsior Handicap, of $2,500, one mile and a sixteenth, for three-year-olds and upward, will be run to-morrow, and the field of probable starters, as announced after a canvass among owners and trainers, includes the following horses: Jack Atkin, 135; Prince Ahmed, 120; Fayette, 112; Fort Johnson, 108; Magazine, 108; Arasee, 106; Far West, 104; Great Heavens, 104; Berkeley, 102; Mary Davis, 100; Guy Fisher, 100, and Duke of Ormonde, 92. Jack Atkin is regarded as a doubtful starter, though his stable hopes to get him to the post.

Whitney's Artless Wins Ely Plate.

NEWMARKET, England, April 28.—The Ely Plate of 200 sovereigns, for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs of the Rous course, was run here to-day and won by H. P. Whitney's Artless. Cinder King was second and Call Box third. There were four starters.

EX-CAR CONDUCTOR WINS TWO RACES

McManus Triumphs with Rocky O'Brien and Golden Agnes at Aqueduct Track.

The racing at the Aqueduct track yesterday had some real claim to class, but the sport in itself was in shadow behind nearly twin features. These were a flea-biting horseman's feud of the type that has come to be known as a "selling race war," and a double triumph for James McManus, whose distinction on the turf clings firmly to the fact that he made a beginning in success as a good and polite street car conductor in San Francisco, his fame seeming to ignore the fact that he has proved himself a very competent and shrewd owner and manager of race horses which have built up a fortune for him.

The weight of opinion put the McManus victories first, however, and though the great stables were well represented in the races the ex-car conductor won a great warmth of applause when he won the six furlongs handicap with Rocky O'Brien, named for his old-time "pal," and the same colt which with high weight up came on to beat the champion colt Sweep and a crack field for the rich Hopeful Stakes at Saratoga last Summer. It was simply because of McManus himself that the cheers were louder when the unaesthetic purple and green quarters of the McManus barn came on from behind at the finish and put the half-mile for two-year-old fillies to the credit of Golden Agnes over the much-talked-of Newcastle Stable's filly Bashti and a smart field.

The bickering among the horsemen in the selling races, having its origin in similar happenings on the Winter tracks, began yesterday when S. C. Hildreth, owner of the horse Eddie Dugan, third in the third event, claimed from R. F. Carman the useful horse Campeon for $1,325. H. G. Bedwell, a master hand with selling class horses, made the next move by bidding double the entered price for Guy Fisher, a fast Western horse, which made his Eastrn début by winning the selling mile in the fastest time and the first mile of the meeting under 1:40. Guy Fisher ran as the property of Ed Heffner, and from all indications his party had a profitable race of it, as the comparatively unknown Westerner started as a hot favorite over a good selling class field. The feud penalty on Guy Fisher's new owners was $1,202.50, Bedwell bidding him up to $2,400, and his trainer retaining him for a further advance of $5. One J. R. Marquette made another move in the selling race squabble, he having claimed Royal Onyx from T. G. Mollinelli for $1,080 the day before. The summaries:

AUTO ON 6,000-MILE TOUR.

Regal "Plugger" Arrives Here on Long Demonstration Trip.

The Regal "Plugger," which is making a 6,000-mile demonstration trip, arrived in this city yesterday. It will pass through fourteen States, and stops will be made in sixty-four cities en route. The machine is in charge of R. W. Dean and driven by Lee A. Cuson, representatives of the Regal Motor Car Company of Detroit. The party was met by a big delegation of automobilists and escorted to the City Hall. The party remained over night and will continue their journey to Philadelphia to-day.

The purpose of the trip is to demonstrate the ability of the car to make an extensive tour without trouble or great expense if proper care is taken. The car has never been extensively repaired or overhauled, all adjustments having been made by Dean and Cuson.

The car left Detroit April 11 and completed the first lap yesterday. It passed through Buffalo, Albany, Boston, Providence, and New Haven. The second lap of the trip will carry the party through Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Wheeling, and Cleveland. From this point the route will continue as far as Kansas City, south to St. Louis, and north to Minneapolis.

The car is the same that made a record trip from New York to San Francisco, 4,032 miles, in thirty days. On the return it paced Edward Payson Weston in Ohio. The present tour will end in Detroit, and it is probable that it will start in the Glidden tour. The average speed of the car is thirty miles an hour.

Upon the arrival of the car E. E. Peake, representing the Regal Company, met it, and with about thirty machines escorted it to the City Hall. The car itself is a curiosity shop, and attracted much attention. It bore the flag which was presented by ex-Mayor McClellan of New York when he was in office, and has been on the machine during the last 18,000 miles. The car is covered with posters, signs, autographs, tags, and various other decorations.

NEWCASTLE IS CHAMPION.

Barnsley Eleven Defeated in Play-Off of Tie for Association Football Cup.

LIVERPOOL, April 28.—Newcastle defeated Barnsley with a score of 2 to 0 in the play-off of the football tie at Goodison Park to-day. The game was fought out at a rare pace, and to the winner goes the association football championship cup.

In the first half neither team scored, but soon after play was resumed Newcastle shot a goal and repeated the performance just before the close. Sixty thousand persons witnessed the match.

New York State Football Election.

At the annual election of the New York State Football Association, held at the Boys' Club yesterday, Thomas C. Cliff of the Columbia Football and Cricket Club was elected for the ensuing year. William D. Andrews of the Crescent Athletic Club was elected Vice President, and A. H. Dale of the Camerons as Secretary and Treasurer. Members of the new Board of Directory were elected as follows: S. McNulty, Astoria Independents; W. H. Stiles, Brooklyn; P. McCulloch, Clan McDonald; J. W. McPhee, Bensonhurst Thistles; T. Cunningham, Critchleys, and J. J. Brunton, Bronx United. Officials for the final State Cup tie game between the Critchleys and Hollywood Inn to be played at Marquette Oval in Brooklyn on Sunday afternoon will be D. N. Whyte of Brooklyn, referee, with A. H. Dale and R. McCulloch as linesmen.

BOXING AND WRESTLING.

Ad Wolgast has accepted the offer of the National Sporting Club of Pittsburg to fight Johnny Marto of New York in a six-round bout in that city in the near future.

Billy Papke and Joe Thomas have signed to fight twenty-five rounds in Coffroth's arena in San Mateo County, Cal., on Saturday afternoon, May 14.

Leach Cross announces that he will box Matty Baldwin ten rounds at Tom O'Rourke's National Sporting Club on May 13.

Yussiff Mahmout, the Turk, Wednesday night won the first of the series of matches to be wrestled at Montreal, Buffalo, Kansas City, and Chicago, to decide who will have the right to meet Frank Gotch in a championship battle. Mahmout defeated Raoul de Rouen in two out of three falls.

The volunteers to date for the Young Corbett testimonial at the Fairmont A. C. Monday night comprise among the pugilists Jim Corbett, Tom Sharkey, Gus Ruhlin, Frank Erne, Joe Gans, Battling Nelson, Leach Cross, Jack O'Brien, Warren Barbour, Kid McCoy, Terry McGovern, Twin Sullivan, Stanley Ketchel, Sam Langford, and numerous others of lesser prominence. Of the theatrical field there are George M. Cohan, Sam H. Harris, Eddie Foy, De Wolf Hopper, Sam Bernard, Will Sloan, Harry Bulger, Welsh, Nealy and Montrose, and Adolph Zink.

ATTELL SECURES DRAW WITH MURPHY

Featherweights Put Up Lively Exhibition Before Empire Athletic Club.

Abe Attell, featherweight champion of the world, and Tommy Murphy, aspirant to lightweight honors, fought a ten-round draw at the Empire Athletic Club last night in the presence of some 5,000 followers of the sport. Neither was in bad physical condition when the bout came to an end, but Attell's left eye was sadly bunged up, and Murphy's nose and mouth showed unmistakably that Attell's punches had landed fairly often and hard.

The fight was punctuated with prolonged wrestling exhibitions. There was some wild and sometimes weird infighting, with Murphy the chief offender in the line of rushing in and holding on hard. Attell plainly preferred to fight at long range, but that was not Murphy's long suit with a boxer of Attell's ability. The nine pounds, too, which Attell conceded to Murphy undoubtedly had something to do with Murphy's rought infighting.

Attell started the affair in the first round by missing a hard left for the wind and then Murphy bored in, sending two lefts to the jaw. Attell returned the compliment in kind, and then Murphy came back with two more light left hooks to the mouth. Attell slipped to the floor and Murphy rushed in as he arose, but Attell stopped the advance with a hard left on the jaw. Both then resorted to jabbing tactics until the bell rang.

The second round was, like the first, a series of clinches and left hooks by each to the other's face. Murphy's uppercuts in the clinches were also working overtime and one found Attell's tongue pinched tightly between his teeth and started it bleeding freely. Attell was forcing the fighting at the bell.

Each came out of his corner in the third round and they mixed it. Murphy sent a left to the stomach and another to the jaw. Attell landed a hard left to the stomach and then hooked Murphy's jaw. Murphy forced Attell against the ropes, and Attell's jabs failed to work as Murphy put two hard lefts to the jaw.

Attell's blocking in the fourth was very clever, and Murphy found that his one big chance lay in infighting. He therefore proceeded to rush in and stay in close throughout the round to the evident disgust of many of the members. Neither landed a hard blow during the round, and Attell had all the advantage of what clean leading and hitting there was.

After Attell had slipped to the floor avoiding Murphy's rush in the fifth they exchanged left and right swings to the jaw. Thereafter they stuck to each other closely, each pounding the other's body in the clinches and trying many hard leads that did not land for the head on the break.

Murphy landed a light left on the jaw as the sixth round opened. Attell cleverly blocked hard leads for the body in the frequent clinches that followed. Murphy missed a hard swing for the jaw and went headlong into the ropes, Attell uppercutting him twice and peppering him across the ring at close range as the bewildered Harlemite tried to find a chance to get set. Murphy was made to look exceedingly foolish for a moment by the way in which his agile opponent jabbed and hooked him to the bell.

Attell dazzled Murphy with his footwork in the seventh and had Murphy swinging rather wildly. Murphy persisted in closing in, and in the prolonged infighting which resulted to the bell Attell had slightly the better of the argument. Attell shot a terrific left hook to Murphy's face that just missed doing the trick. Murphy's nose and mouth were bleeding freely as he went to his corner.

They started the eighth with a wrestle, and kept it up so long that Referee Buckley said, "If you don't fight I'll throw you both out." Attell answered him with "Ain't I fighting?" but Murphy paid no attention and kept hanging on and trying to fight himself clear. Clinch followed clinch after that to the bell, with Murphy having a bit the better of it.

Attell again slipped to his knees as he rushed at Murphy at the sound of the gong in the ninth, and Murphy started in to fight fast. As he bored in Attell caught him with hard left and right hooks to the face, which smeared Murphy's face with his own blood. Attell sent a terrific left uppercut to the jaw and had Murphy hanging on for a second or two. Attell then rained blows on Murphy's sore nose and mouth, with Murphy doing no leading or hitting.

The tenth was like almost all the preceding rounds, a series of clinches, in which neither did any damage. Both went to their corners almost as fit as when they started, except for Attell's sore left eye and Murphy's damaged nose and mouth.

JEFFRIES CATCHES TROUT.

Lands Eighty as a Diversion While Recovering from Slight Operation.

BEN LOMOND, Cal., April 28.—To recover from the lancing of an eruption on his back, James J. Jeffries rested from training to-day. He spent the day fishing, and returned to camp with eighty trout. Jeffries says he slept soundly last night and suffered no ill-effects from the operation.

Several days ago Manager Sam Berger strained a knee tendon, and he aggravated the injury by playing handball with Jeffries yesterday. Jeffries says he will be hard at work again Monday, but Berger may have to keep to the side lines.

JOHNSON AT LOS ANGELES.

Negro Population Turns Out to Greet Champion—Appears in Bout.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 28.—Jack Johnson, world's heavyweight pugilistic champion, arrived in Los Angeles to-day, accompanied by a retinue of retainers. He was met at the station by a number of fight fans and a majority of the negro population, the latter forming a procession as the champion strode up Spring Street.

Johnson appeared to-night in a bout with one of his sparring partners as a preliminary to the Conley and Webster fight at the Maud Junction Pavilion. Johnson said that he would not commence training before the middle of next week, and intimated that he would take matters leisurely until the middle of May.

Piet and Yanger in a Draw.

Henri Piet, lightweight champion of France, and Benny Yanger, the Tipton Slasher, fought a ten-round draw at the Long Acre Athletic Association last night. The go was tame, and although Monsieur Piet was as lively as a jumping jack and occasionally pushed a left jab against Yanger's nose, he seemed to lack a punch and is only a showy boxer. The Tipton Slasher seems to have lost his slash, and the entertainment consisted mainly of some graceful movements by the Frenchman. There was an enthusiastic gathering of fellow-countrymen of Piet's present to see the bout, and they made the Long Acre Club ring with cheers. The boxers wore green gloves, a new style in ring mitts. Piet butted Yanger with his head so hard that he cut a gash in his forehead. One of the Frenchman's jabs made the Slasher's nose bleed. No damage, however, was noticed beyond these two incidents. Young Adolph, another French boxer, also made his debut here and had a shade over Joe Phillips in six rounds.

Langford and Burns Matched.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Sam Langford and Tommy Burns will meet in a forty-five-round fight before the Metropolitan Athletic Club, San Francisco, on Sept. 5 next. Langford's manager posted $5,000 here to-day to assure the colored man's appearance. The men will fight for a $20,000 purse.

Results of Billiard Matches.

George Moore, the champion three-cushion carrom billiard player of Greater New York, who is meeting all comers at McGraw's Billiard Academy this week, had no trouble in defeating Frank Becker last night by the score of 30 to 2 in thirty innings. Moore made runs of 5 twice, but his high run for the game was 8. In to-night's game he will have for an opponent George Whitsom.

There was only one game played yesterday in the annual Spring billiard tournament at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway, in which Willis Thomsone easily defeated George St. John by the score of 300 to 221 in forty innings. Thomsone's high runs were 35 and 34, and his average 7½. St. John's high runs were 38 and 27, and his average 5½.

Church Athletic League Games.

In one of a series of dual meets held under the auspices of the Church Athletic League, the St. Agnes A. A. defeated the Madison Square Men's Club at the St. Agnes Gymnasium last night by the score of 1,064 to 917, thereby winning the trophy ofered for the team getting the most points. The prize ofered for the individual getting the most points was won by W. Winters of St. Agnes's A. A.; R. McCann won second prize; L. Gross of the Madison Square Men's Club won third prize, and Edward Battelheim of St. Agnes A. A. won fourth prize. Dr. Palmer of C. C. N. Y., George Barron of Xavier A. A., and George Ensel of the West Side Y. M. C. A., officiated as judges, and Fred Delaney was referee.

YANKS BUNCH HITS; COOMBS KNOCKED OUT

Ford Effective Against Athletics, Who Are Beaten on the Hilltop, 7 to 3.

The Yankees were up in arms against Coombs, the Athletics' pitcher, on the Hilltop yesterday, landing on him like a ton of brick and driving him ignominiously from the hummock in the fourth inning after Stallings's men had loaded seven runs up on their side of the scales. The Philadelphians got three runs in as many innings and they were lucky to get the trio. After the large front that Mack's men put up in the portion of a game on Wednesday, which was water-soaked and not finished, a big crowd gathered yesterday to see these fast traveling Quakermen. The Athletics were not proficient with the club, but the Yanks walloped the ball to all corners of the scenery while Coombs was pegging. The man who made the Philadelphia batsmen lay down, roll over, and play dead was Russell Ford.

Ford whisked a high inshoot at the visitors. It came at them like a pea, high up around their shoulders, where they couldn't chop it. It was gloriously effective and had the Athletics larruping the bulb into the azure just where the fleet Yankee fielders could stab it. Ford allowed five hits and never once did the Athletics bunch two together. Oldring jammed a three-sack crack to right in the third, but he anchored there. Ford fanned six men and allowed only two free rides. He had them begging for mercy for more than once. An example of Ford's cruelty toward the enemy was seen in the seventh inning, when, with one down, the Athletics got two runners on the trail. They tried to set off some dynamite under Ford, but he just gave them a frigid stare and fanned the next two men. Batter up!

Oldring got a double in the first, scampered to third on Ford's bad toss to second, and scored when Eddie Collins was being put out. The Yankees started to ring up fares in the first. Hemphill, the first man to face Coombs, ambled. Wolter singled to centre and Chase placed a neat drive back of second, which scored Hemphill. Cree went out at first and Laporte pushed a high one to Danny Murphy in right, but Danny's eyes got mixed up with the sun glare and Wolter registered.

Philadelphia got another run back in the third, when Topsy Hartsel walked and came through on Oldring's triple. The score didn't stay tied long, for in the same inning Laporte singled and Austin and Sweeney skyrocketed high ones to Hartsel in left field. These two flies dripped through Topsy's hands like water squeezes its way through a sieve. While Topsey was thus instilling rage into the hearts of his fellow-players, Laporte and Austin footed it in with a couple more runs. Murphy walked in the fourth, stole second, and tallied on Barry's double.

That will be about all for the Athletics. The Yankees sure did spank Coombs in the fourth. Hemphill laid down a bunt, Wolter singled to left. Then he and Hemphill worked a double steal. Chase was called out on strikes. Cree then stepped into the breach and rocked the pill for three furlongs, pushing Hemphill and Wolter home. Laporte whiffed a roller to Barry, and Mr. B. made a desperate effort to hurl the ball over the right-field bleachers. He almost succeeded and Cree scored. Right here and now Coombs was chucked into a dark corner of the bench and covered up with sweaters and Dygert went in to pitch. He held the Yanks runless for the rest of the matinée. They needed no more runs, seven is plenty.

Birdie Cree was smoothly artistic in getting under high flies in left field. No matter which direction they were traveling, Cree worked a nice Ketchel shift and was right there to greet them when they dropped. Wolter had this same habit in right field. Wolter, by the way, hit the ball yesterday until it was black and blue. Four hits out of five times up. Making out that isn't worthy of superlatives. The score:

Senators Down Boston in Twelfth.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Washington defeated Boston in a hard twelve-inning game today, 2 to 1. Johnson was unusually effective with men on bases, twelve of the visitors striking out. Collins pitched good ball until the final round, when he weakened, four singles winning the game. Boston's only run resulted from Street's wild throw to second. The batting of Speaker and Lord featured with Johnson's pitching. The score:

NEW BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Department Stores Will Adopt Schedule Next Week.

The Department Store Baseball League of Greater New York met at the Fourteenth Street Store last night. Delegates from the eight representative teams attended and several important matters regarding the future of the league were discussed. The league has been endeavoring to secure two suitable inclosed grounds for the playing of its schedule. This was decided last night, when Hawthorne Field of Brooklyn was finally decided upon as the ground for the games to be played over the bridge and Bronx Oval for the Manhattan grounds.

The Schedule Committee reported that the complete schedule would be in the hands of the Secretary and ready for publication at the next meeting, which takes place next Thursday night.

A loving cup will be presented at the end of the season to the team selling the greatest number of tickets. The resignation of the Lord & Taylor team was accepted and the nine representing Bateman & Co. of Brooklyn admitted to membership to fill the vacancy.

Robert Kennedy was accepted as referee, with a vacancy for a second to be filled later.

The rule regarding a player jumping from one team to another not being made clear in the original rules, a revision was adopted whereby a player cannot appear on any team which has not registered thirty days in advance of his appearance.

Many of the teams are anxious to get in action before the season begins, and have arranged games for next Sunday as follows: Saks and Rogers-Peet, at Dyckman Street; O'Neill-Adams and Greenhut, at Van Cortlandt Park; the Fourteenth Street Store and Melrose Athletic Club, at Bronx Oval.

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Ganley's Drive Wins for Newark.

The Newarks defeated the Montreal team in a ten-inning game at Newark yesterday by the score of 7 to 6. Manager McGinnity of the locals gave Ernie Wolf a try-out, but he was forced to quit in the fifth inning after five runs had been made off him. The Newarks had piled up six runs in the meantime, and Flater was sent in. The Canadians tied the score in the eighth.

In the tenth inning Meyer led off with a double for Newark. Kelly was retired on three strikes, but Meyer reached third a moment later on a wild pitch by Jones. Ganley sent him over the plate with a pretty line drive over the first baseman's head. The score:

LARRY DOYLE BREAKS TIE WITH A DOUBLE

Giants' Captain Drives Home Two Runners in the Thirteenth Inning.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—The trusty bat of Capt. Larry Doyle, whacking forth a whistling two-bagger which sent in two runs in the thirteenth inning, won for the Giants to-day in a seething battle with the Phillies. Again the New Yorks demonstrated that no matter how badly the storm is raging against them there is still a whirlwind finish in them, which is brought out at the crucial moment. And here is the place to slap the erratic Raymond on his broad back, for his Buglets went the route like a thoroughbred, never slipping a cog in his flinging and taming the opposition whenever they threatened disaster.

President Horace Fogel was low in his mind last night. When the Phillies started the season like a prairie fire sweeping everything out of the way and piling up seven straight wins he immediately made arrangements for the flagpole on which to stick the pennant bunting and another high pole on which he was going to nail the world's championship muslin. Then along came the Giants, who stuck a pin in the bubble, and hence Fogel's dejection.

To-day's game was a stirring pitching battle between "Bugs" Raymond and Earl Moore. It was a toss-up to the very end, until the Giants uncorked the package of pepper in the final round. It looked like a Giant victory with the count 2 to 0 in the eighth. Then the Phillies rallied and came up on even terms with a rush. Four run-famished innings followed, and then the gallop to the winning post.

Cy Seymour, the first man up in the second inning, waved a deadly thrust at the ball, and it tumbled against the stockade in right field limped and bruised. Seymour made the circuit before the ball came back. In the sixth inning "Bugs" walked, and Devore bunted for a sacrifice. Moore threw wild to first, and Raymond went to third. Doyle flied out to Doolan, and Bransfield got Murray's foul near the stands. Seymour ripped off a single and "Bugs" went home.

The eighth marked the Phillies' desperate try to break up the matinée. Grant fanned. Surely not a favorable start. Magee walked, Bransfield lifted a balloon bang to Devore, but Josh spilled it, Magee going to third and Bransfield to second. Knabe rapped a single to centre, sending in the two counts and tieing the score.

In the next few innings Philadelphia's hopes rose and fell. The throbbing fans were on the verge of collapse several times, but every time the Phillies lacked the punch when it was needed. Schlei started the thirteenth with a single. Raymond fanned, and Devore hit out a safety.

And who should parade to the plate but Larry Doyle. His two-base drive scored Schlei and Devore. Murray fouled out to Dooin. The Quaker catcher heaved a wild one to second to catch Doyle, and the Giant leader went to third. Becker, who took Seymour's place in centre, singled and Doyle romped in. Horace Fogel locked himself in his private office and listened to the crowd as it tramped out of the stands singing the praises of the enemy. The score:

Brooklyn Wins; Makes Triple Play.

BOSTON, April 28.—Brooklyn defeated Boston, 10 to 3, by heavy hitting in a poorly played game to-day. A triple play in the seventh inning, in which five of the visitors figured, checked a Boston rally. Hummel's batting was another feature. The score:

Flynn's Home Run Beats Cardinals.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 28.—The Cincinnati team made its first appearance here today and was beaten by Pittsburg by the score of 5 to 2. A home run by Flynn in the eighth inning, with two men on bases, settled the game in favor of the home team. The fielding feature was a sensational one-hand catch by Bescher, which cut off two prospective runs. Score:

CLINTON ATHLETES BEST.

High School Boys Beat Columbia Freshman in Dual Games, 48 to 42.

De Witt Clinton High School won a closely contested track and field meet from the Columbia freshmen yesterday afternoon on South Field, the final score being 48 points to 42. Six of the ten events were won by the losing team. The best time of the meet was made in the quarter-mile run, in which three Clinton runners succeeded in taking all the points. The Columbia youngsters did their best work in the sprints and field events. H. H. Jacobs won the 100 and 220 yards dashes in good time, and took third in the low hurdles, scoring 11 points for the freshmen. W. F. Roos accounted for 13 of the points made by 1913, winning the shotput and hammer throw and taking second in the high hurdles. F. MacDonald of Clinton and N. B. Ward of Columbia each won two first, the former coming in first in the half mile and mile, and the latter taking the low hurdles and broad jump. Ward also tied for third in the high jump. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash.—Won by H. H. Jacobs, Columbia, 1913; N. L. Gilbert, Clinton High School, second; F. Schlesinger, Clinton High School, third. Time—0:10 2-5.

220-Yard Dash.—Won by H. H. Jacobs, Columbia, 1913; W. Foster, Clinton High School, second; N. L. Gilbert, Clinton High School, third. Time—0:23 2-5.

440-Yard Dash.—Won by J. Brady, Columbia, 1913; W. Foster, Clinton High School, second; F. Boye, Clinton High School, third. Time—0:52 4-5.

880-Yard Run.—Won by F. MacDonald, Clinton High School; W. F. Cox, Columbia, 1913, second; E. McGolrick, Clinton High School, third. Time—2:11 2-5.

One-Mile Run.—Won by F. MacDonald, Clinton High School; G. Laguardes, Columbia, 1913, second; W. F. Cox, Columbia, third. Time—4:49 3-5.

120 High Hurdles.—Won by J. S. Slattery, Clinton High School; W. F. Roos, Columbia, 1913, second; F. Kaufman, Clinton High School, third. Time—0:18 1-5.

220-Yard Low Hurdles.—Won by N. B. Ward, Columbia, 1913; J. S. Slattery, Clinton High School, second; H. H. Jacobs, Columbia, 1913, third. Time—0:29.

Running High Jump.—Won by W. F. Roos, Columbia, 1913, with a jump of 5 feet 3 inches; S. Graham, Clinton High School, second, with a jump of 5 feet 2 inches; tie for third place between N. B. Ward, Columbia, 1913, and S. Marsdell, Columbia, 1913, at the height of 5 feet.

Running Broad Jump.—Won by N. B. Ward, Columbia, 1913, with a jump of 19 feet 11 inches; N. L. Gilbert, Clinton High School, and J. S. Slattery, Clinton High School, tied for second place, with jumps of 17 feet 10¾ inches.

Twelve-Pound Shotput.—Won by W. F. Roos, Columbia, 1913, with a put of 43 feet 11 inches; F. Boye, Clinton High School, second, with a put of 35 feet 8 inches; L. Lefkowitz, Clinton High School, third, with a put of 35 feet 3¼ inches.

Final score: Clinton High School, 48; Columbia, 1913, 42.

COLLEGE BASEBALL.

Harvard Wins on Wild Throw.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 28.—It took a tenth inning for Harvard to turn a tie game into victory with Williams to-day, and then a wild throw to third by Catcher Lambie, with two out, let in Carr and made the final score 2 to 1. Both Hicks and Templeton pitched excellent ball, but the Williams man got nearly double the number of strike-outs to his credit over Hicks. The score:

Taft's "Double" Won't See Game.

PITTSBURG, April 28.—When President Taft attends the ball game between Chicago and Pittsburg at Forbes Field next Monday he will not be accompanied by his double, Sergt. Thomas J. Morley of the Central Station. Morley was invited by a member of the Entertainment Committee to attend the game but last night said he would not be there.

"I don't want to make a show of myself," said Morley, "and besides it being embarrassing to me, it might not be comfortable for the President. I'll be on duty at the old station that day but I'll keep posted as to how the game goes."

Baseball Releases and Contracts.

President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League announced the following contracts and releases yesterday: Edward J. Kieber and W. A. Torrey signed with New York, and John F. Castle with Philadelphia; Fred R. Liese was released from Boston to St. Paul, Mike Konnick from Cincinnati to Louisville, F. Kommers from New York to Montreal, Edward J. Kieber from New York to Newark, Charles B. Moran from New York to Dallas, Otto Deininger from Philadelphia to Rochester, Louis Schaub, Jr., from Philadelphia to Lowell.

SHACKLEFORD'S GOLF BEST IN MEDAL PLAY

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. Y., April 28.—W. E. Shackleford of the home club won the medal in the eighteen-hole qualifying round of the invitation golf tournament, which began to-day on the links of the Country Club of Atlantic City. His score of 83 led by three strokes Dr. C. S. Mills of Riverton, his nearest opponent.

There were 140 entries, making the most unwieldy field the committee has ever had to handle. Only one entrant from the Metropolitan district qualified in the first sixteen. This was C. H. Kirk of Baltimore, who returned a 92. The cards were unusually high and while the course has been stiffened up considerably this fact does not entirely explain the indifferent scoring.

In the absence of the stars the field looks fairly well balanced, though it seems odd to see A. W. Tillinghast of Philadelphia down in the second set. Dr. A. T. Haight of Wykagyl tied for last place in the first sixteen with a score of 95, but lost on the draw.

Contestants qualified in six sixteenhs, and those who lose in the first round tomorrow morning will have a chance to try again for beaten eights. Shackleford played well except on three holes, the fourth, seventeenth, and eighteenth, when he had two sevens and a six. The score:

Frankel Wins Newspaper Golf.

The golf links at Van Cortlandt Park were formally opened for the season yesterday when the New York Newspaper Golf Club held its Spring tournament. Park Commissioner Higgins of the Bronx drove off the first ball and then followed a medal play handicap in which sixty-three members of the golf club competed. S. W. Frankel took first place in the event with a net score of 75, with R. Wheeler and F. T. Pope tied for second with 82 each. The novice class brought out a good field of contestants, and W. W. Burge, who has played in all only seven times and has never competed over the full course, astonished the dyed-in-the-wool golfers with a card which showed 115, which was nineteen strokes better than that of his nearest rival. The best gross score was made by Herbert F. Jones, who turned in an 84.

Due to the work of Park Commissioner Higgins the course was in better shape than it has been for a long time and was a decided improvement over the conditions which prevailed last year. Both the fair greens and the putting greens were a bit heavy, but this will be eliminated in a short time.

One of the novel features of the tournament was a goat which ambled about the first tee during the entire day as a mascot for the competing golfers. The scores were:

S. W. Frankel, 120, (45,) 75; R. Wheeler, 110, (28,) 82; F. T. Pope, 114, (12,) 82; P. Godfrey, 128, (45,) 83; H. Hedley, 100, (15,) 85; F. L. O'Connell, 105, (20,) 85; J. W. Ferguson, 100, (15,) 85; J. H. Hennings, 121, (35,) 86; H. F. Jones, 84, (plus 3,) 87; F. Mahon, 123, (35,) 88; Mrs. Bennett, 124, (35,) 89; C. E. Van Loan, 114, (25,) 89; C. Athletic Games of Christian Brothers.

The athletic games under the auspices of the Christian Brothers of Ireland at Celtic Park on Sunday afternoon, May 15, promise to attract many noted athletes, including John Flanagan and Matt McGrath. There will be five open events—100 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile, and five-mile runs, all handicaps, and three special events, 220-yard run, handicap, open only to members of the Catholic Athletic League; 880-yard relay, handicap, open to members of the Catholic Athletic League, and throwing the 56-pound weight, handicap, from a stand. In addition to the track and field sports there will be two games of Gaelic football, one between Kerry and Clare, and the other between Sarsfield and Tipperary. There will also be a hurling contest between Tipperary and Kilkenny. Entries close May 9 with John J. McHugh, Post Office Box 14, Grand Central Station; Dieges & Clust, 23 John Street, and J. E. Sullivan, 21 Warren Street.

DONNELLY JUMPERS SOLD.

Initial Was Highest Priced Horse in Sale—Exchange Closes.

After nearly two decades of activity the American Horse Exchange will after tomorrow be but a memory. The final sale was held last night, when the jumping horses owned by Dick Donnelly went under the hammer. The catalogue embraced twenty-four horses, but outside of those owned by the famous cross-country rider there was little of general interest.

The Donnelly consignment consisted of four of the best-known horses in the horse show world, and many persons prominent in social circles were on hand. It was bargain night, as only one horse was bid up above $1,000. Sapolio was the first to go, George Chipchase paying $500 for him. Irish Reel, a big chestnut gelding, went to George Watson for $300. Fifteen minutes after the horse was knocked down Lawrence Smith bought him from Watson for $800. Knight of Elway went to Watson for $700, and Initial, the pick of the lot, was bid up to $1,525 before he changed ownership. Initial has won over fifty blue ribbons, championships, and reserves in America and abroad.

Donnelly will sail for Europe early next month to ride jumpers at the London, Richmond, Dublin, The Hague, and other horse shows. He expects to be abroad for two years.

Withington Stops Football for Rowing.

When the Harvard 'Varsity eight-oared crew went on the water for the first time since the race with the Naval Academy oarsmen Lothrop Withington took the place of Hooper at No. 4, the latter retiring to No. 6 on the second crew. Last year Withington rowed regularly at No. 5 in the Columbia, Cornell, and Yale races. For a short time this season he pulled at No. 4, but for the past month he has been out of the boat on account of football practice, which he superintended. He will row, however, during the remainder of the season. Another English shell, exactly like the boat the crew is now using, has been ordered. If it arrives in time it will be used in the race against Cornell.

McGann's Brother a Suicide.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

R. C. Norton, 1911, was elected Manager of the Columbia wrestling team at an election held yesterday. W. R. Cruno, 1912, was chosen Assistant Manager at the same time.

R. C. Klugescheid, 1911, C., was elected Manager of the Columbia hockey team yesterday, with G. E. Squier as his assistant.

Two teams will again be placed in the field this season by the Kings County Cricket Club, and both will enter the championship competition of the Metropolitan District Cricket League. They will open the season with a club match at Prospect Park on May 7, and have arranged matches for all Saturdays and holidays fro mthen until the end of September.

There is keen interest in the Gaelic football games to be played between Kilkare and Kilkenny, and Lauth and Cavan, which will be played at the New Irish Park, Wakefield, on Sunday. The Gaelic League of the State of New York in carding these all star attractions will send the proceeds to Ireland for the promotion of the Gaelic language there, and as every Gaelic society in this city is behind the movement a record-breaking crowd is expected to witness the two matches.

To-night at the Bohemian Society Hall, East Seventy-first Street, the leading gymnasts of the country will meet in competition for championship honors, and some thrilling stunts will be seen. All the local gymnastic clubs have entered their full teams. The team from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will have a hard time beating out the local cracks, but they feel confident that they will score enough points to win the banner that goes to the club scoring the largest number of points. The colleges will play a larger part in these championships than ever before.

Abel Kiviat, the undefeated one-mile champion runner, will start from scratch in the three-quarter-mile race at the Dominican Lyceum games in the Seventh Regiment Armory next Monday evening. It will be Kiviat's last tryout for the scratch mile he is to run against Sheppard and Gissing at the Monument Club games a week later. The little Staten Islander will have a field of thirty-three to beat, including Dick Egan of the New York Athletic Club, who will start off a short mark. Eddie Carr, the Xavier favorite, will be one of the back markers in the two-mile run handicap. Other starters in this race will be Jimmie Clark, Andy Conroy, Joe Malone, and Powers of the Irish-American Athletic Club. Four fliers will toe the line in the ninety-yard dash, special scratch race, in which a new record is sure to be made. They are Bobbie Cloughen, Jim Rosenberger, Billy Keating, and Jim Archer. All four are stepping 100 yards in "evens."

Athlete Foster Has Measles.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 28.—Harvard's chances of winning first place in the 100 and 220 yard dashes in the dual track meet with Yale on May 14 were dimmed to-day when Reginald C. Foster, '11, who won those events last year, was sent to the Stillman Infirmary suffering from an attack of measles. Foster had just recovered from a sprained tendon. He will probably be in shape to compete in the intercollegiate meet.

1887 Brill Clothes—Ready to Wear 1910

Spring Suits for Men
$15, $17, & $20

RELIABLE fabrics and careful craftsmanship—the essentials of Good Clothes—are the predominating features of these suits. Nothing has been left undone to make them the best possible at the three prices. Tea Time Talks
Ceylon's Spicy Breezes

The soft and spicy breezes which blow o'er Ceylon's isle, have been praised in hymn and story.

"Salada" Tea plantations are on the sunny mountain slopes of this wonderfully favored island where the tea plant reaches its highest perfection. After the native picker has plucked the tender leaves and buds, they are touched by no other hands. Machinery supplants coolie labor and "Salada" tea comes from plantation to purchaser sealed in air-tight lead packages, all its delicate flavor and fragrance preserved from external influences of light, air or moisture.

"SALADA" TEA
Yearly Sales Over 20,000,000 Packages

Ask your grocer for a ten cent trial package of "Salada" Ceylon Tea. It makes 40 cups. If for any reason your grocer cannot supply you, send us his name and address and we will deliver a trial package to you Free. Our pamphlet, "The Healthfulness of Tea," is mailed Free.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks in Further Declines—Call Money Rates, 3½@7 Per Cent.

LIQUIDATION AGAIN A FACTOR

Calling of Loans Forces Sales and Higher Money—Professional Operations an Influence—Exchange Down.

Under the influence of the same factors which brought about Wednesday's fall in prices on the Stock Exchange stocks fell still further yesterday, a score or more of the most prominent issues of the trading making new low records for the year, as a result of declines running from 2 to 4 points or so. The local banks again pursued the policy of calling loans in order to build up reserves depleted by the large gold withdrawals and losses to the Government on routine transactions. The consequent advance in call money rates early in the day to 5 per cent. and later to the maximum figure of 7 per cent. provoked liquidation on the part of bewildered holders of stock whose offerings, reaching the market at the same moment with shares dislodged from slenderly margined speculative accounts, forced quotations steadily downward. Here and there through the list there was ample evidence of the activity of bearish traders, whose interests lay, of course, in accenting the general unsettlement of sentiment. The degree of success attending these manoeuvres in connection with the other developments mentioned was fully attested by the unusual volume of transactions, amounting to at least 1,250,000 shares, and by the many and extraordinary price recessions. A fair sample of the pressure brought to bear on the market from speculative sources was offered by the circumstances attending the announcement of the usual dividend declaration upon Norfolk & Western shares. Without the least particle of official encouragement hopes had been aroused that the Norfolk dividend would be advanced at yesterday's meeting of the Directors to 6 per cent. and that this action could be construed as foreshadowing an increase in the dividend of the Pennsylvania which, of course, controls the Norfolk & Western. Upon the news of the making of the usual declaration Norfolk & Western sold down from 102¼ to 99, and Pennsylvania was subjected to simultaneous pressure. Late in the day moderate buying by the larger interests of the financial community and a very slight short covering movement rallied prices rather sharply, but in the absence of any widespread movement on the part of speculators for the fall to cover their sales the advance was short-lived, and final quotations, therefore, were only slightly above the low of the day, and much below those of Wednesday night. In developments other than those directly connected with the stock market the financial community appeared to have slight interest, but in due time presumably the significance of the day's cotton market will come to be understood. On the eve of the May 1 deliveries, with talk insistent of something like a corner, and in spite of the most alarming reports of crop damage cotton prices broke sharply. At their closing quotations present crop prices are from $1 to $1.50 below the figures at which they ruled before the South was visited by storms and frost. Certainly no undue anxiety in cotton circles is reflected in this showing.

A 7 per cent. rate for call money is the maximum since the first week of January and reflects the determination of the local banks to offset the gold and other drains of the week. In addition to the liquidation of loans, which such a rate at this time denotes, the position of the banks should be bettered by receipts of interior money, attracted by the high return and by withdrawals of deposits for direct placement in the money market. Incidentally the foreign exchange market has been affected, demand sterling rates falling yesterday to a mark at least 40 points under the figure at which exports could be profitably undertaken. The Bank of England's weekly return disclosed no change in its percentage of reserve to deposits, but the showing has, of course, been confused by the complicated Government finances.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday extreme dullness continued. Copper is unchanged for near months, and futures were a shade lower. Spelter was down 10 points in the bid and 15 points in the asking price. Tin ruled about steady.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday spot copper at the close showed no change from the initial price of the day, but a decline of 5s from the final figure of Wednesday; futures likewise remained unchanged from the opening quotation of yesterday, but dropped 2s 6d from the closing price of Wednesday. The market finished steady, final quotations ruling at spot £56; futures, £57 2s 6d.

Spanish pig lead was easier at a recession of 1s 3d, to £12 11s 3d. Pig tin ended firm, but spot and future deliveries each showed a loss of 5s, to £150 and £151 2s respectively. Spelter was steady and unchanged, at £22. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 50s 3d.

The closing bid and asked prices for copper and other metals for spot delivery on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Wednesday:

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Active Trading on Declining Market Taken as Evidence of Liquidation.

LOSSES ARE SUBSTANTIAL

Many of the Coppers Close at Lowest Prices—Cobalt Shares and Bonds Share General Weakness.

The increased volume of trading in the declining market on the Curb yesterday was again taken as evidence of liquidation. There were few exceptions to the general decline, and even the bond list was affected. The mining shares were the heaviest losers, and a number of substantial declines were recorded at the close. Butte Coalition, which reported transactions of 2,700, sold from 21 down to 20 and closed at 20¼. Chino Copper lost ½ on the day's sales of 7,500, closing at 11¼. Miami, after selling down to 21½, closed at 21⅝, ⅜ below the opening. Ray Central, which was one of the most active coppers on the decline, dropped from 2⅝ to 2 1-16, closing at 2 5-16, after sales reported 15,000. Consolidated Arizona Smelting dropped from 2 1-16 to 1 13-16, on sales of 20,000. The Cobalt stocks were weak in the face of favorable developments in the silver market. In the bond list New York Telephone 4½s and Western Pacific 5s lost ⅛.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Margin calls were sent out in large numbers to-day by local brokerage firms and the result was a heavy selling movement in the traction stocks, United Gas Improvement, Electric Storage Battery and other issues, which carried them to new low levels for the year.

Rapid Transit broke to much the lowest levels in its full-paid history. Union Traction was thrown out in blocks and tumbled more than 4 points. A very definite report was circulated that as the bankers who floated the recent Rapid Transit bond issues were averse to permitting that company to be reorganized, they instead proposed to force the Union Traction Company to forego the guaranteed 6 per cent. dividend for the space of two years. Lehigh Valley, together with all the arbitrage shares, also receded.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Cotton Bulls Entrenching.

With a flood of cotton coming in for May delivery, the cotton bulls have been gathering their funds in anticipation of their heavy requirements. James A. Patten was busy calling loans yesterday. Others of the bull clique are understood to have also been large lenders in the recent money markets. To the gathering together of the cotton funds was attributed yesterday a great deal of the stiffening of the money market.

⁂

Patten Says "No Corner."

Mr. Patten reiterated yesterday his statements, made when the Government inquiry into the bull campaign was first started, that there would be "no corner" in cotton, as far as he was concerned.

⁂

Silver's Advance.

Silver advanced one-eighth of 1 cent per ounce yesterday, going to 54¼ cents, the highest level since June 26, 1908, when it touched the same figure. The rise has been consistent for the last two months, and had been attributed in the trade to the heavy buying in India, where prosperity again reigns. Another factor of strength in the silver market is the bill recently passed by the Canadian Parliament, though not yet signed, providing for the coinage of silver dollars.

No Norfolk & Western Dividend Increase.

The Directors of the Norfolk & Western declared yesterday a quarterly dividend at the previous rate of 1¼ per cent., thus disappointing those who had been predicting that the rate would be increased at this meeting to 6 per cent. Following the Norfolk & Western declaration the comment was heard in the financial district that it was now improbable that the Pennsylvania Railroad would raise its rate. An advance in the Pennsylvania rate from 6 to 7 per cent. has been looked upon as one of the possibilities for some time, but in many instances the prediction of an increase in the Pennsylvania rate was coupled with the prediction of an increase in the Norfolk & Western rate, and the failure of this latter prediction served to lessen the number of those who think an increase in the Pennsylvania dividend likely. J. B. Thayer of the Pennsylvania Railroad was elected a Director of the Norfolk & Western yesterday, to take the place of the late Levi C. Weir.

Who'll Be First.

Brokers were condoling with each other in advance of the fact yesterday when news came from Albany that the Toombs bill, making it a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for one year and a fine of $5,000 to publish wash sales, matched orders, &c., had been favorably reported from the Assembly. The Assemblyman's name was found uncannily suggestive by the jokers and the specialists, who have had a full measure of trouble of late, found their friends all too willing to promise them flowers and prison comforts when they got there.

Plight of Comstock Tunnel.

The new Stock Exchange rule fixing commissions on mining stocks at $6.25 per 100 shares where the market value is less than $10, and the full rate of $12.50 where it is over $10, has hit some of the low-priced mining issues hard. Previously there was no fixed rate of commissions on mining stocks, which were classed with "rights" in being bought or sold at whatever charge the broker cared to fix, except where a specific rate was set by the authorities. With Comstock Tunnel selling at 30 cents a share the new rule, as one broker put it, has the effect of making the stock sell "ex," a dividend never received. In other words, a man who had 100 shares of Comstock bought before the rule went into effect, and then worth $30, must now pay $6.25 to get rid of it, thus cutting the value down to $23.75.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 28.—Following the lead of the New York market prices those of the Boston list were all lower to-day. Amalgamated declined to 68½, Lake lost 3 points, North Butte to 32, and North Lake to 11¾. There was a rally toward the close, and prices recovered somewhat during the last hour, but at the close the general market showed losses of from a fraction to about 3 points.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Alfred Mestre & Co. have moved to the Trust Company of America Building at 37 Wall Street.

M. Orme Wilson was elected to the Directorate of the Fourth National Bank yesterday to succeed his father, Richard T. Wilson, who retires on account of ill-health.

Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., who has been abroad for several weeks, returned yesterday. He spent the greater part of the time in Southern France, and said he had paid little attention to business while away.

As a result of the restraining order granted by the Court of Common Pleas of Franklin County, Ohio, on April 27, the offer of the Hocking Valley Railway Company to retire its $15,000,000 preferred stock at par on April 30, has been withdrawn. Until a ruling is had on the temporary injunction issued against the company, nothing further will be done toward the retirement of the preferred shares.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 28.—Money was in good demand and fair supply to-day. Discount rates were easy.

Trading was generally quiet on the Stock Exchange. American rails and copper and diamond shares were weak, but Rhodesian mines and foreign bonds were fairly strong. Gilt-edged securities eased in the afternoon on the disappointing statement of the Bank of England. Rubber and oil shares continued dull, while Mexican rails were firm and the feature of the trading.

American securities opened a fraction higher, and then moved irregularly, United States Steel, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific drooping under realizing. The low-priced issues hardened in issues checked the advance, and, with New York selling later, the market sagged and closed uncertain and with irregular changes.

Bullion amounting to £547,000 (including £411,000 in American eagles) was taken into the Bank of England to-day. The the afternoon, but the forthcoming bond sum of £12,000 was withdrawn for shipment to South America.

Bar silver steady, 24 15-16d per ounce.

Money, 3½@4 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅞ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3 13-16@3⅞ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 6.70; at Lisbon, 11.

PARIS, April 28.—Prices opened steady on the Bourse to-day. A reaction followed and the market closed heavy.

Three per cent. rentes, 98f. 57½c. for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f. 26c. for checks.

BERLIN, April 28.—Unfavorable New York advices caused a weak tone on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 50 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3 per cent.

Private discount rate, 3⅛ per cent.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

Prices were swept down on the Consolidated Stock Exchange under an enormous volume of selling. Liquidation was general, with the reaching of stop-loss orders adding to the pressure against the market. Business on the floor was the greatest since the big break in prices last February. Sales aggregated 238,200 shares, with the list including sixty-seven different stocks. A short interest of large size started to cover at the lower levels, and prevented many stocks from touching as low quotations as were reached on the New York Stock Exchange.

Chesapeake & Ohio Capital Increase.

RICHMOND, Va., April 28.—The stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, in special session here to-day, authorized an increase of the capital stock to $100,000,000. This is an increase of $36,739,700 in the capital. The stockholders also authorized an issue of $37,200,000 twenty-year 4½ per cent. convertible bonds.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR SUPPLIES—ARMY BUILDing New York, N. Y., April 11, 1910.—Sealed proposals, in quadruplicate, will be received here until 10 A. M. CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 28.—High dividend rates were lost sight of in to-day's rush to sell stocks. Illinois Brick tumbled 8 points. The Directors of the American Steel Foundries voted the payment of a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent., the first disbursement the company has ever authorized.

Local stocks were weak, though Street's Stable Car Line rose 2 points. Box Board fell to 5⅝. Of more significance was a decline of over 2 points in Sears-Roebuck common.

Cotton delivered next Monday on May contracts to James A. Patten and other bull leaders will have to be paid for in cash, and the arrangements being made to finance the deliveries were held to be partly responsible for the disturbed state of the money market. The deliveries of cotton are expected to be large, as certain bear interests are doing what they can to smash the market, and it is estimated that the bulls will have between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 tied up in spot cotton after the first of the month.

The Hocking Valley Railway Company

Retirement of Preferred Stock.

April 6th, 1910.

To the Holders of Preferred Stock of the Hocking Valley Railway Company:

Notice is hereby given that in the exercise of the power reserved by THE HOCKING VALLEY RAILWAY COMPANY, and specifically stated in its Articles of Incorporation and Regulations, and also declared in every outstanding stock certificate, the Company has duly determined to retire the Preferred Stock, and the same will be duly retired in whole at par upon the 30th day of April, 1910.

Accordingly, each and every holder of Preferred Stock is notified to present and to surrender his certificate for such Perferred Stock at the office of J. P. Morgan & Company, No. 23 Wall Street, New York City, on or after the 30th day of April, 1910, and upon such surrender such holder will receive payment in cash of the par amount thereof, together with a proportionate amount of the annual 4% dividend thereon from the date when the last dividend accrued, viz., December 31st, 1909, to April 30th, 1910.

No holder of any certificate for Preferred Stock shall or will have any right after April 30th, 1910, as a stockholder of the Company, nor any claim against the Company, except to receive payment for the certificates surrendered at the rate above stated.

By order of the Board of Directors.

WM. N. COTT, Secretary.

23 Wall Street, New York, April 7th, 1910.

Referring to the above notice, on and after April 30th, 1910, or until further notice, we shall be prepared to pay, upon surrender to us of certificates of Hocking Valley Preferred Stock properly endorsed, an amount equal to par together with the proportionate amount of the annual 4% dividend thereon from the date when the last dividend accrued, namely, December 31st, 1909, to April 30th, 1910.

Until further notice, we shall be prepared also at any time prior to April 30th, 1910, to receive Hocking Valley Preferred Stock and pay for the same at par and accrued dividend from December 31st, 1909, to the date of payment.

Holders of our Trust Receipts for Hocking Valley Preferred Stock may upon presentation of such certificates properly endorsed receive the cash payment as above indicated in the same manner as holders of certificates for Preferred Stock.

J. P. MORGAN & CO.

23 Wall Street, New York.
April 28, 1910.

The foregoing offer by us in behalf of the Hocking Valley Railway Company is hereby suspended and withdrawn pending the continuance of a restraining order of the Court of Common Pleas of Franklin County, Ohio, issued April 27, 1910, and this day communicated to us.

J. P. MORGAN & CO.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Grain and Provisions Lower—May Wheat Deliveries Weak—Cotton Unsettled—Large Deliveries Anticipated.

The feature of the wheat market was the weakness in the May positions and the nervousness of the later positions. The opening showed some further buying, and prices ran up for a few moments only, but developed decided pressure and broke from 1 to 2½ cents a bushel, with the greatest weakness in the May deliveries in the Winter wheat markets. Locally the May was down 2½ cents. Decided pressure on the May reflected poor cash demand, and the feeling that the May deliveries would find a rather indifferent opportunity to merchandise the cash wheat. The persistent reports of poor flour demand, and the fact that prices are so much above an export basis are factors of a good deal of importance. On the basis of Liverpool futures May wheat early was about 16 cents over a parity with Liverpool and the later deliveries were about 10 cents over. The foreign markets continue weak notwithstanding this discount under American quotations. Argentine shipments were estimated at 2,800,000 bushels, an increase of 1,100,000 bushels over the previous week. Weather conditions West were generally mor favorable east of the Mississippi and in the Northwest, but it is still dry in the Southwest, and the complaints regarding the effect of the dry weather are very persistent. The trade is accepting the belief that the situation is quite unpromising. It is expected that the May report will show a rather large amount of total Winter wheat abandonment this season. Bulls say that the condition will not show improvement during the month, while, with the dry weather conditions outside of Kansas and Nebraska, the bears are disposed to believe that there will be improvement. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.14, nominal, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red spot, nominal, $1.13¼, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, opening, $1.16½, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, nominal; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, May, $1.07⅞.

Corn was also lower, with prices influenced by the more favorable weather conditions for plowing and planting, and also by reports of dull cash trade. The weakness in other grain was a factor. The nearness of the May deliveries is somewhat of a feature, and the trade is a little apprehensive that the large elevator interests may not be willing to take back all the corn tendered on the May contract. Cash corn quoted: No. 2 nominal; No. 4, 60c, nominal, and steamer, 63½c, nominal, elevator, export basis.

Oats were lower on the more favorable weather conditions, while the receipts of oats have been large at the West and show an increase this week. Cash demand is rather quiet. The weather conditions were reported favorable, although there is some complaint from Nebraska. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 45½@48c, and white clipped, 46½@52.

Provisions suffered in value as well as the grain markets. The live hog movement was small, but the supply of live hogs has not been a factor for some time. Prices after opening steady sold off with renewed liquidation. The packing returns for the week were less than the preceding week, amounting to only 350,000 hogs.

COTTON.

There was pressure on the cotton market a good portion of the day, and prices worked off, with the most pronounced selling in the near positions. The May cotton was the weakest option, and this gave rise to apprehension that there was some effort being made by the longs to get out. The market was also somewhat disturbed by rumors early that the May settlements in Liverpool were not going through satisfactorily. This report was possibly due to apprehension that the Southern spot failure would place some of the Liverpool houses in an unfavorable position. Later private cables stated that the Liverpool settlements went through without difficulty. The rapid increase in stocks of cotton here, and the confident claims of the spot interests that there will be enough cotton brought here to tender on the May contracts, has evidently distributed some of the small longs, and there was considerable realizing all day by those who were apprehensive of the effect of the deliveries, and afraid of inability to take any cotton. With 191,000 bales of spot cotton in the certificated stock the tender of this amount of cotton would be a record-breaking transaction in the cotton market, and it would involve about $14,000,000. There appears, however, to be no question of the financial strength of the bull party. It was reported that the cotton would be taken in by ten of the biggest houses in the future market. While there were some rumors about the possible financing of the deliveries, no trouble was apprehended in cotton circles. The stocks of certificated cotton increased 12,000 bales over night. A confident claim is made that, including the local stocks, the supplies available before the end of May will easily reach 300,000 bales. Shorts tried to cover at the close, and prices recovered sharply.

Southern spot markets unchanged to 3-16c decline.

New York spot cotton quiet, 20 points decline. Middling uplands, 14.85; middling Gulf, 15.10.

The market closed steady at 15 points decline to 4 advance.

COFFEE.

Coffee was steady at the opening with prices unchanged to 5 points decline, but closed at a net decline of 4 to 10 points. There were further May notices in circulation. Havre opened ¼ franc lower, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig decline. In Brazil Rio was 25 reis lower, and Santos was 50 reis decline. Firm offers from Rio were steady on a basis of 8 to 8.10 for Rio 7s in answer to bids of 7.85. Spot coffee quiet, 8⅝c for Rio No. 7.

NEW COKE OVENS A BENEFIT.

Germans Promoting Enterprise Here Say It Will Aid Producers.

Paul Mankiewitz, managing Director of the Deutsche Bank, in explanation of the coke project which is to be established at Bethlehem, Penn., with the backing of that bank, said yesterday:

"The arrangement entered into between the two German manufacturing companies, which are in no sense trusts, which are to construct coke ovens in Pennsylvania, does not in any way contemplate rivalry with the Steel Corporation or with any other steel company. What the new company proposes is the manufacture of coke and gas with the by-products of sulphates and tar, and the sale of these products. The system under which these products will be produced by the new company is very economical, and its introduction in this country will be of general advantage. Cheap coke and gas are of very great advantage to all producers of iron and increased production of sulphates will be desirable for the country's agricultural interests. The system is generally recognized as very advantageous by German concerns, and is the result of many years of scientific research and practical experience.

"The position of the Deutsche Bank in the matter is that of manager of the syndicate which is financing this new undertaking in which American interests are largely rpresented."

Bolts for Holding Automobile Tires Pay Specific Rates—Other Decisions.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that steel bolts designed for use in holding automobile tires in place are dutiable properly under the provision in the Dingley tariff for "steel bolts," with duty at the rate of 1½ cents per pound.

Collector Loeb classified the bolts as dutiable at 45 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures of metal." This classification, General Appraiser Fischer, who writes the decision for the board, holds erroneous. The General Appraiser reaches the conclusion that the security bolts are entitled to the lower rate, the protest being sustained.

The board has denied claims filed by Samstag & Hilder Brothers and others regarding the rate of duty to accrue on beads temporarily strung. They are assessed for duty at the rate provided for the component material of chief value, but other rates were sought by the importers, all of which are overruled. Among the importers affected by the adverse decision are H. Wolff & Co., the F. W. Gertzen Company, H. Nordlinger's Sons, the American Express Company, A. Lorsch & Co., H. Guggenheim, M. Goldberg's Sons, and Saks & Co.

Protests filed by C. W. Leavitt & Co. and John L. Vandiver objecting to the assessment of a 20 per cent. duty on various ferro alloys as "unwrought metals not specially provided for" in the Dingley tariff were sustained. The merchandise was claimed to be dutiable properly at the rate of $4 per ton as ferromanganese by similitude. The Collector's classification is reversed.

Hamburger, $500, and the Montreal Paper Company, $26. Preferential payments are alleged as an act of bankruptcy. The liabilities are estimated at upward of $3,000. William Allen was designated special master.

SEARING & CO.—A meeting of creditors of Searing & Co., bankers, of 7 Wall Street, with several uptown branches, was held yesterday at the office of William Allen, referee in bankruptcy, at 67 Wall Street. Many claims were filed, and John S. Sheppard, Jr., was elected Trustee, under a bond of $10,000. The meeting was adjourned until May 9 at 2 P. M. No settlement was offered. The firm's liabilities are $341,905 and assets are $658,411. The amount due depositors in the banks is $79,410.

WILLIAM B. SMITH.—Specifications of objections to the discharge from bankruptcy of William B. Smith & Co., stock brokers, of 11 Broadway, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on June 16, 1909, were filed yesterday by Mary H. Mullin, and upon the annexed consent of the attorney for the bankrupts and the attorneys for John Weiss, Carl Wannagat, Joseph Chmielewski, Nicholas Wattes, George Killen, and Frederick Schmidt, the objecting creditors, it was ordered that the time for the objecting creditors to file specifications of ground of opposition to bankrupts' discharge should be extended from April 28 to May 2, 1910.

MASTER'S SALE.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York—THE COLUMBIAN NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, complainant, against THE FIDELITY FUNDING COMPANY et al., respondents.

Notice is hereby given that, by virtue of a decree of foreclosure and sale, made and entered in the United States Circuit Court, Southern District of New York, held at the United States Courts and Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bearing date of March 2, 1910, I, as Special Master appointed for such purpose by the said decree, will, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, sell at public sale to the highest bidder, for cash, free of all right and equity of redemption in the said defendant, Fidelity Funding Company and Frank Hendrick, receiver, at 12 o'clock noon, at the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 13th day of May, the following described property:

1. A certain promissory note, dated May 12, 1908, by which the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, in the City of Orange, County of Essex, State of New Jersey, a Roman Catholic Church corporation, organized under the Laws of New Jersey, promised to pay to the order of the defendant corporation, the Fidelity Funding Company, the sum of $15,000, on December 1st, 1927, with interest thereon from the 1st day of December, 1907, at 4½% per annum.

2. A certain mortgage deed given to secure the payment of the mortgage aforesaid, dated May 12, 1908, given by the said Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel to the said Fidelity Funding Company, and recorded in the office of the Registrar of the County of Essex, State of New Jersey, in Book No. 222, page 544 et seq., and being a mortgage on the following described property:

(a) All those lots, pieces, and parcels of land, situated in the City of Orange, County of Essex, and State of New Jersey, and more fully described as follows, to wit: Beginning at the southwesterly corner of Centre Street and Hurlburt Street, thence running along Centre Street, southerly one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet to lands now or late of William R. McKay; thence along his line westerly one hundred and seventy-five (175) feet, to lands now or late of one McDonald; and thence along his line and that of Ellen Riker northwesterly one hundred and thirty-five (135) feet to Hurlburt Street, and thence along the southerly side of Hurlburt Street one hundred and sixty-seven (167) feet to said Centre Street, and place of beginning, being the same premises conveyed to the mortgagor by Annie Jayne by deed dated October 6, 1904, and recorded October 9, 1904, in Book X-37-405.

(b) All the buildings, structures, erections, and constructions now or hereafter placed on the above described real estate, with their fixtures, together with all the rights, privileges, franchises, tenements, hereditaments, and appurtenances, into the hereinabove described premises and property belonging or in any wise appertaining, and the reversion and reversions, and remainder and remainders, rents, issues, income, and profits thereof.

The terms of sale are as follows: Upon the acceptance of any bid for such property, the purchaser or purchasers shall deposit the sum of 10% of said purchase price with me as Special Master, in cash or by certified check upon any National Bank or Trust company in the City of New York; and if any bidder shall fail to make the deposit herein required upon the acceptance of his bid, I shall then and there again offer the property for sale, without further notice or advertisement. The balance of such purchase price shall be paid to me, as Special Master, within ten days from the confirmation of said sale; and at such time the purchaser or purchasers shall be entitled to receive a deed of conveyance and assignment from me, as Special Master, and from the Columbian National Life Insurance Company, complainant, and to receive possession of the said property.

Dated New York, April 11th, 1910.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court for the Southern District of New York, held in the Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 28th day of April, 1910.—Present, Hon. Learned Hand, U. S. D. J.—In the matter of F. MOHR & COMPANY, alleged Bankrupt.

An involuntary petition having been filed herein on or about March 14th, 1910, and Henry Melville having been duly appointed receiver and having duly qualified as such by filing the bond required of him, which was duly approved, and the Cambridge Trading Company having made an offer to purchase all of the assets of this estate of whatsoever nature, for a sum sufficient to pay all priority claims and 25% in cash to all creditors excepting to such as may waive the same, and said offer having been submitted to this Court, together with a petition of the said receiver, verified April 13th, 1910, and a report of the Committee of Creditors, dated March 31st, 1910, and an order to show cause having been issued thereon dated April 13th, 1910, directing the parties in interest and all creditors to show cause why said offer should not be accepted and why such other and further relief should not be granted as to the court may seem proper, and due, timely, and complete service of said order to show cause having been made pursuant to the terms thereof, and upon the affidavits of proof of service of said order to show cause, and proof of publication thereof this day filed with the Clerk of this Court, and the matter duly coming on for hearing in open court on the 25th day of April, 1910, and after hearing Henry Melville, receiver, and various attorneys for creditors appearing in support of said application, and there being no opposition thereto, and the alleged bankrupt having filed in court a consent to the said transfer, and upon due deliberation, it is Ordered that the acceptance of said offer is approved, and the said Henry Melville, receiver, after reserving in his hands a sufficient sum to pay all priority claims and debts, including fees and expenses of administration as the same may be agreed upon or fixed by this court, and the alleged bankrupt, are authorized and directed to transfer, assign, and set over to the said Cambridge Trading Company all of the assets of the alleged bankrupt, including merchandise, cash, outstanding receivables, horses, trucks, good-will, the right to use the said corporate name of F. Mohr & Company, and all other assets and choses in action of this estate of whatsoever kind, excepting two leases of premises now occupied by the alleged bankrupt on 32d and 34th Streets, respectively, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, as to said leases the said Cambridge Trading Company is granted an option to receive an assignment of said leases at any time up to and including July 30th, 1910, provided, however, that, if at any time before July 30, 1910, there shall be any default in the payment of net rentals owing upon said leases by the Cambridge Trading Company, said option shall expire. And it is further

Ordered that the said transfer shall be made upon the said receiver receiving a sum of cash from the said Cambridge Trading Company sufficient to pay to all creditors known to the said receiver who do not waive acceptance of the same, twenty-five per cent. (25%) in cash of their provable claims. And it is further

Ordered that the said receiver shall thereupon distribute said moneys to such creditors who do not waive acceptance of the same. And it is further

Ordered that any creditors may waive said twenty-five per cent. cash dividend by notifying said receiver to that effect in writing within five days after the mailing to them of a copy of this order. It is further

Ordered that as to such creditors as so waive acceptance of said cash dividend they shall share in all of the assets acquired or to be acquired by the Cambridge Trading Company pursuant to this order, less, however, any expense of said Cambridge Trading Company in the liquidation of such assets and any other charges and liens against said assets; such creditors so waiving said dividend shall share in such assets pro rata according to the percentages their respective claims bear to the total amount of claims of all creditors who waive receipt of said twenty-five per cent. cash dividend; and it is further

Ordered that such creditors as waive receipt of said cash dividend shall have no recourse against said receiver herein nor against said Cambridge Trading Company in the event that such dividends from said Cambridge Trading Company are less than twenty-five per cent. of such creditors' claims; and it is further

Ordered that a copy of this order be published in The New York Times on April 29th, 1910; it is further Ordered that said receiver upon carrying out the terms of this order, shall be discharged and his bond canceled.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Hub Building Co. Leases Times Square Corner—Will Erect a Twenty Story Structure—A Million Dollar Lease on East 47th Street—Bronx Deals.

Details of the leasing of the northeast corner of Forty-second Street and Broadway to the Hub Building Company, and the erection of a twenty-story building thereon will be found in another column.

Another $1,000,000 Lease.

W. & J. Sloane have leased through Pease & Elliman 8-10-12-14 East Forty-seventh Street, consisting of a plot 80 feet by 100 feet 5 inches, beginning 200 feet east of Fifth Avenue, to the Carlton House Company, lessees of the adjoining property.

The Carlton House Company have secured this property in order to erect a modern low structure, which will protect the westerly windows of the Carlton House and the Ritz Carlton Hotel overlooking this property. This leaves Messrs. W. & J. Sloane a plot 100 by 200 on the southeast corner of Forty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue, on which they will erect a building for their offices and show rooms.

The entire plot was leased about three months ago by W. & J. Sloane from Commodore Elbridge Gerry, consisting of plot 100 feet on Fifth Avenue and 280 feet on East Forty-seventh Street, and was for a term of forty years, beginning May 1, 1911. This sublease is for a similar time, and involves a rental of about $1,000,000.

Business Invading West 72d Street.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for William J. Casey 126 West Seventy-second Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 25 by 102.2, to a physician. Adjoining on the west is the former residence of Daniel O'Day, which has been altered for business.

On the same block, 114, which will be the home of Slawson & Hobbs, is being rebuilt, and 162, 165, and 167 have been converted into business buildings. There are projected improvements for 121 and 148 in this block.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company has sold for Richard T. Forrest 160 East Seventieth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 19.9 by 100.5, to a client for occupancy.

Pullman Family Sell Plot.

N. A. Berwin & Co. have sold for J. Westley Pullman of Wyncote, Penn., to James Varum Graham, 123 East Twenty-fourth Street, a three-story building, on lot 25 by 100, between Fourth and Lexington Avenues. This property has been in the Pullman family over seventy-five years.

The estate of George S. Gamble has sold to John J. Welstead 311 East Twenty-ninth Street, a four-story tenement, on lot 20 by 98.9.

Horace S. Ely & Co. have sold for Emerence K. Agar to Sumner Gerard 213 Lexington Avenue, adjoining the southeast corner of Lexington Avenue, a four-story dwelling, on lot 16 by 75.

Resale in West Harlem.

Harry L. Rosen has resold 246 West 112th Street, a five-story flat, on plot 33.4 by 100.11.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for the executors of the Margaret L. Crow estate 560 West 161st Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 18.11 by 99.11, to a client for occupancy.

Benson Estate Sells 51 Lots.

The Benson Estate has sold to the Brown Realty Company fifty-one lots situated in the East Bronx and bounded by Brockett, Ponton, Buhre, and Morris Park Avenues. The property is within two blocks of Westchester Avenue, where the Broadway-Lexington Avenue Subway is to be extended.

Deal in West Bronx Lots.

Another important transaction in the West Bronx that will give new impetus to the rapid development of the section was announced yesterday by the American Mortgage Company, which disposed of twenty-eight lots. The property is divided into two plots, one on the east side of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse, 41 feet north of 174th Street, with a frontage of 351 feet. At the northerly end the plot is 165 feet deep, the easterly and southerly lines measuring 228.10 and 52.9 feet, respectively.

The other parcel is directly opposite, on the westerly side of the Concourse, with a frontage of 207.6 feet and extending back 200 feet to Walton Avenue, where it fronts 200 feet. The purchaser is a client of Jacob Leitner.

Bronx Sales.

W. E. and W. I. Brown, Inc., have sold for Bertha Keating 1,881 Bathgate Avenue, a frame house, on lot 32.5 feet front by 94 feet deep. This is a resale of the northerly 32 feet of the property, recently sold by the same brokers for Messrs. Ravitch Brothers.

Julius Trattner has sold for Mrs. Anna Keller 522 East 147th Street, a five-story double flat, on lot 25 by 100, to Mrs. M. Bernaro.

Dr. John H. Storer has bought from the Whitehall Realty Company the plot, 75 by 100, on the east side of Jerome Avenue, about 231 feet south of Burnside Avenue. Dr. Storer owns three lots adjoining on the north.

Brooklyn Sales.

Galitzka & Co. have resold for a client to M. Chapman 5,806 Sixth Avenue, a three-story single store property on lot 20 by 50 by 80. The same firm has also sold for Alexander Slickerman a plot on west side of Fifth Avenue, between Sixty-first and Sixty-second Streets, 50 by 100, and resold for a client to M. Schaffer 5,808 Sixth Avenue, a three-story single and store property on lot 20 by 50 by 80 for investment.

Newmann Leavy has sold for Miss Quick the house 219 Roebling Street to M. Dershowitz of Manhattan.

Leases Big Brooklyn Factory.

The four-story brick factory building 258 to 270 Gold Street, Brooklyn, covering eleven lots and containing about 88,000 square feet of floor space, has been leased by Mr. Lockitt of C. W. Seitz's office to the Underwood Computing Machine Company as subsidiary company of the Underwood Typewriting Company for a term of years.

Recent Buyers.

Dr. Adrian Van S. Lambert is the purchaser of the dwellings 168-170 East Seventy-first Street, sold recently. He will convert them into an American basement house for his own occupancy.

Emanuel Newman is the purchaser of 904 West End Avenue. The McVickar, Gaillard Realty Company negotiated the sale.

Ellis Earle is the buyer of 129 and 131 West Twenty-second Street, reported sold Wednesday by the Acme Building Company.

Receivers of Rents.

Justice Blanchard of the Supreme Court has appointed Simon Phillips receiver of the rents of 429 Cherry Street, a tenement, pending a suit brought by Abraham J. Dworsky against Jacob Jablons and others to foreclose a second mortgage of $11,625. The prior mortgage is $16,000.

Jacob Katz has been appointed receiver of the rents of 602 West Forty-eighth Street, a five-story tenement, pending proceedings brought by Lizzie Hagen and Emma R. Laufersweiler to foreclose a second mortgage of $5,000.

Remodel Park Avenue Residence.

Plans have been filed for enlarging the four-story and basement dwelling at 25 Park Avenue by increasing the front to five stories in height and the rear to six stories and installing a bay window in the rear for Dr. Charles H. Chetwood, at a cost of $12,000. K. C. Budd is the architect. The house was formerly the residence of Mrs. Marion Story and was sold a short time ago.

Plans Filed for New Lofts.

Plans have been filed by George F. Pelham, architect, for a sixteen-story loft to be erected at 44 to 50 West Twenty-eighth Street for the Regent Construction Company, of which Ignatz Roth is President. The building will have a frontage of 99 feet and a depth of 80 feet and is to cost $500,000.

Plans have also been filed for a twelve-story fireproof store and light manufacturing building to be erected at 12 to 16 East Twenty-second Street for the Brunswick Realty Company, Robert P. Zobel, President, at a cost of $250,000. Frederick C. L. Zobel is the architect.

Garage for Church Parish House.

Plans have been filed for converting the four-story garage on the east side of Madison Avenue, 75 feet north of Seventy-third Street, into a parish house for the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. There will be extensive interior alterations and several windows built in the front at a cost of $8,000. James E. Ware & Sons are the architects.

New Washington Heights Apartment

Plans have been filed with Building Supt. Miller for a ten-story fireproof apartment house to be erected at the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 156th Street for the Willie Construction Company, of which Valentine Willie is President. The façade will be of brick with trimmings of limestone and terra cotta, and will have a frontage of 105.9 feet on Riverside Drive and 114.7 feet on 156th Street, with accommodations for fifty-one families. Schwartz & Gross, architects, estimate the cost at $400,000.

Notes.

John H. Lawrence negotiated the sale of 144 West Ninety-second Street, a three-story dwelling, for Mrs. E. C. Christie.

Richard Collins, successor to Collins & Collins, has removed his office from 527 Fifth Avenue to 63 Wall Street.

DO YOU CARE TO JOIN A HOME COLONY?
The writer is organizing such a project in view of getting together a number of people of social standing and congenial tastes. Our idea is to have the homes on three-quarter acre plots, with all improvements, each home to cost about $25,000. The members can practically make their own restrictions and can take as many additional plots as desired to hold for future increase in value.

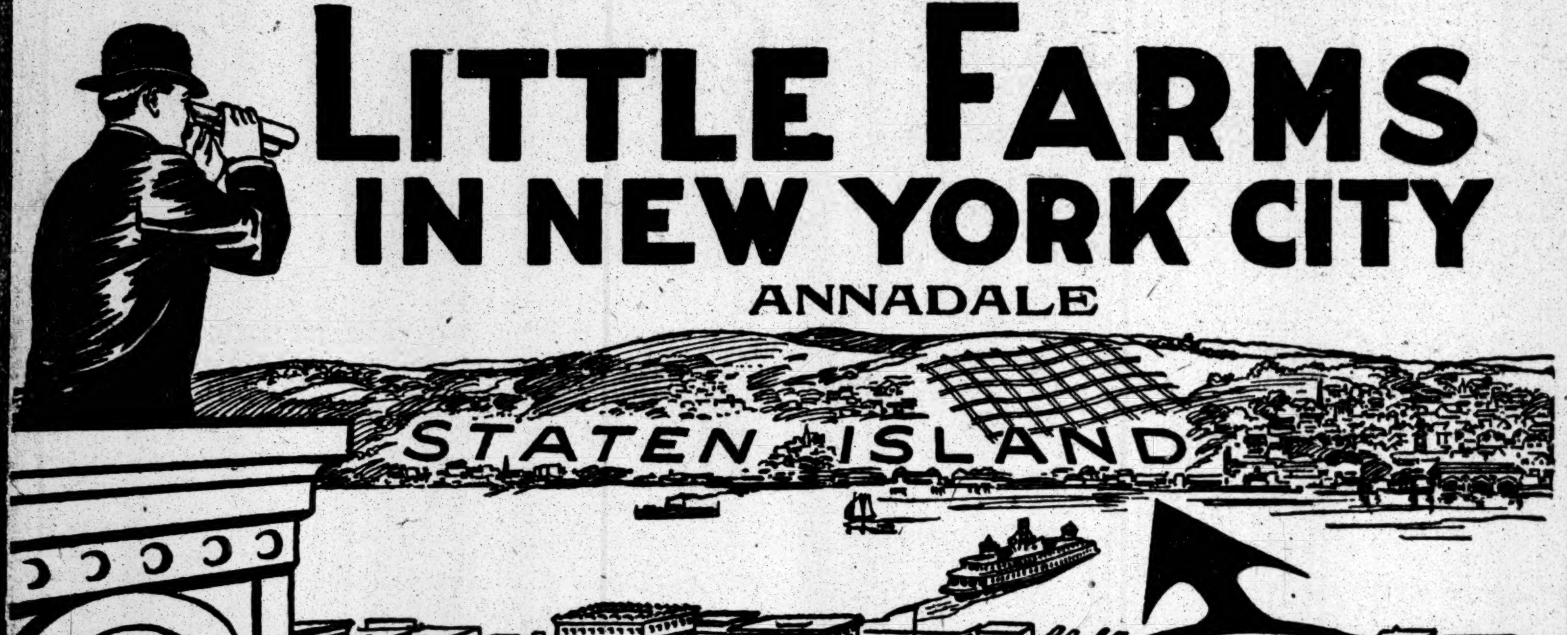
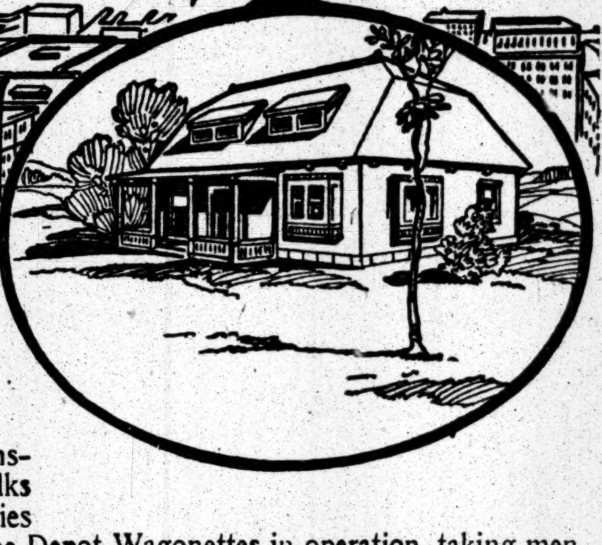
A QUARTER ACRE FOR A QUARTER A DAY

LITTLE FARMS IN NEW YORK CITY

ANNADALE





THE LITTLE FARMS idea has made a hit. A year ago it was looked upon as an experiment. To-day it stands out as one of the important successes of our twenty-two years of leadership in the real estate world. It marks the Triumphal accomplishment of life in the country made easy and economical through organization and co-operative methods applied in a wholesale way. It is pronounced by those who have tried it the perfect plan for summering. Last year many of our visitors were disappointed and disgusted because at first the land was rough—all stump holes, brush piles and disorder. Three months later a wonderful transformation scene had taken place. Streets were graded; cement sidewalks laid; plots planted with flowers, fruits and vegetables; nearly thirty families moving into their bungalows almost before they were completed; our free Depot Wagonettes in operation, taking men to and from their business trains; jolly parties going to the Bay in the Beach Wagon to fish or swim; social life in full swing at the Club House; plots being held at a premium and a general feeling of enthusiasm permeating the entire colony.

You missed that chance, but don't be too late for the new property. Don't miss the first excursions.

We are creating eight hundred Little Farms on Staten Island within fifty minutes and a ten-cent commutation fare from Broadway—we are landscaping them—planting on each farm a great variety of the finest fruit, shade and flowering shrubs. Everything is done in a wholesale way, and as a result we sell you, upon payment of $10 down and $6 per month, a complete country place—on which we will build a bungalow that you can pay for at a lower cost than the rent of the cheapest seashore cottage. We give you for $690 or less, value you could not duplicate for $1,200, and on terms within the limits of the most moderate purse.

Here is a chance to grow your own vegetables, raise your own fruits and work among your own flowers. Here is the chance to enjoy your summer days, swept by the breezes of the old Atlantic, with boating and fishing close at hand, and less than an hour from your work.

Some day big New York will grow right over your Little Farm and make you rich.

A QUARTER ACRE FOR A QUARTER A DAY

The Size of Little Farms Averages 4 City Lots.

FARM PLANTING

Every farm, except those in the wooded sections, is planted, at our expense, with 100 of the choicest productions in fruit trees, bushes, vines, perennials and hardy shrubs and plants, as follows:

2 Apple	9 Currant	2 Spirea
2 Cherry	9 Gooseberry	2 Peonies
2 Peach	9 Raspberry	12 Hardy Flowers
2 Pear	12 Grape Vines	18 Shrubs
2 Plum	2 Honeysuckle	2 Norway Spruce
9 Blackberry	2 Climber Roses	2 Shade Trees

Every farm is laid out by us to conform to the best ideals of artistic gardening and fruit growing—locations being provided on which to put the house and places for the outbuildings, chicken yard, grape arbors, etc.

ONE HUNDRED BUNGALOWS ON LITTLE PAYMENTS

Our new type of bungalows are different from anything you ever saw around New York. They harmonize with the natural surroundings, and yet each one has its own individuality, demonstrating that as much beauty and style can be put into a bungalow costing $1,000 or $2,000 as in the summer mansion of the wealthy man. We have plans of bungalows costing from $780 to $3,500.

A $780 Bungalow Built on a $590 Little Farm. Terms, $150 Cash, $16 Monthly.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

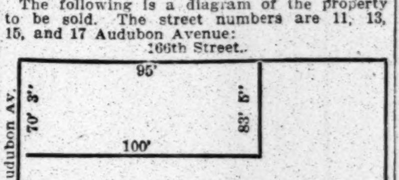
SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—JACOB WENER et al., plaintiffs, against LOUIS M. CAHN, JOSEPH LEVY, et al., defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 31st day of March, 1910, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 28th day of April, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those three certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and known and designated by the Lots Nos. 180, 181, and 182, on a certain map, entitled "Map of property belonging to the Jumel estate, in the City of New York, north of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, signed 'Philo T. Ruggles,' dated May 31st, 1882, Stephenson Towle, C. S.," and filed in the office of the Register of the County of New York, which lots are more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point formed by the intersection of the easterly side of Audubon Avenue with the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street, and running thence southerly along said easterly side of Audubon Avenue seventy (70) feet three (3) inches to the south line of the Jumel estate, as shown on said map, thence in an easterly direction and nearly parallel with One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street and along said south line of said estate one hundred (100) feet, thence northerly parallel with Audubon Avenue eighty-three (83) feet five (5) inches to One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street, and thence westerly along the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street ninety-five (95) feet to the place of beginning.

Dated New York, April 6th, 1910.
JACOB A. CANTOR, Referee.
WOLF & KOHN, Attorneys for Plaintiffs.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold. The street numbers are 11, 13, 15, and 17 Audubon Avenue:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $14,197.61, with interest thereon from the 17th day of March, 1910, together with costs and allowance amounting to $583.65, with interest from March 31st, 1910, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $1,006.82, and interest.

Said premises will be sold subject to the following mortgages: A first mortgage of $35,000, covering premises 15 and 17 Audubon Avenue, with accrued interest thereon from March 1st, 1910; a first mortgage of $26,000, covering premises 11 and 13 Audubon Avenue, with accrued interest thereon from December 13, 1909; a second mortgage of $10,000, covering the whole of said premises, with accrued interest thereon from June 23, 1905.

Dated New York, April 6th, 1910.
JACOB A. CANTOR, Referee.

The sale in the above-entitled action is hereby adjourned to Tuesday, May 3d, 1910.

Dated New York, April 28th, 1910.

WISE GETS FIGURES ON THE HEINZE LOANS

With $79,765 Balance Otto Heinze & Co. Borrowed $636,000 on Copper and Ice Stock.

SOME LOANS NEVER PAID

F. A. Heinze Had $7,917 in His Bank When He Drew $500,000 and Gave It to Tottering Firm.

So far as it could be developed from the cold figures of the books of the Mercantile National Bank, the Government completed at yesterday's session of the trial of Fritz A. Heinze its story of the loan deals and manipulations between the Heinzes and the bank during the lifetime of the ill-fated United Copper pool of 1907. The chain of circumstances forms the basis for the charges of misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National Bank by Heinze as its President. There still remains to be told from similar figures the story of the overcertifications, forming the ground for the remaining counts in the indictment. Then will follow the multitude of details from which the prosecution hopes to spell out the intent to defraud the bank.

Briefly stated, the culmination of yesterday's evidence came in the disclosure that on Oct. 14, 1907, when the firm of Otto Heinze & Co., with a balance of $79,765 to its credit on the books of the Mercantile National Bank, had outstanding loans aggregating $636,000, secured only by 6,300 shares of United Copper common, 100 shares of United preferred, and 1,900 shares of American Ice Securities, and when his personal account stood at $7,917 F. A. Heinze loaned to himself on his unsecured note $500,000 of the bank's funds, and turned it over to Otto Heinze & Co., his brother's firm, which was in charge of the tottering copper speculation.

Oct. 14 was the day when the copper pool met its fate. Sold out by their supposed friend, Charles W. Morse, who was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Mercantile Bank, the manipulators of United Copper, who had boosted the price of the common stock up to $70 a share, saw it seesaw between 69 and 39 that day. The next day United Copper common jumped around between 59 and 36; on the 16th it ranged between 30 and 10, and then, with the bottom knocked out of the pool, it hung at the last figure mentioned as the Clearing House authorities, on the evening of the 17th, were summoned into the Mercantile National Bank.

Reserve Below Legal Requirement.

These figures have an important bearing upon the developments of the trial, because the real battle of yesterday's session had to do with the conduct of the defendant in respect of the $500,000 loan on the day on which it was made and the few days succeeding. The Government is laying great weight upon the fact that Heinze made this loan to himself and turned the money over to the pool on Oct. 14, when the reserve of the Mercantile National Bank was $477,993 below the legal requirement at the opening of business and $755,147 below the requirement at the close. It developed by the statement of Cashier Emil Klein of the Mercantile National that the cashier warned Heinze on the afternoon of the 14th that he feared the bank would have trouble with its clearings in the morning and urged that collateral be obtained.

The defense, which in the morning through objection of John B. Stanchfield, Heinze's leading counsel, had shut out any statement of what happened to the Heinze loan account after Oct. 15, fought back in the afternoon by showing that on the 16th, the day before the appeal was made to the Clearing House authorities to save the Mercantile National Bank, Heinze put up another note for $430,000 secured by 40,000 shares of Ohio Copper, 20,000 shares of Davis-Daly Copper, 250 shares of the State Savings Bank of Butte, Mon., and 29,328 shares of United Copper common.

Mr. Stanchfield got the witness to approximate the value of this collateral as of Oct. 11 and reached the total of $1,996,000 by giving a value of $50 to United Copper common, $4 a share to Ohio, and $7 a share to Davis-Daly. The average quotation for United common on the 16th, however, was $20; the nearest sale of Ohio, on the 15th, was made at $3.50 a share, and Davis-Daly ranged between $4.25 and $5.50 on the day on which the $430,000 note, with its collateral, was put up to further secure the bank against the F. A. Heinze account.

Certified to Bank Reserves.

Leading up to this situation came a line of testimony which ran back as far as the Spring of 1907, when, on April 15, the Directors of the Mercantile National Bank were found to have sent to the Controller of the Currency, William B. Ridgely, a joint letter in reply to a communication of the 11th of that month, assuring the Controller that the reserve of the bank for the last three days had been above the legal requirement, and that they would take "particular care" to keep it in this condition. The Directors who signed that letter were F. A. Heinze, Arthur P. Heinze, Max F. Schulze, O. F. Thomas, Miles M. O'Brien, Warner Van Norden, Dick S. Ramsay, Chester Glass, Benjamin Nicoll, and E. T. Jeffry.

The next letter which the jury received was sent by the Controller to the President of the Mercantile National Bank, on Aug. 15, calling his attention to the bank's reserve as being below the legal requirement, that the bank had loaned $960,000 to Otto Heinze & Co., whereas its maximum legal loaning ability was $700,000 to any one interest, and that national bank notes were being counted into its reserve contrary to law. In reply, F. A. Heinze himself wrote to the Controller, on Aug. 27, that the loans of Otto Heinze & Co. had been reduced through the purchase of foreign exchange, to the amount of $280,000, and that the Directors were using every effort to maintain the reserve.

These letters, showing the precautions taken by the management to protect the bank, fitted in with the story which Emil Klein, the Cashier, read off from the bank's books themselves of the transactions by which the Otto Heinze loans were reduced for the purpose of that letter to the Controller, and what happened immediately afterward. The indebtedness of the Heinze interests, according to the figures which Mr. Klein produced, had grown from $250,000 on June 21 to $960,000 on August 5, the day on which Frederick Eckstein, the United Copper Company's clerk, borrowed $600,000 on his own unsecured note.

Loans Continue with Reserve Down.

That loan was paid the following day, but on Aug. 10 the Otto Heinze & Co. loan account stood at $470,000 and on the 15th, after an individual note of A. P. Heinze had been turned in to reduce the firm account to $420,000, it became $530,000, through a loan to Otto Heinze & Co. of $110,000. On that day the reserve of the bank was $694,356 below the legal requirement, and the following day, when the reserve of the bank was $698,947 below the legal requirement, Otto Heinze & Co. got $135,000 more on their individual demand note, with which they took up the $110,000 loan, leaving their loan account $25,000 worse off than it was before. On the close of business that day the bank's reserve was $1,018,500 below the legal requirement.

It was on Aug. 15 that Controller Ridgely wrote his warning letter, on the basis of an examination of the bank on the 5th, when the Eckstein loan was on the books. On the 20th the Directors met to consider it, according to Klein's testimony yesterday. On the 21st it appeared that the bank stood for two drafts—one on Bremen and one on Paris—aggregating $215,000, which was placed to the credit of Otto Heinze & Co., $100,000 being applied to the $150,000 loan of March 14, unsecured save for the demand note of the brokers, and $115,000 being applied to reduce the $135,000 loan of Aug. 16.

Thus was the loan account of Otto Heinze reduced so that it became possible for the President of the bank to write the reassuring letter to the Controller on Aug. 27. But the reduction didn't last long; on Aug. 28 two more loans were made to Otto Heinze & Co., one for $216,000 and one for $80,000, both on unsecured notes of the firm. At the close of business that day the drawing account of Otto Heinze & Co. showed a credit of $960, and the reserve of the bank was $179,576 below legal requirement. Neither of these loans of Aug. 28 has ever been paid.

After closing up this transaction of the midsummer, Mr. Wise passed to Oct. 10, when the bank's reserve at the opening of business was $239,127 below the legal requirement. On that day a loan of $30,000 was made to Otto Heinze & Co., which has never been paid, and the following day $20,000 more was loaned, as usual, on the unsecured note of the firm, and this loan, like its predecessors, has never been paid. Thus the situation was created which showed the loan account of $636,000 on Oct. 14, against which the bank was carrying as security 100 shares of United Copper preferred, 6,300 shares of United Copper common, and 1,900 shares of American Ice Securities.

Light from the Cashier.

Here are some pointed extracts from the testimony of Cashier Klein in reference to particular transactions of Oct. 14 and the $500,000 credited to F. A. Heinze's account:

Q.—Between the beginning of business on the 14th of October and the close of business that day was any payment ever made on account of those loans? A.—No.

Q.—Was any additional collateral added? A.—No.

Q.—Now, from the daily statement book of the bank, what was the condition of its reserve at the beginning of business on Oct. 14? A.—It was $477,933 below the legal requirement.

Q.—What was the condition of the bank's reserve at the close of business that day? A.—It was $755,147 below the legal requirement.

Q.—What was the balance to the credit of the account of Otto Heinze & Co. at the beginning of business on Oct. 14? A.—$79,765.

Then came in the $500,000 credit to the account of Otto Heinze & Co. which F. A. Heinze negotiated by means of a $500,000 note, with himself as the borrower. The note was unsecured by collateral and the bank's books showed that the debit produced by this loan was represented by a check for $500,000 drawn by Heinze as President to his own order and indorsed by him to Otto Heinze & Co. F. A. Heinze's personal account on Oct. 14 stood at $7,917 at the opening of business and at $9,917 at the close of business. Of the $500,000 which passed to the credit of Otto Heinze & Co., by means of this transaction, $492,770 was immediately withdrawn, according to the evidence of Mr. Klein.

Q.—Was this note ever paid? A.—Not entirely.

Q.—Has any payment been made on account? A.—On Oct. 15 a payment of $126,000 was made and also a payment of $40,000.

Q.—On what bank was the credit of $126,000 drawn? A.—Upon the National Bank of North America.

The Defense Takes the Witness.

This credit, it was brought out in the Morse trial, came through a loan arranged by Morse to Heinze in the bank of which Morse was then the manager. The other $40,000 was a transfer of credit by which the account of Otto Heinze & Co. was debited $40,000 and the account of F. A. Heinze credited by that amount. Mr. Wise made an attempt to show what happened to this Heinze loan account further, but Mr. Stanchfield objected and was sustained by Judge Hough, to the end that the making of the $430,000 note and deposit of additional collateral by Heinze might be brought out on cross-examination.

Mr. Stanchfield got Cashier Klein to tell how Miles M. O'Brien was the active manager of the bank, and got not only his own but the President's salary during the Heinze domination, so that his total income from the Mercantile was at the rate of $25,000 a year. Klein said in response to other questions that the loan of $150,000 under which the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific was deposited when it was first made seemed then well secured, and that the rating of the brokerage firm of Otto Heinze & Co. was A-A-A-1 in the commercial agencies, meaning that the firm was rated at $1,000,000 or over.

After Mr. Stanchfield had brought out from the witness that all the loans in the series presented by the Government were reported to the Executive Committee of the bank and approved, he got Klein to state that during the time when many of the loans were made United Copper common was worth $50 a share in the market. Then Heinze's lawyer remarked:

"There is another note of Heinze's in the bank that Mr. Wise did not ask you about, is there not?"

Mr. Wise, however, was quick to point out that he was prevented from making this inquiry by the objection which stopped him from inquiring what happened to the Heinze loan account after Oct. 15. but Mr. Stanchfield, pressing his temporary advantage, had the witness explain to the jury that the bank holds a note of Heinze for $430,000, secured by 40,000 shares of Ohio Copper, 20,000 shares of Davis-Daly, and 29,328 shares of United Copper common, at the valuations of $4, $7, and $50, respectively, besides 800 shares of the State Savings Bank of Butte, on which the witness placed a valuation of $250.

Having counted up the market value of this collateral on the valuations mentioned as over $2,000,000 Mr. Stanchfield asked:

"Did you get this collateral at that time, or get it later under an agreement made at that time?"

"We did not get it then, nor did we have any agreement," replied Mr. Klein.

Scales Turn on Stanchfield.

Mr. Stanchfield got the witness to explain that further collateral came into the bank after checks had been drawn against the account of Otto Heinze & Co. to several brokers in settlement of obligations. The additional collateral consisted of 990 shares United Copper preferred, 750 United Copper common, 1,000 Ohio Copper, and 1,500 Butte Coalition, which, Mr. Klein figured, was selling at about 28. This further collateral, he estimated, was worth about $400,000 when received.

It took only a short time for Mr. Wise, on redirect examination, to establish that none of the additional collateral, neither the $430,000 F. A. Heinze note, was in the Mercantile Bank when, on Oct. 14, its President loaned himself $500,000 on his own note and turned the money over to Otto Heinze & Co.

"You leave out of consideration the individual responsibility of Otto Heinze & Co.," objected Mr. Stanchfield.

Mr. Wise had the witness wade through a record of the meetings of the Executive Committee of the bank during 1907 showing that F. A. Heinze attended practically every meeting with the exception of a few in March, when he was in the West. He put the $430,000 note in evidence which Mr. Stanchfield had failed to introduce, with its date of Oct. 16, two days after F. A. Heinze had loaned the $500,000 to himself.

Miles M. O'Brien, Vice President of the Mercantile National Bank, came into court during the afternoon yesterday, when Mr. Stanchfield assured him that he had never stated that the defense would throw the responsibility off all that was done in the Mercantile National Bank upon Mr. O'Brien's shoulders. Mr. O'Brien, it is understood, will not permit the defense to follow its indicated course of shifting the responsibility for the management of the bank from F. A. Heinze to him.

The case will continue this morning.

Tube Company Raises Wages.

PITTSBURG, April 28.—Following the announcement of a wage raise by several subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation comes that of the National Tube Company, which has posted notices that all employes' wages will be advanced on May 1 from 1 to 6 per cent. Day labors will receive $1.75 instead of $1.60 a day.

TRIES, BUT CAN'T TELL WHO HE IS

For Sixteen Days a Man Has Been in a Yonkers Hospital Struggling to Remember.

WAS UNCONSCIOUS AT FIRST

Lost His Memory Suddenly in the Street—It May Be Due to an Old Blow, Doctors Think.

In St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers, is a man who might be said to have neither country nor home, friends nor identity. The authorities of Yonkers for the last sixteen days have been trying to find out who he is and where he comes from. For the last four days he has been making desperate efforts to tell, but he cannot.

This is not the fault of his speech or hearing, for he can speak and hear. Neither is it entirely the fault of his powers of thought, because he seems to understand questions. But some ailment, the result of an old blow or sickness, according to the physicians, has put his mind and body out of accord. His brain seems to be like a telephone system after its central station has been struck by lightning, the operators blinded and paralyzed, the switchboard bent and twisted, the jacks, cords, and wires all mixed up, so that messages are jumbled.

The man's vain efforts to tell about himself excite pity. In the hospital such a conversation as this has taken place half a dozen times a day since he returned to consciousness.

"Is your name Hans?" the house physicians ask.

"Ye-es," he will reply.

"Is it Daniel?"

"Yes, yes."

"Where do you come from?"

"I come Na-a."

"From New York, Newark, Norwalk?"

"Yes."

"From which town, New York, Newark, or Norwalk?"

"I come Na-a."

The man was suddenly stricken on the afternoon of April 12, when he was walking across a lot at Herriot and School Streets. He stumbled, lurched, and, when he fell, the neighbors thought him intoxicated, and none went to aid him until night came.

St. Joseph's Hospital was notified, and Dr. Robert Malcolm found the man unconscious and breathing heavily, as though suffering from apoplexy. At the hospital it was discovered that his right side was paralyzed and Dr. Malcolm thought he might be suffering from a lesion on the left side of his head or a depressed fracture of the skull. But there were no marks or bruises. For twelve days the man lay unconscious, liquid food being poured down his throat.

Four night ago, the hospital attendants were startled by hearing some one trying to open the basement door. Physicians Malcolm and Kline found the man they had left unconscious and seemingly dying in bed, wandering about in his night-clothes, trying to get out of the building.

"What are you trying to do? Who are you?" the doctors asked.

The man replied with an inarticulate sound, and the doctors led him back to his cot. Since then a guard has been placed beside his bed every night lest he again try to escape. He is not violent in any way, but when any one enters the ward the man beckons with his hand. When the visitor aproaches the bed the vacant stare is replaced by a troubled look.

"The man seems to be suffering from some intercranial pressure or brain clot," said Dr. Malcolm yesterday. "He was walking into Yonkers when some tiny clot or growth, the result of some old blow or stealthy ailment, touched his brain.

"The result, so far as his powers of communication were concerned, was like a stroke of lightning. He was not starved in any way when we first found him, and we have been giving him eggs, milk, soup, and fruit ever since he recovered consciousness. Nevertheless, he is constantly losing weight. We may be able to relieve the brain pressure, but even if we do, we cannot tell whether the man may not remain permanently insane.

"We have made all the efforts we can think of, through the police and newspapers, to locate the man's family and friends, who are doubtless greatly worried over his disappearance, but he cannot identify himself and when he was found there were no papers in his pockets to show who he was."

The man is a red-haired, blue-eyed Teuton, about 45 years of age. He was dressed in dark clothes and a derby hat, the latter bought in a Brooklyn store. His hands and muscles are too soft for a laborer's.

The Yonkers physicians and police think he may have been a small storekeeper or peddler. The police of all the Westchester County and Connecticut towns have been given his description, that his relatives may be located.

MILITIA OFFICER TRIED.

Charged with Going Home Without Leave from Boston Manoeuvres.

Second Lieut. James H. L. Devlin of Company L of the Fourteenth Regiment, N. G., was tried by a court-martial at the regiment's armory, Fifteenth Street and Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, last night, for conduct unbecoming an officer and prejudicial to military discipline, in that he left his regiment without leave of absence in the campaign of the Red Army against Boston on Aug. 17 last, and induced seven other members of the company to do likewise and come home with him.

Devlin, who defended himself without counsel, declared that he had been forced to drop out and go home because of cramps and rheumatism contracted in the heavy marching of the campaign. He pleaded guilty to departing without leave, but denied that he had induced the other men to accompany him. He had met them at the station and they offered to go home also, he said. Later, when his regiment returned, Devlin went to the Major Surgeon for treatment, but the Major Surgeon found nothing the matter with him except a little sunburn, which he admitted had been caused by swimming at Coney Island two days after his return.

The court-martial will report its findings to Gov. Hughes, who appointed it. It consisted of Major Lewis L. Babcock, Judge Advocate, of the Fourth Brigade of Buffalo; Major James M. Andrews, Capt. John F. O'Ryan, Capt. Ransom H. Gillett, Capt. John H. Fairchild, and Capt. William A. Turnbull.

SENATORS HEAR BOYS' PLEA.

W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., Opposes Wireless Bill—Speaks for Young Amateurs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—On behalf of the inventive genius of the American boy, W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., President of the Junior Wireless Company, Limited, of America, and the fourteen-year-old son of the New York millionaire, to-day appeared with some of his associates before the Senate Committee on Commerce to oppose Senator Depew's bill regulating inter-State wireless communications. The boys began to read a prepared brief—each one taking a turn. After a part was read, Senator Frye suggested that the whole paper be printed, and submitted to the Committee. This plan was adopted.

Young Mr. Stokes, on behalf of the boys' association, announced that they were not opposed to the Depew measure on account of its restrictions on those who should be eligible for registration as wireless operators, but because it discriminated in favor of the commercial as opposed to the amateur operators.

He declared that the commercial companies are "for the most part only stock-jobbing corporations and members of a great trust." The bill, he said, if adopted, will "stifle the ambition and really great inventive genius of American boys." He said further that the enforcement of the law would require the service of from 1,000 to 1,500 expert wireless operators, as they alone would be of use in locating violators of the law.

The boys said that professional wireless operators are ill-paid, and that wireless communications could not be as easily controlled as commerce in bulk.

The committee members promised to take the matter under advisement.

W. H. Clay, representing the National Electric Signaling Company of Pittsburg, gave the committee an instance of "interference" in sending wireless telegraphic messages. Mr. Clay's company some time ago was called upon to transmit a number of wireless messages from New York to Philadelphia. Action in an important lawsuit involving a considerable sum of money was concerned in the proper and steady transmission of the messages. When the operator sought to send them he was held up and informed that the League Island Navy Yard was using the air in sending a message and that it had priority. It was afterward learned that the wife of an officer stationed at the League Island Navy Yard, who had gone downtown to do some shopping, had had a message sent asking for her mackintosh and rubbers. She feared that she would get wet, as a rainstorm was coming.

He said that while he had no objection to the Government having priority in the use of the air for important Government business, he did not think that commercial business should be suspended for such telegrams.

BARNARD GIRLS IN DRAMA.

Give Spirited Performance of "If I Were King" and Delight Audience.

The biggest benefit performance of the season for Barnard College was given last night by the class of 1909, who reproduced their junior play, "If I Were King." The proceeds are to be used for a much-needed new building.

The cozy little Barnard Theatre was crowded. When the stage was revealed showing the interior of Fir Cone Tavern, where had gathered the chic girls devoted to Francois Villon, a prolonged "ah" of admiration filled the theatre. "That's Florence Wyeth as Francois Villon," was heard on every side. Francois entre was an ovation. Francois strode the footlights unencumbered by skirts as manfully as the bravest chevalier. Francois slapped the hilt of a tremendous sword, while King Louis XI., (Miss Florence Gerrish,) masquerading under a black mantle, watched her closely. Villon was heroic, and Miss Wyeth played the part in a sympathetic, wistful manner.

Of course every one remembers how Louis XI. makes François Villon his Chief Minister for a single week, intending to hang him at the end of that time; how poor little Hugette de Hamel showers upon Villon a fund of unrequited love, and how Villon loves Katherine de Vaucelles, who finally saves his life.

Guy Laberie, (Miss Lucy Thompson,) dressed in a red plush costume, sulkily performed the duties of host of the tavern. His patrons showed a remarkable capacity for his wines, and things were ripe for trouble when Thibault D'Aussigny (Miss Julia Goldberg) swaggered into the tavern and started a quarrel with François Villon.

There was action and to spare when the two whipped out their swords and fought a duel.

One of the prettiest scenes of the production was in the second act, when four pages, Misses Frances Randolph, Agnes Burke, Eunice Miller, and Sarah Rome, dressed in red silk and red stockings, bowed the way of Lady Katherine into the King's boudoir. Good acting was done done by Miss Jessie Cochran in the rôle of Hugette de Hamel. She was warmly applauded.

ALPHA GIRLS MODIFY RITES.

Sorority Fear Drastic Measures Will Result from Miss Clark's Hazing.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 28.—The girls of the Alpha Alpha sorority of the Bridgeport High School held a special meeting to-day to take action upon the publicity given their initiation ritual and to ascertain the leak, if possible. Incidentally a warm dispute arose as to the advisability of toning down the ritual. Two factions sprang up, one favoring the retention of the present form and the other maintaining that it would be better to drop all initiation "stunts" until the trouble blew over.

The meeting finally resulted in a compromise by which it was agreed to discontinue some of the rougher initiation features, such as making a candidate walk on her hands down a flight of stairs, branding her on the back, and forcing her to eat "cocktails" composed of oysters and sugar, egg, vinegar, pepper, soap, and other rites.

The Board of Education is expected to make its report soon concerning the hazing of Miss Lorain Clark by the Alpha Alpha sorority, following which Miss Clark is now an inmate of the Linden Lodge Sanitarium at Brattleboro, Vt. It is feared by the sorority girls that drastic measures will be undertaken by the board in coping with the fraternity evil in Bridgeport high schools.

20-STORY BUILDING FOR TIMES SQUARE

Impressive Glass-Fronted Structure to Go Up at Broadway and Forty-second Street.

208 FEET IN BROADWAY

New Structure, with Fitzgerald Building of Similar Design, Will Extend from 42d to 43d Streets.

Plans were completed yesterday by the assignment of the lease from the Broadway Corner Company to the Hub Building Company for the erection in Times Square of one of the largest and handsomest office buildings in the city. It will occupy the northeast corner of Broadway and Forty-second Street, taking in the building now occupied by Shanley's restaurant, the United Cigar Stores building on the corner, and several other small structures. The lease, which was recorded yesterday from the Astor estate, the owners of the plot, is to run for twenty years at an annual rental based on a graduated scale of from $55,000 to $120,000.

At the meeting of the Directors and stockholders of the Hub Building Company yesterday a bond was given for the construction of the building, which, according to the plans of the architects, Clinton & Russell, will cost some $1,500,000. These officers were elected: President—Herbert T. Jennings; Vice President—Edmund K. Stallo; Secretary and Treasurer—M. Greenwood. The company was recently incorporated under the laws of New York State with a capital of $2,000,000 for the purpose of taking over the Astor leasehold estate lately created by the trustees of the William Astor estate in favor of the Broadway Corner Company, one of the subsidiary companies of the American Tobacco Company. Formal possession of the property will be taken next Sunday, May 1.

The new building has been designed so as to harmonize in every detail with the Fitzgerald Building and the George M. Cohan Theatre, now being erected on the adjoining Forty-third Street corner, although the latter will be but twelve stories in height, while the new structure will tower eight stories above it. The combined buildings will therefore present one of the most imposing and artistic block fronts in the city, and with the new Heidelberg tower, under construction in Forty-second Street opposite the Times Building; the Knickerbocker Hotel, the Astor Hotel to the north, and the new $1,000,000 Rector's Hotel, now going up at Forty-fourth Street and Broadway, Times Square will be made up of imposing buildings.

The ground floors of the new buildings will contain large plate glass windows from the floor up, presenting a glass front of 208 feet in Broadway from Forty-second to Forty-third Street, and 112 feet in Forty-second Street. The second and third floors will also have large windows, offering unusual facilities for window decorations by the tenants.

The design for the new twenty-story building provides for elevations in white terra cotta and ornamental iron. On the ground floor will be an arcade entering from the Forty-second Street side near the east line of the building and extending through to Broadway about 60 feet north of the Forty-second Street corner. This arcade will provide for booths on either side for shops, offices, and small stores.

The kiosk entrances to the Subway, which now seriously impair the sidewalk traffic, will be removed, and the entrances moved nearer the building line, thus affording ample sidewalk facilities in Broadway and relieving the congestion caused by the heavy passenger traffic at the Times Square Subway station. Many other improvements are being worked out by the architects, the aim being to make the new structure one of the most beautiful as well as convenient office buildings in the city.

The detailed floor plans will be completed within the next week or ten days, and the management and renting of the building will be in the hands of Greenwood & Co., as managers for the twenty-story structure, in connection with the adjoining Fitzgerald twelve-story building.

The tenants of the Forty-second Street corner buildings have not yet been notified to vacate. No definite statement was made by the Directors yesterday as to when the old structures will be torn down, but it was intimated that the work of demolition would not be delayed beyond a few weeks.

OPPOSE FISK & ROBINSON.

Objections to the discharge from bankruptcy of Fisk & Robinson, bankers and bond brokers, 35 Cedar Street, were filed yesterday by these creditors: Pioneer Trust Company of Kansas City, Mo.; Walton H. Holmes of Kansas City, and Florence Miller.

It is alleged that on or about the 31st day of January, 1910, Fisk & Robinson, individually and as members of the firm, obtained $80,000 in cash from J. P. Morgan & Co. and credit by means of a materially false statement in writing which purported to show the true financial condition of the firm. The firm's liabilities were $7,229,768 and nominal assets, $6,990,966.
